Soviet Jails Six Secretly InSensational New Spy Plot

Foreigners Held Since Arrests Started in September.

Facts Requested By Three Nations

20 Russians, 3 Friends of Prisoner Also in Custody.

Moscow, Jan. 14 (AP).—A new "spy case," which may rival the celebrated British Metropolitan-Vickers affair, has arisen in Russia, it was disclosed today, with the arrest of the general manager and five foreign representatives of the Controil Co. branch of the Societe Generaledes Surveillances, Ltd., of Genova.

They were charged with economic espionage.

Twenty Russian employes of the firm, which has functioned in Soviet Russia for a dozen years, have also been taken into custody.

Arrests Closely Guarded.

The foreigners under arrest are two Austrian subjects, two Germans, one Belgian nad one Dane, all of whom have represented the company for many years in this country.

They, along with the Russian employes, were arrested over a period of four months beginning in September and ending the latter part of December, it was revealed.

So closely were they confined, however, that not even members of the foreign legations of their respective countries were permitted to see them.

No mention of the case so far has been published officially in Moscow, and as the men have not yet been formally indicted.

German, Austrian and Danish government representatives were here, however, seeking information in the matter, and the International Red Cross hsa interested itself in the case of the Belgian, whose country has no diplomatic relations with Russia.

Belgian Manager Held.

The foreigners are:

Lack of Nickel Ends in Killing

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Because he could not produce a nickel to play a vending machine, F. Page Morris, 23, was shot and killed allegedly by Fred Pritchett, 25, shortly before midnight, at Anderson's filling station, near Rio, 6 miles north of Charlottesville.

C. B. Anderson and W. C. Reynolds, station operators and two of the several eye witnesses, said Pritchett was intoxicated when he entered the station with John Leake. Pritchett started to play the machine and asked the group for change.

The two men said Morris stated he had no change. Pritchett was said to have drawn a pistol and fired at Morris, causing instant death. The spectators ran, but Pritchett and Leake stayed in the station.

The two were brought here at 1 a. m. today and lodged in the Albemarle County Jail. They will appear before a Maistrate's Court Friday. Leake is charged as an accessory to the crime.

Morris ws the only son of James A. and Cora Morris, of near Proffit. He is survived by his wife and 1-year-old daughter. He had been employed on CWA projects.

Woman Burns Self To Death in Home

Headache Sufferer Lights Oil-Drenched Clothes.

Bloomsburg, Pa., Jan. 14 (AP).—Her body a flaming torch, Mrs. Wellington M. Moore, 60, of Bloomsburg, perished in her home today. Members of her family said she caused her own death.

Despondent because of severe headaches, Mrs. Moore went to the cellar, removed outer clothing, poured kerosene over herself and applied a match, relatives said.

(Associated Press.)

Methuselah, if alive and well, would have a better chance than almost anyone else of becoming a general in the Marine Corps.

The reason is that under the present rate of promotions, the Biblical character who was reputed to have lived for centuries would be about the only one old enough to attain a gneeral officer's rank after entering the service as a second lieutenant.

Foreseeing an increasing lack of promotion, the Marines about seven years ago sought Congressional approval of a selection system similar to the Navy's, but were refused. A move will be made again in the present Congress. Marine promotions are made by "filling a dead man's shoes."

Statisticians have computed that an officer at the age of 21, under the present system must serve 140 years before he became eligible for a general's rank.

U. S. May Cut Tariffs in Bid For New Trade

Long-Range Changes Seen, With Quota System. Discarded.

By Kendall Foss.

Long-range changes in American tariff policy are looming.

New concepts, present but generally unrecognized these many years, are before the eyes of the men shaping the program. They involve creation of an unfavorable balance of trade, the overhauling of the country's foreign trade set-up to make it fit the requirements of a creditor nation, and ultimately they open the way to a solution of the international debt problem. Far-reaching, they are none the less ridiculously simple:

If a nation wishes to sell abroad, it must be prepared to buy. An export surplus with its attendent annual transfer of gold to home vaults does not actually constitute an addition to national wealth. Nor can it be kept up indefinitely except by debtor nations. This country has not been a debtor since the war.

Imports are what raise the standard of living; exports are what a nation must give up in order to enjoy the use of imported products. The widespread confusion derives primarily from a tendency to confuse the thing itself with its value. In terms of the individual most people know it is not the money in the bank that counts, but the things this money can command. In national economics, however, the belief persists that an inflow of money rather than a stream of usable articles is what is wanted.

Consumer "Conscious."

Aonther confusion is that of producer interest with consumer interest. The present administration is more consumer conscious than many of its predecessors. It displays a constant tendency to think in terms of the nation as a whole. That is why the question of a foreign commercial policy is receiving such close attention. This field has hitherto been conspicuously weak in celarly reasoned general principles.

Parallel with the study of future policy (does the country require a flourishing foreign trade or not?) is the question of method. Much recent discussion revolves around the latter phase of the problem. Shall foreign trade be left to business to work out according to so-called natural economic laws? Shall the banks be called upon to coordinate things through financial manipulations? Shall we borrow a leaf from the Soviet book, and handle our foreign commercial relations through a Government-controlled trading corporation, so the full weight of the national bargaining power may be brought to bear in every negotiation for privilege? Shall the control be by tariff variations or by the use of the quota system?

Gang "Kibitzers" Kill Card Player

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Gangland assassins "kibitzed" in a card game today and carefully and deliberately killed Angelo "Angie" Pezzulo, 29.

Pezzulo, his two brothers, and two other men were playing the last hand of a long card session in the back room of a candy store.

Two men entered. One of them drew a revolver and commanded the players to line up, faces against the wall.

The armed man walked along the line, turning faces and scrutinizing them carefully. He stopped behind Pezzulo and shot him twice, below the heart and in the head.

U. S. Flier Told to Leave Mexico.

Mazatlan, Mexico, Jan. 14 (AP).—Grant Spellman, an American aviator employed on the line between here and La Paz, Lower California, was notified today by the department of immigration that he must leave the country immediately or be expelled.

Cuba Seizes U. S.-Owned Light Plant

CafferyReported to Have Favored Temporary Operation.

Havana, Jan. 14 (AP).—The government of Ramon Grau San Martin tonight held over $100,000,000-worth of American property in the palm of its hand after a strike by employes of the Cuban Electric Co. had brought a six-hour complete shutdown of the company's facilities.

Apparently determined to prevent a lightless, waterless, gasless night at all costs, Col. Fulgencio Batista, placed picked machine gunners around plants of the company as the government took over operations.

It was revealed "Col. Batista's attention had been informally invited to the American Embassy's concern over the strike situation at the electric light plant."

Control of the power company's properties passed into the hands of the government under a hurriedly prepared decree signed by President Grau today, while Havana and a large part of the island were without lights, power, gas or water.

Workers Walk Out.

The crisis came an hour before daylight when employes served notice on the power company that they would not wait longer for acceptance of 10 demands previously made by the workers.

When the company officials refused to meet the demands, all power and gas facilities were cut off, presumably by the strikers.

The shutdown threw the capital into near panic as prospective churchgoers groped in darkness, only to find their water supply cut.

It was understood that the government's decree was a temporary measure designed primarily to assure lighting facilities tonight and that the government would retain control while Batista tries to arbitrate between strikers and company officials.

Revolt Rumors Die.

The decree gives the government the right to hold and operate the properties on the basis of the workers demands, until such time as the matter is settled.

Rumors of the revolutionary plans of Cuban political refugees in Miami had died down over the weekend, but there were still rumblings of a possible coup d'etat by Antonio Guiteras, secretary of war, navy and interior. He denies such a possibility.

The hospital situation remained unchanged. The government had not acted to force closure of hospitals operated under Spanish regional societies, who refused to comply with a decree compelling all physicians to be members of the National Medical Federation.

The government apparently was awaiting action of the supreme court, which late yesterday admitted an appeal on behalf of the Spanish societies.

Falling Limb Misses King George and Party

Sandringham, England, Jan. 14 (AP).—The royal motor car, containing King George, Premier Ramsay MacDonald, the Duke and Dutchess of York and Princess Elizabeth, narrowly escaped being hit by the falling branch of a tree today.

Just as the car drew up to Sandringham Church a six-foot limb was dislodged by a string wind. It banged down on the roadway only a few yards behind the car.

Hoover's Son Saw Shadow Over Brown

Cooperation Promised in Letter to Senate Investigators.

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 14 (AP).—Herbert Hoover, jr., son of the former President, today disclosed that he sought to resign from his post as chief engineer of the Western Air Express in 1930 to forestall any criticism connecting his or his father's name with air mail contracts.

Hoover said he mailed to the United States Senate special committee investigating foreign and domestic, ocean and air mail contracts a complete report on the subject yesterday.

This showed that in August, 1930, he anticipated that accusations would be made against Postmaster General Brown.

Illness Ended Contact.

In August, 1930, Hoover was ordered for a month's duty as a reserve lieutenant in the Air Corps of the Army.

"At the physicial examination for that service," his letter to the committee sets forth, "it was discovered that I required treatment for tuberculosis and, as a result, I spent a year in the Rapidan Camp and at Asheville, N. C.

"Shortly after entering treatment, Secretary Hurley informed me that a man named Haliburton was stating in Washington that I was using my relationship to promote airmail contracts. I had no part nor any knowledge of this end of the business, and never have discussed it with any public official.

"Yet, as these statements were intended to damage my father, I resigned from the company by letter and sent a copy to the Postmaster General."

Contract Cited in Letter.

In the letter to Harris M. Hanshuem, president of the company, dated August 24, 1930, young Hoover wrote:

"Would-be competitors for this contract already have launched slanderous innuendoes to the press, even in advance of the opening of bids, to the effect that the contract will be given to the company because of my employment by the company.

"Should it be found that the Western Air Express possesses the qualifications for the service, makes the lowest bid, and is awarded the contract by the Postmaster General, then every slimy politician, every scandalmonger, and every character assassin in the country will rise to defame the honored name I bear, and accuse the Postmaster General of wrongful action. It will be used

3 Persons Drowned As Dog Upsets Boat

Husband Sees Wife and Small Boy Die.

East Liverpool, Ohio, Jan. 14 (AP).—A dog's restlessness cost the lives of three persons near here today as their boat capsized in the Ohio River.

The dead: Mrs. Arney Clutter, 20; her son, John, 2, and Mrs. Clutter's brother, Harold Adkins, 5. The woman's husband, Leonard Clutter, 25, a coal miner, is in a critical condition from exposure.

The four were en route to their homes at Georgetown, Pa., when their police dog overbalanced the boat by jumping from one side to the other. Clutter held the child and gripped the overturned boat until help arrived.

The dog swam ashore.

U. S. Ship Afire Makes Port.

Liverpool, England, Jan. 14 (AP).—The American steamship Tripp, which reported a fire in her cotton cargo on January 12, while several hundred miles off the English coast, docked here today with her cargo still smouldering.

'George' Is the Forgotten Man, Says Green—Unless He Sleeps

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor made a plea for "George" yesterday.

"George," as every one knows, is the Pullman porter. Mr. Green also rallied to the support of "Georgina," woman porter who brings the smelling salts to your mother-in-law.

According to a statement by Mr. Green, George and Georgina are the forgotten man and woman in the flesh.

"The National industrial recovery act does not affect nor can it come to the aid of these workers," said Mr. Green. "They are the employes of a common carrier and common carriers are excluded from this act. On the other hand, it seems that the Pullman Co. escapes the jurisdiction of the emergency railroad transportation act on the theory that it is not a carrier by railroad."

Mr. Green revealed that a petition disclosing the condition of Pullman workers has been given to President Roosevelt by the Sleeping Car Porters Union. Among the "appalling recitals" of that petition, Mr. Green cited the "computation of compensation." He pointed out that George and Georgina are paid, not on the basis of hours, but on service-miles. They get nothing for the work they do when the train is in the station, though their actual hours on duty may total 77 a week, or almost twice the maximum permitted in most NRA codes.

As to sleep, Mr. Green tells of one porter who makes two round trips out of one city twice a week, which gives him just five hours' sleep in four nights.

"Such sleep as is obtained," says the labor leader, "must be taken on the benches of smoking and wash rooms, with car temperature very low during the winter nights, and should he be caught asleep during the day, he is subject to discharge."

Harold Evans (inset) was killed early yesterday when he lost control of the automobile he was driving on Mount Vernon Memorial highway and it struck a group of trees on one of the highway "islands." Sergt. H. T. Miskell is shown examining the wrecked car and the trees broken off when struck by it.

Autoist Killed; Hits Mt. Vernon Road "Island"

Companion Hurt, Tragedy Climaxes Long List of Crashes on Highway.

Swerving his speeding machine to avoid striking an "island" in the center of Mount Vernon Memorial highway, a chauffeur was killed and his companion severely injured in a crash shortly before dawn yesterday.

Harold Evans, driving a large sedan owned by John S. Bennett, superintendent of the Central Union Mission, died two hours after being removed from the wreckage. William McClure, an employe of the mission, suffered severe lacerations.

There were no witnesses to the accident, which occurred about 1 mile below Alexandria. As reconstructed by park police, Evans was driving toward Washington at a fast rate when he became confused by the long and narrow "island" which suddenly loomed out of the darkness. He swerved sharply to the right, lost control and the car careened back into the island. Through soft mud it raced about 150 feet, then crashed into clump of tall gum trees.

Trees Knocked Down.

Two of the trees, one about 18 inches in diameter and 30 feet tall and the other slightly smaller, were leveled by the impact. Another was badly damaged.

A story published exclusively in The Washington Post last Tuesday called attention to the large number of accidents on the boulevard blamed on Memorial Circle, at the southern limits of Alexandria, which presents the same dangers as the islands or center parking. Since its appearance, C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, has ordered park police to submit a complete list of accidents since the road was opened almost two years ago. The data will be used to guide the parks office in remedying the condition.

Idle French Boatmen Move Into City Hall

Compiegne, France, Jan. 14 (AP).—Sixty unemployed canal boat pilots have been encamped in the city hall of Longueil-Annel since Friday, demanding financial relief.

Granted permission to hold a meeting in the hall, they decided to stay and commandeered firewood. From time to time the men sent out for food. Gendarmes today decided to eject them tomorrow.

Milkman Saves Three From Fire in Home

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 14 (AP).—One woman was burned severely and another woman and a boy were overcome by smoke in a fire in their home here. They were saved when routed by a milkman.

Mrs. Lola Rawlings, 29, suffered burns about the face and arms. Her son, Caesar, 10, and Miss Emma Bird, 27, were overcome.

Caucus Tonight Forces Issue On Patronage

Democrats Irked by Lack of Jobs, Plan Plea to President.

More than 230 Democratic members of the House of Representatives will attend a party caucus on the Hill tonight "to put the President right on matters of patronage."

Dissatisfaction over Federal appointments brought this semblance of revolt, on the heels of the desertion of 84 Democrats who voted against a majority gag rule in the House last Thursday.

While Representative Terry Carpenter of Nebraka, who initiated a petition for the caucus, reiterated last night that it should not be construed as an anti-Administration move, he admitted that President Roosevelt's apparent deafness to House recommendations on appointments led to the decision to force the issue.

An attendance of about 75 per cent of the Democrats in the House is expected tonight, he said.

A committee will be sent to the White House to place "the exact situation" before the President.

Appointments in Governmental departments, "particularly the Farm Credit Administration," are to come under fire of dissatisfied Democrats. In the case of the Farm Credit Administration, Democratic Senators as well as Representatives are disgruntled over the appointment of Gov. W. I. Myers. Senatorial resentment took the form of failure of the Senate Banking and Currency Commitee to approve the farm bank bond bill, despite President Roosevelt's specific request.

Many persons out of sympathy with the President's recovery program have been brought into the Farm Credit Administration through Myers' "over-conscientious" appointments, Representative Carpenter charged, adding the House is "doing the President a favor" by bringing such mattersand its members' urgent need for patronage—to his attention.

Mrs. Lawrence Fails to Pick Thug's Picture

Description of $15,000 Loot Is Given by Matron.

Searching files of the police rogues' gallery, Mrs. Mortimer Lawrence, wealthy Washington woman, and her son, Marcus, spent more than an hour at police headquarters yesterday, in an attempt to identify three bandits who Saturday night locked them in a closet and ransacked their Wyoming avenue mansion of cash, jewelry and heirlooms totaling $15,000.

In a parade of notorius and petty criminals they were unable to pick the armed intruders. Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, said Mrs. Lawrence pointed to several as bearing a resemblance to her assailant, a colored man.

Mrs. Lawrence and her son said this man was the only one they saw. A maid, Mary Duskins, told police the other two robbers were white men. The trio appeared at the front door of the Lawrence home, 2131 Wyoming avenue northwest, and entered when it was opened by the maid.

Kept Gun on Maid.

The colored bandit locked Mrs. Lawrence and her son in a closet, while at gun point the other two forced the maid to an upper floor. There they ransacked jewel boxes and bedrooms.

Mrs. Lawrence's partial list of her loss, given police, included:

A lady's pendant chain with three bars set with small diamonds and pearls, value $50; a string of Frederick pearls, double length, value, $200; an oblong jade pendant with yellow gold chain, value, $10; a 24-inch necklace of crystals, value, $50; a bracelet set with five large diamonds and several small diamonds, value, $1,200; diamond dinner ring with diamond set in platinum surrounded by smaller stones and sapphires, value, $3,500; platinum bar pin with small

Experts of Both Parties at Meet

Earlier Conference Wins Snell's Support for Waterway.

(United Press.)

President Roosevelt summoned congressional leaders to two conferences last night, one to consider the general legislative situation and the other to discuss the Administration's monetary and financial legislative on which an important announcement was believed imminent.

All legislation expected to come up in the Senate in the next two weeks was gone over in a two-hour meeting in the President's study attended by Senators Borah (Republican), Idaho; Morris (Republican), Nebraska; Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, and Pittman (Democrat), Nevada. This meeting covered a wide range, from the St. Lawrence waterway treaty to the money situation.

Later in the evening both Republican and Democratic members of the House and Senate Banking and Currency Committees—45 in all—were called to discuss monetary problems, with every indication that the President desired to outline his program, which thus far has been only to a handful of the most intimate Administration advisers.

Borah, Snell for Treaty.

Senator Borah remained at the White House only as long as the St. Lawrence treaty was under discussion at the first conference. He is supporting the President on this issue, both desiring ratification. Minority Leader Snell, of the House, also declared himself tonight for ratification, which is being opposed by some Administration Democrats.

The second conference started shortly before 9 p. m., with several Treasury experts joining the committeemen. No official list of those present was available, but nearly all the members of both House and Senate committees attended and the White House drive was lined with a score of congressional automobiles.

On leaving the conference, Borah indicated that money and the St. Lawrence waterway treaty had

Hines, Railway Leader, Dead

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Walker D. Hines, 63, director general of American railroads from 1919 to 1920, died today in Merino, Italy.

Hines went to Europe last June as head of a mission to study economic rehabilitation of Turkey. He had stopped in Italy for a few months because of ill health.

Death was caused by apoplexy, said a cablegram from Mrs. Hines, who with their daughter, Mrs. Paul Tison, of Darien, Conn., had accompanied the noted attorney and administrator.

Burial will be in Florence, Italy.

Hines, a native of Russellville, Ky., practiced law in Louisville after his graduation from the University of Virginia in 1893. He became general counsel and later chairman of the board of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad.

In 1906 he went to New York, remaining there until he became assistant director general of railroads in 1918.

16 Injured by Bomb Under Lunchroom

Building Partially Wrecked by Dynamite Blast.

Fort Knox, Ky., Jan. 14 (AP).—Sixteen persons were injured today when a dynamite bomb explosion partially wrecked a lunch room at the edge of the Fort Knox Military reservation.

Nelline, 8-year-old daughter of the proprietor, Mrs. Nell Thornberry, narrowly escaped serious injury or death. The explosion was directly below the room in which she was sleeping, and the mattress was believed by investigators to have saved her.

Sheriff H. W. Hines said the explosion was caused by several sticks of dynamite, but the motive was not learned.

Fast Recovery Made by Trade In Australia

Desperate Conditions of 1931 Now Nearly Overcome.

London (U.P.).—Australia in 1931 was in desperate straits. That country today is far advanced on the road to financial and economic recovery.

The southernmost member of the British Commonwealth of Nations was one of the first countries in the world to feel the full effect of the economic upheaval.

In 1928-29 Australia enjoyed a considerable measure of prosperity. Prices for her exportable surplus of products were satisfactory, even though they were then 27 per cent below the peak prices of 1924-25. Her export and import trade in commodities was balanced at approximately $145,000,000, and she was able to meet her obligations for external public and private interest of some $30,000,000 by the amounts she was able to borrow for developmental works.

Hit by World Prices.

At the end of 1929, in the face of the drop in world prices Australia was not in a position to continue buying large quantities of goods overseas if she was to pay her debts. This was especially so because of the cessation of overseas buying.

So the external adjustment necessitated not only the wiping out of an adverse trade balance of over $30,000,000 for the year ended June 30, 1930, but provision had to be made for interest and other obligations overseas of approximately the same amount.

For the year 1931-32 the volume of exports was one-third greater than for the year 1928-29. But though in 1928-29 the value of the exports of merchandise was $138,000,000 in 1931-32 it amounted to only $75,000,000.

Drastic Action.

With such a drop in the value of exports, Australia was faced with the necessity for a drastic restriction of imports and a general revision of the internal position. Premiers of the Commonwealth and states met, drew up a plan and put it into immediate action.

The results of two years' operation of the plan clearly justify the policy, for the overseas credit of the country now stands higher than it ever did. When the plan was put into operation the estimated aggregate deficit of the Commonwealth and states for 1931-32 was $40,000,000. This was reduced to $20,000,000, the Commonwealth actually showing a surplus of $6,500,000.

During the year ended June 30, 1933, the actual aggregate deficit of the Commonwealth and states (which includes the deficit on the railways) was $25,320,000, the Commonwealth having a surplus of $17,500,000. And this surplus was obtained despite the fact that during the year $5,000,000 of taxation was remitted, and $12,500,000 provided from revenue for the relief of primary producers.

Japanese Seek To Control Oil

Government Moves for Virtual Monopoly on Industry.

Tokyo (U.P.).—Plans of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce to place the importation of all petroleum and petroleum products under government control is generally interpreted as the first step in a program to establish a virtual government oil monopoly in Japan.

Representatives of foreign oil companies are watching the progress of the plan with special interest because the adoption of the ministry's control bills may limit competition in the oil business.

Two bills have been prepared for the consideration of the Diet. In general, they provide for government control of all imports and the licensing of all oil enterprises. If these measures are adopted the importers may be compelled to store certain quantities of crude oil under government instructions.

Japan produces only 10 per cent of the petroleum consumed in the empire. Consumption is increasing rapidly and now, it is said, the national defense needs make it imperative to assure that there will be an adequate supply of crude oil for a period of years.

Although the oil program as contemplated does not mean importations from American and British sources will be reduced in the near future, the Ministry of Commerce and Industry is being urged to seek independent sources abroad that are not controlled by the large foreign concerns and thus obtain a supply that can be controlled by Japanese interests.

Unique Paper Offers "Swaps" to Readers

Lowry City, Mo. (U.P.)—A unique newspaper, a monthly publication called the Swapper, is published here by Ralph Hadley.

Advertisements from all over the country list animals, curios, snakes and relics for sale or "to swap." Its reading matter consists of stories of hunting, fishing, trapping and the acters of the old West.

Cotton Buying Is Increased

(Associated Press.)

There is some indication in the cotton trade that profit-taking sales may have filled up the demand enough to cause an easier market.

Purchases for both domestic and foreign consumption showed a decided upturn during the week, particularly export buying for Great Britain, Germany and France.

The average price of middling ⅞-inch cotton moved up to 10.71 cents a pound, compared with 10.37 last week and 6.03 a year ago.

January contracts advanced from 10.42 to 10.90 and March from 10.54-55 to 10.95-99 at New Orleans, while New York boosted similar options from 10.55 to 10.88 and 10.59-60 to 10.99-11.00, respectively.

Leading spot houses said their sales on January 11 to domestic and foreign trade were the largest for any single day in months. March liquidation and realizing was active and well taken and some believed recent sellers for profit were reinstating their lines.

That situation led to suggestions that trade demand may be temporarily filled, although all of 12 market opinions remained bullish.

RFC Loans Authorized For Southern Irrigation

(Associated Press.)

Loans for refinancing several Southern irrigation drainage and levee districts were authorized Saturday by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. They were:

Atkins drainage district, Bishopville, S. C., $31,000; Dillon Catfish drainage district, Dillon, S. C., $24,000; Lake Cormorant drainage district, Hernando, Miss., $280,000; Pompi Lake drainage district, Sledge, Miss., $132,500; Davenport drainage district, Haines City, Fla., $23,600; Chicot County drainage district, Lake Village, Ark., $191,000.

Time Will Reveal Recovery Outcome

Public Spending Viewed as "Pump-Priming."

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 14 (AP).—The success or failure of the Nation's attempt to "prime the business pump" by spending public funds generously will be apparent within the next few months, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co., says today in his monthly business bulletin.

If private funds begin to stream easily and normally through the business pump the object of the priming will be attained, the economist says.

"The business pump has two valves," Col. Ayres says, "one is the new-investment valve, and the other the profit valve. The investment valve is almost closed, and seems to be stuck tight.

"That is a matter for the Congress to investigate thoroughly, promptly, and with no stubborn pride of craftsmanship, for the business pump will not function until that valve is free."

Worry Blamed For Indigestion

Physiologist Advises Big Business Men Learn How to Relax.

Chicago (U.P.).—If you have chronic indigestion and pains in the stomach, it is probably due as much to worry and a sense of responsibility as to anything else. This is the opinion of Dr. A. C. Ivy, professor of physiology in the medical school at Northwestern University.

Such a condition is not incurable, however, Prof. Ivy says. To be sure, if the spirit of responsibility has gained a seemingly unassailable position in your mental being, the road to perfect ease and comfort will be hard. The best way is to forget your worries for brief periods, but even the most serious and stern-minded person can learn to have the "hasta manana" spirit of the native South American, says the professor.

Here's his formula for the road to recovery:

1. Teach yourself to forget your worries and responsibilities for brief periods at least.

2. Learn to relax your body muscles at will.

3. In time of stress or excitement, postpone any eating until calm and the appetite are returned.

In commenting on the first maxim of his code, Prof. Ivy points out that, while it is important to take yourself seriously, you should not permit the idea to take complete charge. You can learn, he says, to forget responsibility even as you can learn to shoulder it.

Body of Lamar Lies Unclaimed

"Wolf of Wall Street's" Daughter Will Not Attend Rites.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—The body of David Lamar, "Wolf of Wall Street," lay unclaimed in the city morgue today as an autopsy showed that heart disease had caused his death in a $17.50-a-week hotel room.

Pittsfield, Mass., Jan. 14 (AP).—Dorothy Lamar, 24-year-old daughter of David Lamar, said today she did not plan to attend funeral services for her father.

Miss Lamar conducts a tea room at Lanesboro, near here, at a spot where her father spent some summers. She said she had not communicated with her father for 14 years and knew nothing of his recent affairs.

In 1924, Mrs. Marie Lamar, Dorothy's mother, divorced Lamar on the grounds of desertion and she was given the custody of Dorothy.

Frogs Drove Girl Through Windshield

Magna, Utah (U.P.).—No bus is large enough to hold both Mimie Stewart and frogs. She proved it when a collection of frogs escaped from their box in a high school bus.

With a shriek, Miss Stewart dived directly through the windshield and landed at the side of the road. Although the machine was traveling at a fair rate of speed and the windshield was completely shattered, the girl was uninjured.

Police Bloodhounds Catch Texas Nudist

Officers set the baying hounds on trail after women of the vicinity had complained of a nude man seen near the highways.

Miguel Angel, 25, was brought to bay. Although fully clothed when officers arrived to call off the dogs, Angel pleaded guilty as the nudist advocate and was fined $100 and costs.

Mind Slips

Police Seek Identity of Youth With Amnesia.

San Francisco, Jan. 14 (AP).—With a necktie purchased in Los Angeles, a shirt from Minneapolis and a suit from New York as clews, police today were attempting to identify a blond young man held as an amnesia victim.

Showing an aptitude for psychology and philosophy, but unable to recall his name or address, he was take nto police headquarters.

"San Francisco is strange to me," he said. "I recallthinking of my past life and of unpleasant incidents in it and from then on my thoughts couldn't connect."

In his pocket was a notebook. Checking a telephone number in it, police called Hollywood and were told by a Miss Lyda Schenck she believed the young man formerly had an apartment near hers and he was a member of a wealthy Boston family.

He said that while the company refused to accept his resignation, he was given a leave of absence and spent a year in a sanatorium. Recently, he said, he returned to the company at a salary of $400 per month.

"As to your questions," he wrote to the committee, "as to whether I have received or been allotted for services any option, rights, bonuses, gratuities, or stock in connection with any aviation corporation, the answer is unreservedly 'no,' and this includes my wife or any other person.

"I have never made any political contribution.

"I did at one time in 1929, as an investment from my own savings, buy in the open market about 350 shares in the Western Air Express and subsequently sold them.

"During this period of the mail contract I did not even hold this small interest, nor have I held any since.

"I have no other financial relations with the industry in any form. If the committee has any other questions, I shall be available to answer them."

Ornithologists Watch For White Blue Jay

The freak was seen recently by Prof. Carl S. Hoar, of the biology department of Williams College, at Williamstown. Accompanied by an apparently normal mate, the bird was in an apple orchard behind Hoar's laboratory. He described it as of a pale gray or dusty white, with a dark streak running back from the eye and darker tail feathers.

Flowers Defy Coast Winter.

Florence, Oreg. (U.P.).—Oregon coast vegetation has defied winter. While rains descended and a terrific storm roared off of the sea, residents picked flowers from their gardens. Dandelions and rhododendrons, originally spring flowers, are blooming near here.

Wheat Closes On High Level

Nation's Monetary Outlook Called Aid; Oats and Corn Advance.

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP).—Grain traders focused attention sharply today on reports the Federal Treasury may soon possess an addition of more than 4 billion dollars not heretofore credited.

Likelihood of such an addition is given much publicity here as being a probable result of expected devaluing and stabilizing of the dollar, with the Government acquiring title to all gold stocks, including those of the Reserve bank system.

Latest advances in wheat prices are ascribed largely by grain traders to expectance of Administration measures of this character.

Compared to a week ago, wheat Saturday morning showed 2⅛ to 3 cents a bushel advance, with corn ⅞ to 1⅛ up; oats, ⅞ to 1⅛ advanced, and provisions varying from 15 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Listed by some leading trade specialists as chief among bullish factors of the grain market situation proposed dollar devaluing is supplemented by critical aspects of the domestic wheat crop outlook, especially in the Southwest. Because of prolonged dry weather, actual deterioration of the new winter crop there is now officially asserted, and the crop situation promises to loom large hereafter as a price influence, far ahead of the usual time. Conditions east of the Missouri River are reported as having benefited by recent rainfalls, but the surplus wheat east of the Rockies is raised mainly in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska.

Dr. Wynekoop Waits on Death

Insists She's Dying, But Protests Delay of Murder Trial.

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP).—Dr. Alice Wynekoop today said she believed she was dying.

Victim last night of a severe heart attack—the fourth she has suffered since she was confined to the jail infirmary after her arrest on charges of slaying her daughter-in-law, Rheta, 23—the 62-year-old physician rallied to medical treatment.

Despite her physical condition, she enjoined Dr. Francis McNamara, jail physician, against attempting to obtain a postponement of the trial.

"There must be no postponement of the trial," she said. "I shall be able to go through it. I know that I am dying, but you shall not stop the trial."

Meanwhile preparations for reopening the trial tomorrow were continued. Before convening of court, prosecution and defense attorneys will confer with Dr. McNamara to determine if Dr. Wynekoop is able to appear.

Swiss Divided By Alien Issue

New President, Member of Anti-Foreign Party, Is Second Youngest.

Berne, Switzerland (U.P.).—Switzerland's new president, M. Marcel Pilet-Golaz, is the second youngest man ever to head the tiny Helvetian republic. He is 44.

In 1880 the Swiss Federal Assembly broke all traditions by electing a 36-year-old statesman, M. Numa Droz, as its president. Swiss presidents are elected annually from among the seven members of the federal council.

The new president, who succeeds Dr. Edmund Schulthess, is a member of a party (Radical Democrat), which favors restricting the number of foreigners who are allowed to live in Switzerland. Their program, however, is not pushed ruthlessly because of the great number of foreigners forced to live in Switzerland because of the League of Nations, and some 30 other international organizations, in Geneva.

M. Pilet-Golaz was born at Cossonay, in the Canton of Vaud, on December 31, 1889. After studies at Lausanne, Leipsig and Paris he obtained his doctorate in civil law in 1912. He practiced law before and during the World War. He is a lieutenant colonel in Switzerland's civilian army.

Extortion Call Traps Suspect

Youth Arrested on Visit to Oil Official After $25,000 Demand.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—The arrest of a youth who said he was Joseph Barrett, 22, of Bayonne, N. J., on a charge of attempted extortion of $25,00 from G. H. Van Sendin, vice president of the Shell Union Gas & Oil Co., became known today.

Barrett was arrested last night in Van Sendin's apartment by detectives and Federal agents and held under the "Lindbergh law."

Van Sendin said that on January 6 he received the following letter:

"We want $25,000. You know, accidents can happen. It's best to do as you are told. We mean business. If you notify the police it means death."

The letter gave instructions for placing a newspaper advertisement to be signed "Bruce H.," with which Van Sendin complied. On January 9 he received another letter acknowledging having seen the ad, and closing:

"We'll call for the money Saturday night."

Barrett asked at the desk for Van Sendin. He was told to go right up. Van Sendin handed him a package and, as the youth was about to leave, the agents and police seized him.

Mt. Vernon Road 'Island' Crash Fatal

placed at either end of the circle to supplement the two reflectorsfi which catch the rays of the motorist's headlights. Only reflectors guard the islands. There are about 10 of the islands between Arlington Memorial Bridge and Mount Vernon.

Boulevard Unlighted.

The boulevard has been unlighted since July 1, to save $25,000, the annual cost of illumination. Most of the accidents have occurred at more heavy fogs rising from the Potomac.

Collisions with the islands and Memorial Circle have become so frequent in the last few months park police take them as a matter of course. Yesterday afternoon a car bumped into the triangle on the noth side of the circle, causing $15 landscaping damages.

While a study is being made to reduce driving hazards—removal of the circle and islands has been adovcated as the only thorough remedy—police will redouble efforts to cut down speeding, Finnan said last night. Here, too, the department is handicaped by economies, for only four privates and one sergeant patrol the entire strip from Washington to Mount Vernon during the three 8-hour shifts.

Accidents Listed.

Police records are studded with minor and major collisions in which the center parkings or circles have been held responsible. Three persons were killed a few weeks ago in a crash at the "island" near Nortons Lane. Here are a few "briefs" from the police book:

Car struck curb around Memorial Circle.

Pedestrian struck by car near Memorial Circle.

Car making "U" turn around center parking at Norton's Lane was struck by car going straight through.

Evans' Mother Notified.

Sergt. L. G. Purtlebaugh and Private W. E. Freeman, who arrived at the scene of yesterday's fatal crash a few minutes after it occurred, found McClure feebly trying to pull Evans from the machine as flames began to envelope the wreckage. The policemen took both men to Alexandria hospital, where the chauffeur died. His companion was released after treatment.

Evans, whose address was given as 613 C street northwest, was a native of Cumberland, Md. His mother there was notified by the Central Union Mission. Mr. Bennett was in New York at the time.

John P. Phillips, United States marshal in Alexandria, said no inquest would be necessary.

Von Papen Likens Nazi Move To Pronouncement of Pontiff

'Quadregesimo Anno' Held to Be Fulfilled by Hitler.

Gleiwitz, Germany, Jan. 14 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler's Nazi program was compared today with ideas expressed by Pope Leo XIII in his "quadragesimo anno" message to the world.

Speaking before a Catholic labor organization, Franz von Papen, vice chancellor of Germany, said Nazi and Christian principles were closely comparable. He announced he was speaking "in the name of German Catholicism."

"Wherever we look we see happy harmony and complete understanding between the Quadragesimo Anno and Nazi politics," said Von Papen, continuing:

"The third Reich under the leadership of Chancellor Hitler is the first state in the world in which the basic ideas of the pope are not only recognize but, what is more valuable, are being put into practice.

Discussing the complicated church situation in Germany, Von Papen said "no one in Germany thinks seriously of attempting to create a national church."

The speaker sounded what was interpreted in some quarters as a warning to "hotheads" to keep their hands off the German youth movement when he said "the church can never relinquish the confessional training and rearing of its youth."

Mme. Lupescu's Flight From Carol Is Denied

London, Jan. 14 (AP).—The Rumanian Legation today denied a published story that Mme. Magda Lupescu, for whom King Carol once renounced the throne, had arrived in London secretly last night and planned to go to northern England.

She is in Bucharest, the legation said.

Storm Lashes South England

Channel Service Halted; Liner Unable to Land; Fishermen Missing.

London, Jan. 14 (AP).—The hardest storm of winter whipped over southern England and Wales early today, leaving a trail of wreckage. Shipping in the Channel and the North Sea encountered difficulties.

The gale reached 80 miles an hour at Plymouth and 60 miles in London. The Battleship Nelson was unable to leave Portsmouth to join her home fleet and will make the trip tomorrow.

Some cross-Channel ships conceled their trips. The liner Lafayette was unable to land 24 passengers from New York at Plymonth and proceeded direct to Le Havre.

Two men and two women, clad only in night clothes, were forced to jump into the sea from a yacht which broke anchor at Bembridge. They were rescued by coast guards. The boat was grounded.

3 Marines Injured In Auto Collision

Car Crashes Into Parked Truck in Fog.

Three persons were injured early yesterday on the Richmond-Washington Highway at Pohick Creek, when their automobile crashed into a parked wrecking truck, during a dense fog.

Corporal Leon M. Ellis, Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., received severe lacerations about the head; Corporal William Penninton, also of Quantico, face acerations, and William Detweiler, of Chevy Chase, Md., cuts and brusies. They were given treatment at Fort Humphreys Hospital, Ellis and Pennington, later being removed to Naval Hospital, Washington.

Hunger Strikers Give Up Fasting

Mr. and Mrs. Noulens Feel Protest Is Fruitless.

Nanking, China, Jan. 14 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Noulens today gave up a hunger strike which they had undertaken as a protest against serving life sentences in a Chinese prison. They were convicted as arch-Communists.

Convinced that Chinese authorities would not yield to their demands for a retrial, the couple decided to give up the fight. The husband, in a serious condition, had fasted 25 days; his wife 17.

Religion in Need Of New Leadership

Pastor Says Time Is Ripe for Modern "Teddy."

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Religion needs a leader—"A Teddy Roosevelt"—to carry it to new spiritual heights, the Rev. Norman V. Peale of the Marble Collegiate Church, said today in a sermon.

"The time is ripe for one of the greatest religious revivals of modern times; the factors are present out of which it would come," said Dr. Peale.

He asserted the church lacked both leadership and virility.

Farm Tax Cut Fight Promised In Richmond

Wide Powers Sought for Governor to Reduce State Expenses.

By Doug Warrenfels.

Richmond, Jan. 14.—Tax relief for farmers will be sought by Democratic leaders soon after the General Assembly returns from a week-end recess tomorrow, it was reported today.

Means of improving economic conditions in rural sections were discussed today by Senator John W. Rust, Fairfax, and Delegate Berkley D. Adams, Red Oak, members of a joint Senate and House committee appointed to study real estate taxes.

C. H. Morrissett, State tax commissioner, intended to review the committee's findings today, but was confined to his home by illness.

May Extend Peery's Powers.

Observers linked prospective farm relief with a movement on foot to have the Legislature grant Governor-elect George C. Peery wide authority to consolidate bureaus, equalize salaries and otherwise trim State expenses.

Politicians predicted economies coupled with anticipated new sources of revenue totaling approximately $3,750,000 should give the new governor funds with which to put through a comprehensive farm relief program, as well as an enlarged school appropriation.

Meanwhile Mr. Peery kept his own counsel. He was busy preparing his inaugural message to be delivered Wednesday after he takes the oath of office.

The Assembly probably will mark time until after the inauguration. Senate and House finance committees will begin joint hearings the next day on liquor-control bills, in hope of passing a control-bill within three weeks.

Real Estate Tax Studied.

Richmond, Jan. 14 (AP).—A demand for further reductions of local taxes on real estate is due before the Virginia General Assembly this week.

As the assemblymen return to the capitol tomorrow for the first full week of the 1934 session the Rust committee, studying the local tax problem, will meet with the hope of putting into final draft its report to the Legislature.

One member of the commission holds the view that real estate should be taxed on its income, or its ability to pay. This recommendation, it is understood will be embodied in a minority report if the committee does not agree to it.

A public hearing on liquor control measures is promised. Probably it will be held Thursday. The redistricting problem will be another subject of the week's discussions, and so will bills of the Senate economy committee, which the committeemen say would save the State approximately $1,000,000, mainly through consolidations and changes in routine bills.

Speaker J. Sinclair Brown will announce the House committees tomorrow, and immediately they will start to work on nearly 100 bills already introduced in the House.

Hitler Is Termed Second Bismarck

Has His 'Greatness,' Roehm Tells Soldiers.

Berlin, Jan. 14 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler was called a "second Bismark" today by Ernst Roehm, minister without portfolio, before the German Front Soldiers League.

"The German people waited under President von Hindenburg's leadership for a day when a new man of Bismarck's greatness would appear," Roehm said. "Hitler came as an unknown soldier, brought comradeship back from the war, and planted it in the hearts of the entire nation."

President von Hindenburg and other high officials attended the meeting.

Strike to Climax Union War Today

40,000 Ordered Out of Mines; Fear Disorders.

Wilkes-Barre, Jan. 14 (AP).—With police units of two counties prepared to suppress disorder, the northern anthracite region tonight closely awaited developments in the impending struggle for mine union supremacy.

The United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, a rival of the United Mine Workers of America, yesterday called the strike in the Scranton and Wilkes-Barre region and fixed 7 a. m. tomorrow for opening the offensive, with picket lines at every mine.

A complete tie-up of every colliery in the Lackawanna and Wyoming valleys, throwing between 30,000 and 40,000 workers into idleness, is the immediate objective.

Man Dies 4 Days After Police Fight

Investigation Under Way at Dover, Del.

Dover, Del., Jan. 14 (AP).—State and county authorities are investigating the sudden death today of D. S. Banning, 36, a garage owner, who fought police last Wednesday while resisting arrest. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

Banning visited the office of Magistrate W. D. Burton last Wednesday in connection with a bill. Magistrate Burton said Banning became abusive and appealed to Chief of Police J. A. Selvy, of Dover, to arrest him.

A fight followed, but the police chief and E. I. Lane, a policeman, succeeded in placing him in jail. Last night Banning became ill.

PWA Grants for Housing Projects Hailed as Step to End Alley Slums

Problem Is Far From Solved, but Start Has Been Made.

[This is the ninth of a series of 10 articles on the hidden slums of Washington.]

By Felix Bruner

With the granting of Public Works Administration funds for two housing projects in Washington, an important step toward alley elimination will have been taken, but the problem by no means will have been solved.

The building of model units by the Federal Housing Corporation to house 900 families should relieve the congestion in some of the alleys, but the program carries with it no positive assurance that the inhabited alleys will not remain inhabited.

Until announcement of the sites for the projects is made, there can, of course, be no estimate of the amount of alley territory that will be cleared. It is assumed the new housing projects will be on the sites of some of the inhabited alleys.

But City Has 200 Alleys.

But Washington has nearly 200 of such alleys. Under the circumstances, alley elimination can mean only one thing—tearing down alley houses and replacing them with some other form of development, such as garages and playgrounds.

The power of the Federal Housing Corporation in respect to slum clearance is broad. The purposes of the corporation as set forth in the certificate of incorporation are "to construct, reconstruct, low cost housing projects or slum clearance projects, apartments, houses, homes and structures of every nature and kind." Thus the power is present. It is limited only by the amount of money available.

The committee, headed by Frederic Delano, with Mrs. Roosevelt as honorary chairman, will have won a real victory with the awarding of public works money for the housing projects. They will have accomplished the first real alley elimination in Washington in many years. All the members of the committee have done a great deal of work for alley elimination, as has the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Ihlder Devotes Self to Job.

John Ihlder, secretary of the Washington committee on housing, has been devoting nearly all his time to the alley elimination project. Other members of the committee, all of whom deserve credit for their efforts, are Mrs. Anne Archbold, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, the Rev. Robert W. Brooks, James A. Cobb, Clarence Phelps Dodge, Mrs. C. Carroll Glover, jr., Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, Maj. Campbell C. Johnson, Stanton C. Peelle, the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes and J. Bernard Wyckoff.

The report of this committee, suggesting alley improvements, was sent to the Public Works Administration on December 5. Robert D. Kohn, director of housing for the Public Works Administration, took a personal interest in the report and it has been subjected to considerable study. A number of alterations in the plans have been made since they were submitted.

The Washington housing project is expected to be a model for the rest of the country. It was planned from the beginnng that Washington should take the leadership in the Government housing program, but there have been a number of delays, some of them unavoidable.

Profiteering Fought.

It has been necessary to surround the housing program for this city with considerable secrecy. It was necessary once for Secretary Ickes to warn that unless the activities of persons seeking to make a profit from the project ceased the project would be dropped entirely.

For this reason it has been necessary to move carefully in making options for property on which the new housing is to be constructed and to keep secret the exact location of the housing. These options have now been secured and an announcement of their location can be expected at almost any time.

Of course, even after model houses are constructed, there is no way to force alley dwellers to move into them. The only way to force removal of alley dwellers is to tear down the alley houses. While some of these will be razed in the course of the housing construction, there still remains the necessity for obtaining legal sanction for removal of all such dwellings.

Bill Slated for Passage.

As has been pointed out before, such sanction is provided in the Capper-Norton bill, which has passed the Senate and is now up for consideration before the House District Committee. Representative Mary Norton, chairman of that committee, expressed her complete sympathy with The Washington Post's campaign for alley elimination and promised active cooperation in bringing about passage of the bill.

The District Commissioners have expressed their approval of the measure. There is the matter of Government economy involved. Government economy moves in peculiar ways. It cracks down on District appropriations as such, but loosens up on relief grants. The passage of the alley bill in the House would result in possibly more employment for a longer time and more actual relief than a public works grant for housing, but the distinction is that the bill carries an appropriation of $500,000 to be used as the start of a revolving fund, and the housing program carries an allotment.

However, the appropriation provision in the alley bill does not provide for a direct appropriation from District funds, but for the use of money from the unexpended balance in the Treasury of the United States Housing Corporation, an organization formed during the war to help relieve the housing shortage in Washington. This fact should eliminate the only objection to the bill that has arisen.

Troops Rout Pro-Hitlerites

Austrian Sport Gathering Dispersed When Crowd Sang Nazi Airs.

Vienna, Jan. 14 (AP).—Troops were called out today to disperse a Tyrolese sports gathering near Innsbruck when several thousand spectators persisted in shouting "Heil Hitler!" and singing Nazi songs.

The meeting today was preliminary to the opening of the international sports week January 20.

The sports week has not yet been called off, but authorities, alarmed at the tendency of spectators at all sporting events to turn them into Nazi demonstrations, were reported considering doing so.

When an Italian boxer appeared in an Innsbruck ring yesterday he greeted fans with a Fascist salute and the whole audience arose and, returning the salute, let out a joyous shout of "Heil Hitler" and sang the German anthem.

It was considered possible that all athletic gatherings might be prohibited in Austria.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

The Valley of the Shadow of Death.

It is said that on the night before he was murdered Julius Caesar was talking with some friends about death; and on being asked what kind of death he thought most desirable, he answered, A Sudden Death. Many agree with him, thinking that it is fortunate to die in one's sleep or with suddenness, so that one escapes both the pain of a last illness and the fear of dissolution. Yet the Prayer-book says: "From battle murder, and from sudden death, Good Lord, deliver us." I imagine there are some who repeat that petition who do not really wish it to be granted. The reason for the petition is, of course, that it was once almost universally believed (and there are many who believe it now) that it was essential to be properly prepared for death in one's last moments. Hamlet certainly believed this, for he refused to kill his murderous and adulterous uncle, when he had a good opportunity, because at that moment his uncle was praying. That was not an excuse; it was a reason whose soundness would have been immediately understood and approved by an Elizabethan audience.

Now Robert Browning, 25 years before his death, wrote a poem in which he expressed earnestly the wish that he might be spared none of the physical pain or of the mental terror preceding death He wished to be conscious during all the hours and minutes preceding his final departure. His reason for it was that he had always been interested in every one of life's experiences and adventures; he certainly did not wish to miss the last one, the most exciting of all. Well, he had his wish; he was conscious up to the last moment and died of a disease in his throat—bronchitis This is the most audacilous and most inspiring poem I know on Death.

PROSPICE

For death?—to feel the fog in my throat,
The mist in my face,
When the snows begin and the blasts denote
I am nearing the place,
The power of the night, the press of the storm,
The post of the foe,
Where he stands, the Arch Fear in a visible form,
Yet the strong man must go:
For the journey is done and the summit attained,
And the barriers fall,
Though a battle's to fight ere the guerdon be gained,
The reward of it all,
I was ever a fighter, so—one fight more,
The best and the 'last!
I would hate that death bandaged my eyes, and forbore,
And bade me creep past.
No! Let me taste the whole of it, fare like my peers,
The heroes of old,
Bear the brunt, in a minute pay glad life's arrears
Of pain, darkness and cold.
For sudden the worst turns the best to the brave,
The black minute's at end,
And the elements' rage, the fiend-voices that rave,
Shall dwindle, shall blend,
Shall change, shall become first a peace out of pain,
Then a light, then thy breast,
O thou soul of my soul! I shall clasp thee again,
And with God be the rest!

Vallee Believed New York Bound

Process Server Fails to Find Him in West.

Los Angeles, Jan. 14 (AP).—Rudy Vallee was missing from his usual Hollywood and Los Angeles stopping places today and a process server said he believed the singing orchestra leader was en route to New York.

Vallee left a Hollywood studio Saturday morning, H. M. Fleming, process server, said he learned, by motor car for Winslow, Ariz. Fleming said he believed Vallee boarded a train there en route East.

Accompanying Vallee was his secretary and Hyman Bushel, New York attorney, who flew West recently after Vallee's estranged wife, Fay Webb Vallee, filed a separate maintenance action.

Scientists Reported Safe.

Tokyo, Jan. 14 (AP).—A Rengo (Japanese) Press Agency dispatch today said Dr. Fujio Honma and Dr. Tadaichi Matsumoto, distinguished volcanologists, who were reported missing following upon eruptions on Kuchinoerabu Island, were found safe.

900 Families Will Get New Homes Under Initial Outlay.

However, the appropriation provision in the alley bill does not provide for a direct appropriation from District funds, but for the use of money from the unexpended balance in the Treasury of the United States Housing Corporation, an organization formed during the war to help relieve the housing shortage in Washington. This fact should eliminate the only objection to the bill that has arisen.

Yale Discusse a New Coach.

Conservative (looking up from his copy of the Alumni Weekly)—What is all this absurd talk about getting a coach who holds no Yale diploma?

Old Grad—We have the quaint notion that it would be nice to see a Yale football victory.

Conservative—I saw a Yale football victory once. I remember it distinctly.

Young Grad (startled)—When?

Conservative—Don't be meticulous.

• • • •

Undergraduate—We think we have material at Yale for a football team that will knock the tar out of any college team in the East.

Conservative—Don't be vulgar!

• • • •

Old Grad—It certainly seems to us that Yale should not hesitate to get the best coach available in its determination to turn out a winning team.

Conservative—Victory in itself is not important.

Voice from the Accounting Department—The receipts at the Yale Bowl last year showed a falling off of more than • • • Conservative (sharply)—Don't interrupt. As I was saying, victory is in itself a minor matter. Football is primarily a sport for the development of boys' bodies. What does it really matter if a Yale football team wins or not?

Voice from the Accounting Department—The attendance at the major games during the past two years showed a drop of . . .

Conservative—Quiet, please! The attempted allusions to money and attendance are most annoying. Let me see . . . where were we?

Old Grad.—We were demanding that Yale retain an outside coach of high standing and restore its ancient prestige on the gridiron.

Second Old Grad—We want Kipke!

• • • •

Bursar (sadly)—I remember the time when the public fought to pay five dollars a ticket for the big Yale games. Back in 1926 we took in . . .

Conservative—This is not a financial matter.

Bursar—That's your story and I'm stuck with it.

Conservative—Yale should stick to its traditions. It has always retained a Yale man as coach. There are Yale men competent to teach our boys winning football . . .

Old Grad—In what country are they hiding?

A Sphomore—It seems to me that this debate is out of bounds on the 35-yard line. What we are interested in is beating Harvard and Princeton. Last season we . . .

Conservative—There are more important things in Yale football than beating either Harvard or Princeton.

Young Grad—We want Kipke!

• • • •

Bursar (very sadly)—The total attendance at the bowl last fall for the Princeton game was only 42,000. It used to draw 80,000 cash customers. I remember when . . .

Conservative—I was at the bowl for the Princeton game last season. I thought it very comfortable. There was an atmosphere of exclusiveness and refinement. One had the impression of being alone.

Old Grad—It was no impression.

Young Grad—We want Kipke.

• • • •

Conservative—What is this constant clamor for Kipke? What, if I may ask, is Kipke? I inquired for it at the library and nobody had heard of it.

A Junior—It comes from Michigan.

Conservative—I had an aunt who lived in Michigan.

Bursar—Who?

Young Grad—Kipke!

(The meeting breaks up in a sort of daze, after which things continue at Yale without change.)

"Bombing Tests Fatal to Ducks"—Headline. As Charlie Mack, killed in a recent auto accident, would have remarked in his old vaudeville act, "They found that out."

"Arriving late, the officer was suspended as tipsy."—News item. That just goes to show that we are in a new era. In the boom days, conclusive proof of intoxication was arrival on any job on time or slightly ahead of it.

$116,000,000 Seen In State Rum Taxes

Total Will Grow as More Control Bills Pass.

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP).—Wet States expect to collect more than $116,000,000 by liquor taxes in 1934.

This is gauged by receipts since legalization of beer last April, and repeal of prohibition last month.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar 509 Clarendon, Va.

A Red Cross membership of more than 1,000 in Arlington County is indicated by final roll call returns, George A. Collier, chairman, reported last night. While the roll fell short of the county's quota Chairman Collier commended the various community chairmen and other workers in the drive.

Several communities, including Rosslyn, Glencarlyn and Arlington Ridge gained over last year's enrollment.

Despite reduced funds, compared with recent years, every effort will be made to carry on the Red Cross program, Collier said.

William C. Hull, former president of the Arlington County Civic Federation, and county representative in the Inter-Federation Conference, is slated for the conference chairmanship at the annual election tonight. Hull has been vice chairman for two years.

Hull, a life-long resident of the county, is former chairman of the executive committee of the Arlington County Federation.

The executive committee of the federation will meet at the home of Hugh McGrath at 8 p. m. today.

The new officers of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Asrociation will be installed tomorrow at 8 p. m. President Julian E. Tapp will announce appointmetn of all standing committees.

Miss Elizabeth Beale, principal of the Cherrydale School, will be principal speaker at the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association tonight. Dr. Thomas Pumphrey, county school dentist, also will speak.

Two Badly Injured When Autos Crash

Women in Hospital; Man to Face Charges.

Mrs. Ernest A. Loveless, 39, and Mrs. W. B. Kent, of Clinton, Md., were seriously injured yesterday when Mr. Loveless's automobile collided with a machine driven by Frank P. Avalear, of 3110 Hawthorne street northwest, a Waldorf, Md., according to Maryland State police.

Mrs. Loveless, received a possible fracture of the skull, while Mrs. Kent sustained a fracture of the hip. Mr. Loveless escaped injury.

Mr. Avalear, police said, failed to see a stop sign while entering Washington road Leonardtown road at Waldorg, and struck the Loveless machine, police said that Avalear would be summoned for trial today. He took the women to Providence Hospital.

Unused Marriage Licenses Sought

Clerk Must Account for Two Permits.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Court Clerk Clark M. Smith, Winchester, wants to know what has become of several marriage licenses he issued.

On June 4, Andrew M. Meadows and Miss Olive A. Mead, of Greenwich, Conn., were licensed to marry. July 8, a nuptial permit was issued Loma A. Whitacre and Miss Elizabeth Oates, of Loom, W. Va. Neither permit has been returned.

NO END of BOOKS

Shakespeare and Folger

By Theodore Hall.

When in the fall of 1874 a certain young man entered Amherst College on a scholarship, there was no blowing of earthly trumpets. Four years later he graduated, and began to earn his way toward a law degree at Columbia University by a part-time clerkship in the office of Charles Pratt, an oil refiner. The LL. B., cum laude, came in 1881. He stayed on with the oil business. Twenty-seven years later he was elected a director of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. In 1911, when the Supreme Court ordered John D. Rockefeller to dissolve his far-flung empire of oil, this same gentleman was made president of the Standard Oil Co. of New York. He held that post for 12 year; for 5 years more he was chairman of the board. Then he retired and in 1930, two years later, he died.

That was a rise to fortune peculiarly American. Yet I doubt very much that, if this summary had compassed the whole of the gentleman's life, he would now be well remembered. The latest popular study of the oil business, John T. Flynn's vast narrative of the rise of the Rockefeller interests entitled, "God's Gold," does not once mention Henry Clay Folger.

We shall have to go back to the beginning again. While still an undergraduate Folger won two prizes in rhetoric. More important, he heard Emerson lecture and fell under the spell of that fervid intellect. So, when a little later, he came upon some words of Emerson upon the greatness of Shakespeare, Folger was seized with a passion for the Bard which time would make life-long. He was still poor, but he bought a modest 13-volume set and read it nightly. A few months after his marriage in 1885 he bought a copy of Halliwell-Phillips' reduced facsimile of the First Folio. With this book, at a cost of $1.25, a minor clerk in the oil business laid the corner stone of a library which Dr. Rosenbach, the great bibliophile, was to declare in 1932 "the finest collection of Shakesperiana that the world has known."

• • • •

The Folger Shakespeare Library has just issued a tall and elegant volume ($2.50, postage extra) describing the library building at East Capitol and Second streets southeast, and the phenomenal treasures housed there. Supreme Court Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, chairman of the committee of Amherst College trustees who administer the library, and William Adams Slade, the library director, write the foreword. Joseph Quincy Adams, Shakespearean scholar, gives an excellent running commentary on the Folger collection. The architect of the building, Paul Philippe Cret, states briefly the problems which confronted him and their solution. The volume ends with 36 illustrations, including floor plans, transverse sections and a wealth of exceedingly handsome photographs showing the interior and exterior of the library. As a whole, the volume stands as the finest commemoration in book form I can imagine of Henry Clay Folger's great gift to the American Nation.

• • • •

Dr. Rosenbach's unqualified superlative needs only a handful of examples to be quite apparent. Of the 200-odd specimens of the 1623 First Folio of Shakespeare known in the world, the largest number in any one place ouside the Folger is possessed by the British Museum—five. The Folger has no less than 79. Of all the four folios, the collection contains about 200 items, which, as Mr. Adams says, "in numbers and richness is not elsewhere remotely approached, and can never be equaled."

The two only known copies of an attempted "collection" of the plays made by Pavier in 1916 are in the Folger. Of Shakespearean quartos, the library holds "the greatest collection ever gathered"—the words of Dr. Rosenbach again. The only known copy of the 1594 edition of "Titus Andronicus," the earliest published of the plays, is in the Folger. The same tenor—"unique; one other copy in the world, &c."—runs through the description of the nondramatic works collected.

To go on is to be swamped with superlatives, and embarrassed by the astounding fullness of the collection. Early manuscripts of the plays (there is no work of Shakespeare in the world written in the author's handwriting), attributed signatures (all absolutely authentic ones are in official archives in England), Shakespearian deeds and titles, portraits, source-books from which Shakespeare took material and books alluding to Shakespeare before 1700 (a collection all but complete)—in these the Folger is unrivaled.

Not only Shakespeare but his times are fully represented. All the Tudor-Stuart writers are there in abundance (the Ben Jonson collection "said to be the finest in existence," the Bacon collection "the most extensive and valuable ever gathered"). Shakespearian music, Shakespeare on the stage (250,000 play-bills, for instance, and mementoes of the great actors), all the modern editions of Shakespeare in English and foreign languages, association copies (editions belonging to everyone, seemingly, from Queen Victoria to General Tom Thumb)—it is enough to make the head swim.

For 40 years, with rare and informed taste—an increasingly inexhaustible purse, and the loving aid of his wife, Folger gathered one of the very few supreme literary collections in existence. Housed now in its beautiful building completed in 1932, with an Elizabethan stage to illustrate how the plays of Shakespeare were performed, the Folger Library stands as a monument to what one man can do with persistence and passion. That its exhibits are open to anyone who will take the trouble to walk inside, that its unique and wholly priceless treasures may be studied by any scholar genuinely interested, are perhaps the most astonishing points of all. This modern Medici opened wide his door.

Socialists Seek Welfare Power For Congress

Narrow Decision by Court on Minnesota Law Alarms Them.

(Associated Press.)

Alarmed at the narrow margin by which the Supreme Court last week sustained Minnesota's emergency mortgage law, the public affairs committee of the Socialist party yesterday announced it would seek a Constitutional amendment giving Congress power to enact social welfare legislation.

A statement signed by Norman Thomas said the amendment, already drafted, would be urged upon President Roosevelt and Progressives in both Houses. It has been scheduled for introduction this week.

Citing the Supreme Court's 5-to-4 decision on the Minnesota law, the committee said it had allayed temporarily fears that emergency legislation would be declared unconstitutional.

"However," the committee added, "the close margin by which the court sustained the law and the views of Constitutional lawyers who have studied the opinion to the effect that it does not necessarily validate the more disputable features of the Federal legislation, reveal the potential danger involved in having the court determine the fate of legislation enacted in response to the people's will."

The proposed amendment does not provide for specific legislation.

Ford May Buy Home of Authors of McGuffey Readers

Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Blayney, the latter a second cousin of William Holmes McGuffey, one of the authors of the McGuffey Readers of public school fame, disclosed a recent visit of Henry Ford to the old Holmes homestead, the birthplace of McGuffey, in West Finley Township in Ohio, during which Ford placed an option on the place. The Blayneys own and live on the farm. Photo shows the house in which the author was born and which is now crumbling in ruins, with most of its timbers remaining intact, which observers say could easily be reconstructed in its original form.

Impartial CWA Grants Claimed

Half of $3,300,000,000 Spent on Local Jobs, Agency Says.

(Associated Press.)

Replying to charges that the bulk of public works funds had been spent on Federal projects, the Public Works Administration last night said one-half of the $3,300,000,000 fund had gone directly to local communities.

The $400,000,000 of civil works money was classed as much a non-Federal project as a Federal one, on the grounds that local bodies disbursed the money. The public works organization said non-Federal, civil works, housing and road building projects had received $1,718,473,598.

The $400,000,000 of public works money allocated to States for road building also was classed as non-Federal, on the grounds the States chose the highway projects.

Money allocated to specific Government units outside regular Federal units totaled $818,472,598. Out of this fund, 428 waterworks enterprises are to be built, 337 sewer projects and 319 school projects. The remainder will go to communities for power plants, hospitals and other works.

6 Foreigners Held In Soviet Spy Case

Companies Not Involved.

Although the case parallels in one respect the Metropolitan-Vickers affair, those under arrest were held as individuals, and the company as such is not involved.

The firm, which maintains headquarters in Moscow, continues to operate and even now is negotiating a new contract with the Russian government, the old one having expired last summer.

Since no diplomatic relations exist between the Soviet and the Swiss government, the firm operates here as a branch of the German company of the same name, with headquarters at Hamburg.

The company is engaged in certifying cargoes of exports from Russia to all parts of the world, principally grain, lumber and oil. The certification involves the company's guarantee for the quantity and quality of various cargoes, on receipt of which, banks in the countries concerned make immediate settlement instead of waiting for examination of the goods.

Friends Also Arrested.

"We have known these men for many years," an official of the company said today, "and have always had confidence in them. We still have confidence in them."

Three other foreigners employed in Russian industrial plants having no connection with the control company beyond the fact all were friends of Josef Weinzettl, the Austrian, also have been taken into custody on the same charges.

They are Richard Kirschaj, an Austrian; Cictor Wiernann, a German employed in the agricultural machinery factory at Nicolaev on the Black Sea, and Heinrich Karl, a German working in the Nicolaev shipyard.

All those in custody were arrested at their places of employment. Those taken in southern Russia are being held at Kharkov and the others at Moscow. All are married.

Bernhardt's wife was permitted to visit him in pail at Moscow today. It was the first time any outsider has ever been allowed to see any of the prisoners.

The company's offices at Moscow were not raided, and so far as can be ascertained, only the private living quarters of those arrested were subjected to search.

U. S. May Cut Tariffs in Bid For New Trade

settled until a clear decision on national policy has been reached.

Farm to Be Favored.

One of the few things about the forthcoming trade policy which is already clear is that the farm world is to be favored over industry when it comes to promoting exports. The fact that in the bargaining over liquor quotas this country only sought agricultural outlets is significant.

It is also noteworthy that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace frequently refers to the restoration of exports as the easiest of a number of extremely difficult possible solutions to the farm surplus problem. Acreage reduction, voluntary or even compulsory, is but a temporary expedient demanding a fat Treasury and a patient taxpayer. In the long run, payment for nonproduction is unsound, it is generally recognized. Hence the Secretary's interest in other outs.

The line of reasoning followed by the policy makers runs something like this:

In predepression days this country exported 6 to 7 per cent of its industrial production and 17 to 18 per cent of its agricultural. Let us restore this balance. But if we are to export, we must import; the boom period system of lending other countries the money wherewith to purchase our products turned out somewhat unsatisfactorily. By and large, since we must concentrate first and most heavily on agricultural exports, we have got to deal with European nations. (There are exceptions, but the proposition is reasonably accurate.) If these industrial countries are to atbsorb our farm surplus, they must be allowed to sell. Now, what industrial products can we take with the least possible dislocation of our own economic structure? A canvass is now being made to determine the answer to this question.

Counter to Old Theory.

Parenthetically, the emphasis on agricultural exports (to Europe) runs counter to a cherished homily: the oft-repeated assertion that this country's export future lies in South America and the Far East. There is a possibility this statement emanates in the first instance from manufacturing interests, from men who think of exports solely in terms of industrial products.

When the change in foreign commercial policy comes, it is most likely to take the form of revised tariff arrangements. The introduction of the quota system as an integral part of American policy is improbable. With a few exceptions, such perhaps as sugar, an import quota is thought more harmful than beneficial.

Quotas tend to breed importer monopolies, which easily get out of control. France, the home of the quota, is now finding this out. Quotas regularly inspire retaliation, and where a nation has a favorable balance of trade retaliation reacts more harmfully upon the origini imposer of a quota than upon intended victim. Another objection is that somehow or other, international negotiations for quotas usually end up by dealing with a variety of extraneous non-commercial questions. The effort in Congress to hook up defaulting debtors with the liquor tariff question illustrates this. Such injections hinder the exercise o fstraight horse-trading technique.

A presidential suggestion to Congress, designed to result in legislation delegating additional tariff-making powers to the executive, is likely to materialize in the fairly immediate future. Such a step would be but a further development of a trend long detectable in American tariff policy: the surrender of more and more power to the executive branch. This surrender results from a slowly growing awareness that sectionalism inevitably plays so large a role in Congressional tariff making as to obscure the essentials of national interest.

President Roosevelt recently indicated he did not intend to take up the tariff question until after Secretary of State Hull's return from South America. Mr. Hull is expected back the end of the month. The reason for this postponement seems to be the secretary's keen interest in tariff matters, plus the fact much that is contemplated is closely in line with the policy he advocated both in London and Montevideo. The delay also affords the Administration opportunity further to test the temper of Congress on tariffs.

Fundamental in attempting to foresee what is coming, is the clear fact that the men shaping tariff policy are thinking in long-range terms. It is not this year or next that concerns them, so much as the coming decade. This is as true of the suggestion urged upon the Montevideo conference of be-lateral reciprocity treaties as it is of the apparent intention to favor agriculture more heavily than industry.

Steps May Be Only Minor.

It may mean that steps will be taken which, while they seem to be causing serious dislocation to certain angles of the economic structure, will be found, if viewed in terms of a decade, ot be minor adjustments.

There are, for instance, certain products such as manganese and tungsten which are not produced domestically in sufficient quantity to meet the needs of industry. Yet they enjoy high protective tariffs. The result is all consumers pay a heavy tax in increased costs for the sake of relatively small industrial enterprises. Tariff experts claim they know of highly protected industries where consumers pay $100 more than necessary for every dollar of benefit which accures to the domestic producer.

Such situations offer a fruitful field for "minor dislocations" wherewith to recreate an export trade.

Roosevelt, Leaders in Night Parleys; Money Edict Waited been discussed, but would not go into detail.

Senators Norris, Pittman and Harrison remained nearly an hour longer with the President. The whole Legislative situation in the Upper House was discussed. Senator Pittman said, adding that no new decisions were reached on any subject.

Senator Harrison made a similar statement and Norris refused to comment at all. It was obvious that the White House had an injunction of secrecy on all the participants.

White House Silent.

The White House declined to say whether a monetary announcement might be expected at the end of the later meeting, but it was believed some official outline of plans would come within a day or two if not tonight.

Marvin McIntyre, secretary to Roosevelt, said the whole field of "financial legislation" would be reviewed.

Gold Impounding Up.

Included in this general classification is a proposal that the Government impound the $3,600,000,000 worth of gold held in all the Federal Reserve banks throughout the country. The Government then could revaluate the dollar in terms of gold and reap a profit, if the devaluation were 50 per cent, of approximately $4,000,000,000 through the maneuver. This figure includes gold now held by the Treasury, as well as the Reserve bank gold.

Some observers believe this will be the next step in President Roosevelt's monetary program. The Chief Executive has given it considerable study and expressed the opinion Friday that the gold could be seized under the Thomas amendment to the farm bill and that no further empowering legislation would be needed from Congress.

President Cautious.

Congressional leaders in sympathy with the President's money program, however, indicated that because of the importance of such a move the Chief Executive might want "air-tight" assurance of its legality from Capitol Hill through new legislation.

The banking authorities of both houses were called to the conference after the President had conferred at length Saturday with Herman Oliphant, general counsel to Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, and Earle Bailie, former Treasury official and memmer of a New York brokerage house.

Bishop's Fate Put to Hitler

Chancellor Calls Mueller for Talk as Dissent Resounds in Pulpits.

Berlin, Jan. 14 (AP).—The fate of Bishop Ludwig Mueller as Reichsbishop of Germany rested today in the hands of Chancellor Hitler.

The opposition to Mueller agreed to three days of truce as an outcome of a conference with the chancellor, who summoned Mueller to confer with him Wednesday, after which he will decide whether the Reichsbishop must resign.

Freedom of the press in reporting Germany's religious struggle was demanded in a resolution to Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels, which the Pastors Emergency Federation adopted.

In another resolution the federation demanded the reichsbishop's immediate resignation.

The Rev. Martin Niemoeller's acrid protest against Bishop Mueller's dictatorial church decree was read again by federation supporters in pulpits throughout Prussia today.

Police did not interfere with the services.

Myers Announces Plan to Insure Prices.

William I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, announced yesterday a continuation this year of a marketing plan for the wool and mohair clip similar to the one employed in 1933, according to the Associated Press.

He said the plan should assure the industry a much firmer price foundation than might otherwise exist, although it is an effort to prevent unnecessary fluctuations, rather than to control prices.

Avoiding both forced sales and withholding wool and mohair from the market, Growers' Producing and Marketing Associations and the Farm Credit Administration will cooperate to market the clip in response to consumption demand.

CONVICTED

of the murder of Gervase Benham, Cecil Brandt is sentenced to be hanged. According to the evidence brought out at his trial, he had returned unexpectedly to his home (where Mrs. Brandt was alone), found Benham in the study, and killed him. One man alone has the power to intercede for him; England's young Home Secretary, Sir Humphrey Rossiter. Sir Humphrey declines to do so. The night before the execution—while returning to London following a visit to Lord Keynsham and his sister, Lady Louise, in Norfolk—he is kidnapped by four masked men, led to a gallows and placed on the trapdoor. A noose is thrown about his neck. If (his captors inform him) he will not promise to grant a reprieve to Cecil Brandt, he will die—at once.

Liquor Control Leads Virginia Assembly Fight

Delegates Anxious to Get Rid of It; Revenues Promise Battle.

By J. K. Irving, Jr.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—When the Virginia General Assembly actually gets down to work, which will be Wednesday, there will be plenty to do. A huge stack of raw material is piled up ready for the mill to grind. Much of it is unimportant from any but a local viewpoint, but some is loaded with consequences.

Of the latter the following may be regarded as leading on the legislative calendar: The liquor control plan; bills for reducing the State tax on gasoline and for lowering the charge for automobile license; the move to restore horse racing in the State, with pari mutuel betting; the reapportionment of congressional districts.

The order in which these will be considered is, of course, something which can not be forecast with accuracy. It depends upon what we may as well call jockeying.

It is past any doubt, however, that the liquor scheme has been given No. 1 position for a number of reasons. It commands vastly more general interest than the rest; it is the principal source of untapped revenue; it is something the voters are getting tired waiting for; assemblymen want to get it off their hands. Hearings have been set for Thursday, the day after Gov.-Elect George C. Peery is inaugurated—as early as possible.

Course Will Be Stormy.

The voyage to final passage will be stormy, but relatively expeditious. It is the hope of leaders to pass a bill, effective on adoption if possible, before or coincident with the District of Columbia control measure. That would avoid, it is believed, much discomfiture on the borderline. Whether the completed product will be recognizable as the dispensary plan, worked out by the State Liquor Commission and indorsed by Gov. Pollard, commands the bulk of general attention. Preliminary developments indicate that advocates of the license method have acquired unexpected strength.

Two bills—one to reduce the gasoline tax from 5 cents to 4 and the other to place a minimum license fee of $10 and a maximum of $45 on privately owned motor cars—are ready for presentation at the first opportunity. Prospects for passage of either are poor, in spite of their popularity. Gov. Pollard, in his budget recommendations, indicated clearly enough that he contemplated no reduction in revenues from established sources, but depended upon returns from liquor and an increase on utilities to carry the Commonwealth slightly beyond the estimated requirements. Advocates of relief from these weighty burdens can look only to a decided cut in State expenses. That will not occur.

Racing Enthusiasts Quiet.

Supporters of horseracing are in no hurry to place their measure "in work." It is pretty well decided upon—tentatively, but carefully framed. But a quantity of missionary work must be done. They are engaged in that—particularly in explaining the fiscal advantages of the pari-mutuel system and emphasizing its ability to drive out the bookmaker. There is plenty of this sort of thing to be done in the Virginia legislature. Ninety per cent of its members wouldn't know a pari-mutuel layout from a slot machine. The hope is to get the hesitant members under control and keep them there.

A practical plan for congressional redistricting has been offered by State Senator Saxon Holt, of Newport News. The principal feature is that it brings the nine districts of the State to compact divisions more nearly approximating the average population of 270,000 each. Charlottesville and the counties of Albemarle, Greene and Madison would be transferred from the present Seventh—outlawed by a decision of the Court of Appeals because of its inequality in size and population—to the Eighth. The plan is presented apparently with perfect impartiality and dispassion, which means, of course, that it may not weather the close political analysis to which it will be subjected.

Gibbons Institute Delegate Chosen

Leonardtown Committee to Ask CWA Fund.

Leonardtown, Jan. 14 (Spl.).—The local committee of the Cardinal Gibbons Institute, meeting here, selected R. H. Pembroke to represent the committee at New York meetings of the institute the first of which will be held late in January.

The need of a Negro county nurse was stressed by Mrs. H. M. Graydon, business manager of the institute. Aid will be asked of the CWA for repairs on the institute building. The Rev. John LaFarge, of New York has charge of the school, which is for Negro children of high school age.

Located about 20 miles south of Leonardtown, the school recently was closed for a short time because of a lack of funds.

2 Killed, 2 Wounded in Virginia Family Gun Fight Over Child

Mother Slain as Husband Uses Bullets in Effort to Get Son.

Rural Retreat, Va., Jan. 14 (AP). Mrs. Virginia Cornett Bausell, 25, died late yesterday en route to an Abingdon hospital following a gun battle at the home of her father, T. Eugene Cornett, 57, who was killed by half a dozen bullets.

Bernace K. Bausell, 27, estranged husband of the dead woman—the mother of two children—and his father, Henry F. Bausell, 54, are under guard in a Bristol hospital, as a result of the shooting.

The elderly Bausell, suffering from a bullet wound in the shoulder, and his son, wounded twice in the hand, went to the hospital for treatment and were placed under arrest. Wythe County authorities went to Bristol this afternoon and placed a guard over the men when it was decided they could not be removed to the Wythe County Jail.

The elder Bausell attributed the slayings to the refusal of Cornett to allow Bernace Bausell custody of his oldest child, Jean, aged 4, who had been in the Cornett home since last Sunday. He said the first shot fired by Cornett was believed to have struck Mrs. Bausell.

Mr. and Mrs. Bausell, who formerly lived at Lemanon, had been estranged several months. The father, a farmer living near here had custody of Jean at the home of his parents in Bristol, while a 2-year-old daughter, Ann, lives with her mother at the Cornett home.

Bladensburg Lad, 11, Hurt by Car Near Home

Struck by an automobile as he played near his home in Bladensburg, Md., Charles Weiss, 11, was brought to Providence Hospital with severe injuries yesterday.

The youngster was struck when he attempted to cross River road, near the District line. He was brought to the hospital by members of the Bladensburg Rescue Squad. Physicians said he suffered a fractured leg and concussion of the brain. Maryland police said James E. Falls, of Berwyn, Md., was driving the auto.

Greencastle to Vote February 6.

Greencastle, Pa., Jan. 14 (Spl.). A special election will be held in Greencastle February 6 on an $18,000 bond issue for materials for erection of a wing to the present high school building.

Highway Light Plan Advanced At Strasburg

Name Roanoke Committee to Adjust Street Widening.

Strasburg, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). The Strasburg Town Council has called a mass meeting tomorrow night to consider the erection of a "white way" on King street, following the reconstruction of the historic Valley pike over that thoroughfare.

Advance estimates place the cost of the project at between $3,000 and $3,500.

Both Winchester and Woodstock have placed special lights along streets the Valley pike traverses and, it is understood, that business interests of Strasburg are urging that the same procedure be followed here.

Reconstruction of the Valley pike through Strasburg has been started under supervision of engineers of the Virginia State Highway Commission.

Roanoke Committee Named.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Dr. Frank S. Cooper, E. T. Morris and City Manager W. P. Hunter have been appointed to confer with property owners and seek price agreements for land along Franklin road which the city plans to widen and improve to the southern corporate limit.

The improvement has been approved as a CWA project, but none of the Federal allotment can be used for acquiring right of way or for paying property damage. The city, however, made provision for this contingency in the 1934 budget recently approved.

Luray, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—According to a report issued by the Virginia Highway Commission Luray and Page County will receive $1,207,900 from seven major road and bridge projects.

As outlined by the State Highway Commission there will be an expenditure of $313,000 for widening Lee highway from the Rappahannock County line to Luray; $74,300 for widening and improving the Main street of Luray; $351,000 for widening the Lee highway for 8.4 miles west of this city; $14,700 for widening Eastside highway from Stanley to Marksville; $171,200 for widening Leaksville road from Alma to Luray; $125,000 for building bridges over the Hawksbill Creek in Luray; $7,500 for road building at Stanley, and $149,000 for widening the Eastside highway from Stanley to the southern end of Page County.

Road and Bridge Contract Let.

New Market, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). A contract for the construction of a quarter of a mile of roadway with a steel and concrete bridge over Smiths Creek on U. S. 211, 2 miles east of here, has been awarded to Rhodes & Walters, Culpeper, for $16,710.40. The new bridge will cross the creek south of the present span.

Waynesboro, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Jefferson and Eastside highways will require $3,210,900 for construction of gaps and necessary improvements to care for normal traffic needs of the next ten years, according to the report of the State Highway Commission.

The approved plan for the next ten years for Route 340 (Eastside) calls for a 20-foot pike from the West Virginia line above Berryville, through Front Royal, Luray, Stanley, Elkton, Grottoes, Waynesboro, Stuarts Draft and across the Valley pike north of Greenville to the Middlebrook road.

The recommendations call for 16.15 miles of a standard type of road from Grottoes to Waynesboro at a cost of $337,900; a road from Waynesboro to Calvary Chapel (10 miles), at a cost of $200,000; and improvement of the present dirt stretch from that point to the Valley pike (5.6 miles), to a 20-foot paved road.

For Jefferson highway (Route 5), the proposal calls for improvements from the top of the Blue Ridge to the eastern limits of Waynesboro, and making it a standard 30-foot roadway; from Waynesboro to Staunton the poject calls for a 40-foot roadway; and from Staunton to the West Virginia line a 20-foot road. A total of $166,300 will be used on the road east of here while from Waynesboro to Staunton the estimate is $359,400.

Road Estimates Announced.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—That it will take $9,984,385 to complete the State primary road system in the Fredericksburg District was revealed yesterday by a report made public by Henry G. Shirley, chairman of the State Highway Commission, who estimates the cost of completing the entire system in the State at $162,000,000.

The principal projects planned include nearly $400,000 for widening of the new three-lane Richmond-Washington highway to a 40-foot breath from Fredericksburg to Stafford Courthouse and from Austin's Run to the Prince William County line. In addition to the road widening approximately $350,000 would be spent on widening of Falmouth Bridge.

It is proposed also to make the Tidewater Trail from Fredericksburg to Gloucester Point into a 30-foot roadway. North of Fredericksburg it is proposed to make Route 17 into the same type of road from Falmouth to the Fauquier County line. Route 2, from Fredericksburg to Richmond via Bowling Green would be made into a 40-foot roadway, while on Route 3, King's Highway, construction would be standardized and standard bridges put in.

Bank Planned At Smithsburg

Institution With $50,000 Capital to Replace Failed Firm.

Smithsburg, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Plans for opening a new bank here, to replace the People's Banking Co., which closed with the Central Trust Co. of Frederick County, are being made by a liquidating committee with the approval of the State bank commissioner, John J. Ghingher.

The liquidating committee consists of Preston E. Fogle, W. Clinton McSherry, G. William Gardenhour, Charles C. Wolfe and Irving A. Kelbaugh.

The People's Banking Co. was merged with the Central Trust Co. of Frederick County shortly before that bank and its branches closed. Later, the officers of the People's Banking Co. obtained a court order to have the merger rescinded. Most of the assets of the People's Banking Co. were returned. The People's Banking Co. then went into receivership, from which the new bank is being organized.

It was announced that depositors will receive about 5 per cent of their deposits immediately.

The new bank will have capital of $50,000 and surplus of $10,000. The Washington County Liquidating Co. will own all shares except those necessary to qualify directors, and the new bank will be known as the First State Bank of Smithsburg.

J. F. Matthews Heads La Plata's Firemen

La Plata, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.). James F. Matthews has been elected chief of the La Plata Fire Department, to replace Thomas P. McDonagh, resigned.

Charles Levering was elected assistant chief to replace Harry Hawkins. Matthews will name officers this week. The following officers have been reelected for a fifth term: Milton M. Somers, president; Reginald Farrali, vice president; F. Willis Posey, secretary, and A. J. Clark, treasurer.

U. S. Urged to Buy Banks, Free Cash

Officials Study Plan for Acquiring Postoffices.

A plan to turn thousands of closed banks into postoffices and speed liquidation of frozen deposits is being put before Treasury, Postoffice and public works officials by Representative Hancock (Democrat), North Carolina, according to the Associated Press.

Hancock said yesterday he had outlined the idea to Secretary Morgenthau, Postmaster General Farley and other officials. It contemplates Federal purchase of buildings which housed banks now being liquidated.

The benefits, Hancock added, would be threefold: The money paid to liquidating committees would speed the work of unfreezing deposits; the transactions would help stabilize real estate values throughout the country; hundreds of smaller towns and cities would have presentable Federal buildings.

Hagerstown C. of C. Reelects Ferguson

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.). For the third consecutive year, John B. Ferguson has been elected president of the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce. L. Vinton Hershey is first vice president; Aldine Lakin, second vice president, and Miss Bertha M. Negley, secretary.

Directors for two years: Ferguson Hershey, C. Merritt Campbell, Park W. T. Loy, Roy A. Leiter, Wallace B. Caum and E. O. Shulenberger. Holdover directors: Frank L. Bentz, Dr. W. D. Campbell, Col. John Carmichael, Roy Danzer, E. A. Lakin and R. Paul Smith.

Quartermaster Chief Inspects CCC Camps

Bargain!

Hat of Customer Proves to Liking.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Old or new, Mrs. C. C. Loth's hat was a dollar bargain for some one.

Shopping in a Waynesboro store, Mrs. Loth removed her hat to try on a new one. She found one to her liking and bought it. Turning to locate her old hat, it was nowhere to be found.

It was found that another shopper had picked up Mrs. Loth's hat, tried it on, approved it, paid a clerk $1—and departed.

Tributes to Lee Ring This Week Through Dixie

Virginia Prepares to Pay Homage at Shrines Erected to Hero.

Richmond, Jan. 14 (AP).—Robert E. Lee, who led the Southern armies through four years of bloody battle and later gave his energies to the education of the youth of his native State and healing of war wounds, will be eulogized from pulpit, schoolroom, and lecture platform this week

His birth anniversary Friday—two days before the birthday of his distinguished comrade in arms, Stonewall Jackson, will be marked by simple exercises.

At Stratford, where he was born, at Richmond where he took command of the armies of Northern Virginia, and at Washington and Lee University, where he went after Appomattox, sons and daughters, grandsons and granddaughters, of the men who fought with Lee, will pay tribute to the Southern chieftain.

At Robert E. Lee Camp in Richmond, veterans of the Gray will tell again the stories of Bull Run, Gettysburg and Appomattox.

Exercises at Birthplace.

Other camps throughout the South will pick up the story.

At Stratford exercises will be conducted under the auspices of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation.

At Richmond memorial exercises will be held in the old hall of the House of Delegates, where Lee received his commission, and in St. Paul's Church, where he worshiped.

The Rev. Beverley D. Tucker, jr., rector, will preside, and the Rev. Churchill J. Gibson, D. D., rector of St. James Church, will preach the memorial sermon.

Crosses of honor will be awarded by Richmond chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy to veterans of the War Between the States and to their sons and grandsons who served in subsequent wars.

At Washington and Lee University, where Lee's birthday annually is observed as founders' day, a holiday has been declared. Here Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the mathematics department of the University of North Carolina, will speak.

It was to Washington and Lee University—then Washington College—that Lee went as President after Appomattox.

More than 100,000 people go to Lexington annually to see the recumbent statue of Lee, who lies as a warrior taking his rest with his field blanket over him. It is the work of Edward V. Valentine, of Richmond.

The Confererate Museum in Richmond will be open without charge on Lee's birthday. It was in this house that Jefferson Davis, first and only President of the seceding States, lived during the days of fratricidal strife.

Staunton Plans Rites.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Friday brings further honor to the survivors of those who wore the gray in the sixties.

Under the auspices of J. E. B. Stuart Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, Lee-Jackson day exercises will be held at 11 a. m. in the "Y" auditorium here. The Rev. Dr. G. G. Martin, pastor of Central Methodist Church, will make the principal address.

After the exercises, luncheon will be served the Confederate veterans.

Friday from 9:30 to 10 p. m. daughters and veterans of the Confederacy will "tune in" on the Dixie circuit of the Columbia Broadcasting Co., when a drama, "The Three Swords of Lee," will be transmitted from Arlington, home of Lee, across the Potomac from Washington, by Station WJSV.

Sunday, at 11 a. m., Confederate veterans and daughters and sons of the Confederacy will worship at the First Baptist Church.

Physicians Win Protest Against CWA Practice

Injured Men May Select Doctor to Treat Them.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—CWA workers injured at work in Berkeley County, may name the physician to whom they wish to be taken under the compensation regulations, it was revealed today after physicians had protested assignment of all such cases to two selected physicians.

Physicians pointed out that in many instances the men who are now under CWA employment had been attended without remuneration during the depression. They insisted the same physicians were entitled to consideration for funds which may be expended on these workers.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—With 1,646 men now employed in various CWA projects in Allegany County, J. Milton Patterson, Civil Works administrator, has announced no more projects can be started until some of those under way are completed.

The weekly pay roll yesterday amounted to $18,493.37.

Removal of "persons responsible" for the alleged failure to pay carpenters a higher wage on the public library project has been demanded by the Trades Council and Carpenters Local No. 1024.

The demands alleged payment of less than the NRA scale. They were directed to Harry Hopkins, Civil Works administrator, at Washington.

The union contends carpenters come under the skilled labor classification and should be paid $1.10 an hour, whereas, it is said, the rate here is only 75 cents per hour

Frostburg, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—The geographic corps, recently established here by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, has established headquarters under Gerson Anthony. Among those chosen to assist are S. Graff Haverstick, James Aspinall, Joseph A. James, Roland Lammert and Joseph Evans.

The Frostburg corps will be part of a group of 300 men, under direction of Prof. S. S. Steinberg, of the University of Maryland.

Shooting Blamed On Theft of Mash

Luray, Va., Jan. 14 (AP).—Elby Turner, 35, of Cubbage Hollow, near Keystone, is in jail here in connection with the serious wounding of Sam Lucas, 20, of Lucas Hollow, last night.

Turner denies any connection with the shooting and disavows possession of a barrel of mash near his home, which Lucas said Turner thought he was trying to steal when he was shot.

Pedestrian Killed At Tappahannock

Truck Driver Exonerated in Painter's Death.

Luray Postmaster Examinations Set

Four in Field; Job to Be Vacated Feb. 17.

Luray, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—The United States Civil Service Commission has ordered an examination for postmaster at Luray to succeed Carroll M. Spitler, whose term expires February 17.

Applicants are B. N. Kibler, merchant; W. M. Long, Democratic county chairman and former member of the House of Delegates; F. T. Amiss, former county treasurer, and J. S. Price, former president of the First National Bank.

Mr. Kibler is said to have the indorsement of the majotrity of the Page County Democratic committee. Mr. Amiss has a petition bearing 6,000 names. The job pays about $2,600 a year.

Back in 1875 They Had Balmy Days

Old School at Edinburg, Va., Yields Odd Record.

Edinburg, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Razing of the old high school building under a county CWA project has brought to light an unusual fact, regarding weather conditions in the Shenandoah Valley during the construction of the building in 1875.

Under the stairway, workmen found a piece of board upon which was written: "This building was framed by J. H. Rau in 1875. All of us worked on this house on the thirty-first day of December, 1875, and it was too warm to work with our coats on." There follows a list of the workers.

Hagerstown Scouts To Visit Annapolis

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.). The second educational tour of the Boy Scouts of Hagerstown and Washington County, takes them to Annapolis on Friday to visit the Naval Academy. Priest Demands New Currency In Radio Talk Father Coughlin Answers Open Letter From J. P. Warburg.

Detroit, Jan. 14 (AP).—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin today declared that, by revaluing and nationalizing gold and restoring silver, there is enough precious metal upon which to base 25,000,000,000 currency dollars, and urged his listepers to write their Representatives in Congress demanding support of that program.

His subject was "A Reply to Mr. Warburg," and dealt mostly with an open letter to Father Coughlin made public last week by James P. Warburg, economic adviser to the American delegation at the London Economic Conference.

Father Coughlin's address was broadcast over an independent hook-up.

Sees Warburg Plan Flaw.

Warburg, described by Father Coughlin as a banker "of high repute," who "claims to favor a modernized gold standard," had said in his letter "there is not enough gold and silver obtainable in the world" to carry out Father Coughlin's proposal for retirement of $19,000,000,000 of war bonds with currency, "unless the currency so issued is unsecured printing-press currency."

Father Coughlin commented that Warburg's plan for "modernization does not imply revaluation." He said that by revaluing the $4,500,000,000 worth of gold in the United States at $8,500,000,000, pricing silver at $1 an ounce instead of 44 cents, nationalizing both, it would be possible under the Federal Reserve law to issue 25,000,000,000 currency dollars.

He pointed out that since 1914, it has been legal to issue two and a half times as many currency dollars as there are gold dollars.

Would Retire War Bonds.

"The bankers made the law," he said. "Let them abide by it."

He proposed that of this $25,000,000,000 in currency, $10,000,000,000 be used for retirement of war bonds, holders of which, he said, "now wax rich at the expense of widows of soldiers."

He declared he did not suggest seizing and destroying the war bonds, as, he said, Mussolini had done, but paying "with Treasury notes, non-interest-bearing, for the interest-bearing bonds."

Of Warburg's statement that Father Coughlin's currency proposal "is incomplete and not clear," the speaker said his suggestion of a currency system based upon both gold and silver apparently had been misunderstood.

He said his suggestion of "symmetalism," or utilizing both gold and silver, did not contemplate that silver be used alone at any time.

"It would be used as real money only when wedded to gold," he said, "for fear of driving gold from the country."

Radio Waves and Ripples

SLOWLY but surely and firmly the networks are pushing their hard-to-sell talents off the air waves.

Some of these are stars who have shone in the radio firmament for years. But their shining has been costly. The minds are polishing up new stars, hoping to get their money back.

With great fanfare and trumpeting from the publicity departments they came. Their names were made household words. When they go, they depart by the back door—unnoticed.

Within a week Columbia and N. B. C. have turned out the lights on five major artists. Columbia has released Willard Robison, Deep River orchestra man; Gladys Rice, Gypsy Nina, Theo. Karle and Barbara Maurel.

Only recently N. B. C. was blowing the trumpets for Marcel Rodrigo, Spanish barytone. He falls from the heavens January 15. The minds explain he has run through his repertoire.

More will go within the next few weeks. A long line of younger, untried talent impatiently stands outside.

Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Henry Morgenthau, sr., William Green, American Federation of Labor president; Will Rogers and Otto H. Kahn.

Under suitable conditions WLW at Cincinnati expects its new 500,000-watt experimental transmitter to be heard all over the world.

Results of the first test broadcast New Year's Eve have led engineers to conclude that "highly satisfactory" daytime reception can be provided over all sections of the United States east of the Rockies and "satisfactory" night reception over all the United States, much of Canada, Mexico and Central America.

The transmitter is being constructed and tested by authority of the radio commission to demonstrate the feasibility of high-powered transmission. It is operating under the temporary call letters of W8XO. Tests are being conducted between 1 and 6 a. m.

Gen. Marchand, War Hero, Dies

Frenchmen Once Brought Nation Into Battle With British.

Paris, Jan. 14 (AP).—Gen. Jean Baptiste Marchand, principal French figure in the Fachoda incident, which brought France and England on the verge of war in 1898, died at his home today at the age of 70.

Gen. Marchand, after being summoned to do so by Lord Kitchener, refused to evacuate the Fachoda Fort, in the upper Nile region, which the French had constructed during British Dervish hostilities.

The fort eventually was evacuated after diplomatic negotiations. On his return to France Gen. Marchand was received as a national hero.

He left the army in 1904 and entered politics, in which he was not very successful. In 1914 he returned to the army as colonel of a brigade, distinguishing himself at the battle of Argonne.

Dangerously wounded at Argonne, he returned to the front and played a part at Verdun and the second battle of the Marne.

The grave Fachoda incident was further complicated when Kaiser Welhelm of Germany sent a warship to the territory, ostensibly to support the French. The situation was cleared after months of negotiations when France ordered Gen. Marchand to leave the fort.

18 Are Sentenced In Gambling War

N. Y. Police Press Drive to Clean Up City.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Police continued their campaign today of harrassing the city's gamblers into good behavior, with a magistrate giving 18 men suspended sentences for disorderly conduct.

When their attorney protested that, "this has not been done before," Magistrate Van Amring said:

"I know it hasn't. The police are doing their utmost to stamp out gambling and they have been checkmated by the ruling which makes positive identification of each necessary."

"Gag" Arouses French Papers

Stavisky's Widow Holds Doubts His Death Was Suicide.

Paris, Jan. 14 (AP).—A call to defend "freedom of the press" was sounded today in numerous French newspapers, which charged increasing press restrictions were embodied in censorship measures of Premier Camille Chautemps, followed the Stavisky Bayonne pawnshop scandal.

The conservative Le Temps warned against using the scandal as an instrument to hit freedom of the press, insisting the affair might have been hushed if newspapers had not exposed it.

Mrs. Serge Stavisky, widow of the operator who died after allegedly fleecing the public of some $40,000,000, said today she was "doubtful" that her husband committed suicide.

At first she said she was satisfied he had killed himself when police closed in on him, but now asserts undated letters he left indicating suicide might have been written weeks ago.

Rumors were circulated that police killed Stavisky to prevent him from implicating high officials.

Mrs. Stavisky said he had no insurance.

Further Delay Likely In Arms Conference

Geneva, Jan. 14 (AP).—A decision not to resume the World Disarmament Conference before February was held today as likely to result from discussions at the seventy-eighth session of the Council of the League of Nations, which opens tomorrow.

"If time will bring a Franco-German understanding of the essentials, even postponement until June will be justified," said one delegate, expressing a prevailing view.

LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORD!

--from Maine to Florida!

AMOCO-GAS—the original special motor fuel—has stood in a class by itself for almost two decades. It revolutionized two great industries—gasoline and automotive and made today's high compression motors possible.

AMOCO-GAS has a story that's peculiar only to AMOCO-GAS. It's a story written by the years—by actual tests and continuous performance on the road.

What do the years tell? What have users to say about AMOCO-GAS? Let's look at the record.

Mr. Gene MacFarland, manager of the Pittsburgh district of the International Accountants Society, Inc., a division of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, is a good man to ask. He is a cost accountant. He has an analytical mind. A natural tendency to budget. And he set up a small cost system on his business car.

Gentlemen:

I was recently transferred from the level Country of the Middle West to Pittsburgh territory as Sales Manager.

On coming to Pittsburgh I found that my car needed something additional in the way of power-producing fuel to enable me to make the time on the Western Pennsylvania hills.

I tried several regular motor gasolines but could not secure results. Never having used Premium Fuel I was loathe to do so but decided one small fill would do me no harm.

You can imagine my surprise when I found the added power I received from AMOCO Gasoline, but better than that I found I was getting much more mileage.

I am a Cost Accountant and being of an analytical trend of mind I immediately set up a small Cost System on my business car.

What it proved to me is that AMOCO Gasoline is the least expensive on the market.

With best wishes for your further success, I am

Gene MacFarland

Such unsolicited letters fill many files in our executive offices. They come from motorists—from owners of great bus and truck fleets—from automobile distributors—engineers—from those who take fuel costs and performance seriously.

Of course, there's a specific reason for the superiority of AMOCO-GAS. It's different! Convince yourself! Stop at the Green Pump of AMOCO-GAS—and ride out the facts!

The Growth Of Opinion.

The conference of birth control which opens here today is significant because it marks a milestone in the growth of public opinion in this country. It is, in fact, the first time in the history of the National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control that it has attained the "respectability" of a nationally-representative meeting in the Capital City.

When Mrs. Sanger began urging, many years ago, that qualified persons be given the right to disseminate birth control information as a matter of social policy, she was regarded almost as an outcast. She was arrested by the police and reviled by eminent gentlemen and ladies who said, in effect, that she was preaching heresy. Police raided her clinics and seized her literature. In the fervid atmosphere of resistance to the idea of birth control, it was impossible for her and her associates to obtain even a hearing on her proposal. Few persons have suffered so much for a belief as Mrs. Sanger, or stood so stanchly by it.

It bespeaks something for our mental growth that, after all these years, we can at least have a national conference on the subject and approach a decision upon its merits as to legislation legalizing the dissemination of birth control information.

Muzzling The District.

One of the serious handicaps imposed upon the District Commissioners by the existing budgetary system is illustrated by what appeared to be their lack of support for the Capper-Norton alley clearance bill. The Commissioners did not formally recommend enactment of this measure, because they were instructed by the Federal Budget Bureau to keep their estimated expenditures within a specified maximum figure. Yet they favor enactment of legislation that would eliminate Washington's unsightly slums, and apparently are anxious to sponsor such a measure.

Recommendations as to expenditures by the District do not go from the Commissioners to Congress. After estimates have been carefully prepared by the various departments of the local government they are assembled and scrutinized by the District budget officer and the Commissioners. In drawing up their budget the Commissioners are forced to comply with instructions from the Federal Budget Bureau just as any department of the National Government. Then their estimates go to the Director of the Budget for possible further trimming.

As a result of this cumbersome procedure many projects that are of vital interest to the District are ruled out of consideration. The Director of the Budget, who is primarily concerned with national expenditures, is inclined to impose all the economies of the Federal budget upon the District, while it is denied the extrabudgetary indulgences allowed to Federal agencies. Obviously, local institutions are seriously handicapped by this system.

There is no reason for measuring the District's coat by a national pattern. Needs of the Capital ought to be considered on their own merits. Certainly the District Commissioners ought not to be under instructions from the Federal Budget Bureau in drawing up their estimates. And there is no good reason why this Federal bureau should stand between the Commissioners and Congress. The District has its own budget-making machinery, which is far more responsive to the will of taxpayers than are Federal budget officials.

The domain of the Budget Bureau over Washington's fiscal problems ought to be ended.

French Fears.

According to reports, the French are beginning to fear the effects of dollar stabilization upon the franc. Considering their earlier condemnation of the administration for its refusal to stabilize the dollar, this attitude may seem illogical, indeed perverse, to some Americans. However, such fears are rational and justified in view of the uncertainty as to the rate at which the dollar eventually may be stabilized.

In any event, stabilization is expected to result in the repatriation of a large amount of American capital which has fled the country. That movement alone is calculated to produce a strain upon the franc and other European currencies, even if the dollar were stabilized at current exchange rates. If its value should be fixed at a lower figure greatly undervaluing its purchasing power, compared with that of the currencies of other countries, the inflow of American funds would be augmented by European capital seeking bargains in securities and commodities.

Not only France but all European countries view such a prospect with trepidation. However, France, is particularly vulnerable at the present time, being in the midst of a domestic political and financial crisis. Consequently, if a heavy outflow of French gold were to follow stabilization of the dollar, the psychological effect would be serious and the pressure to establish a gold embargo would be great. Under such conditions, a second depreciation of the franc might follow, despite the strong popular opposition within the country to anything that threatens the hardly won stability of the currency.

Chinese Revolt Fails.

China's Nationalist government has strengthened its prestige by capturing Foochow, capital of the Fukienese rebellion, and reestablishing its authority in this region. Reports from Shanghai indicate that the rebellion has not been entirely crushed, but the end of Gen. Tsai Ting-kai's anti-Nanking movement is believed to be near. Excessive taxes and the exclusion of Foochow residents from government positions had cooled whatever enthusiasm existed among the residents of that city for the new regime, even before Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's soldiers approached. At Kutien, which also surrendered to the Nationalists, the populace is reported to have welcomed the troops by replacing rebel banners with the national flag of China.

The Fukien rebellion differs from the ordinary civil wars in which China so frequently indulges. It was led by the picturesque Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, head of the Nineteenth Route Army which fought the Japanese at Shanghai. As a result of his valiant stand against the superior forces of the Japanese Gen. Tsai and his men became the heroes of China. In spite of this popularity and regardless of allegations that Chiang Kai-shek had "sold out" to the Japanese, the Fukien revolt is apparently collapsing for want of popular support.

Efforts are now being made to abolish the Independent People's Government in Fukien to reorganize the Nineteenth Route Army and to incorporate it into the Nanking forces. A new provincial government for Fukien has already been named, and a temporary provincial capital has been established at Yenping. Chiang Kai-shek appears to have the situation well in hand.

A great deal of criticism has been aimed at the Nanking government for its failure to support the Nineteenth Army at Shanghai. But China was not sufficiently organized and equipped to make an effective stand against Japan. No doubt the Nanking authorities decided that the unification of China would have been retarded by a futile war. That view now seems to have gained widespread support. At any rate, the abortive efforts of the Nineteenth Route Army leaders to bring about a revolution based on this issue have ended in failure, and the Nationalist government has once more strengthened its position.

The "Wolf" Dies.

David Lamar, the "wolf of Wall street," who was found dead Saturday afternoon in a cheap hotel room in New York, was the outstanding exemplar in recent American life of the predatory human being.

In earlier years, he preyed upon the titans of American finance; in his last few years, after the stock market collapse wiped him out entirely, he preyed upon the smaller fry and dealt in terms of dollars, rather than hundreds of thousands. When he died, he was "out of money"—he owed a week's rent—and his shroud, when his overtaxed heart gave out, was no flashy silken garment such as he wore in his heyday, but an old-fashioned flannel nightshirt.

Lamar's origin was as uncertain and as questionable as his methods. His name was not Lamar; he appropriated that from a prominent Southern family because, he said, it would suit his purposes better. Some persons said they knew him in the far West; others said they had seen him in Omaha; Georgians identified him as a swindler who worked in Atlanta in the early '90s. He burst upon New York in the middle of the last decade of the nineteenth century and became a "minor speculator."

Before Wall street knew what had happened, he was manipulating the stock of the Third Avenue Railway, with whose president, Henry Hart, he had become friendly. Hart, an old man with $6,000,000; lost $5,000,000 of it, litigation later showed. Nobody said where it went, but Lamar showed up with a coach and four, a house on Fifth avenue, a diamond stickpin and other flashy accoutrements of a man of substance, not to mention costly champagne suppers for reigning stage favorites.

He raided here and there, earning the contempt of the decent traders of Wall street, who gave him the appellation of "wolf." J. P. Morgan called him a "vermin" when he harassed the financier week in and week out, with false rumors about his firm, and with a blackmail suit against the United States Steel Corporation. He impersonated Congressmen in calling Morgan partners to tell them this or that and then raided the market to profit by his false reports. He tried to blackmail E. H. Harriman in connection with a pool in Southern Pacific stock and so angered was the railroad magnate that he stalked into the stock exchange and broke up the pool he had formed. The collapse of the supporting move was supposed to have been one of the reasons for the 1903 panic.

Lamar represented himself to the gullible as having great influence in Washington. As "Judge" Lamar, he primed a Senator for a great antitrust speech designed to break the steel market. The Senator was told just in time to prevent his own humiliation what sort of character Lamar was. Lamar confessed blandly to a Senate committee that he had several times impersonated members of Congress to gain his own ends and that he had sold "influence." He confessed also that he had started a hundred rumors intended to depress or raise stock prices. His most spectacular exploit, perhaps, earned him one of his numerous prison terms. When Capt. Franz von Rintelen, of the German navy, arrived in this country with $500,000 to start trouble in munitions factories to prevent delivery of ammunition to the allies, Lamar took him in tow and in a few months, Rintelen had $25,000, a minor strike and faked newspaper clippings of others to show for his efforts.

The "wolf" amassed another fortune when he came out of prison after the Rintelen episode, but it was lost in the stock market debacle. In recent years he had been swindling people of small sums. The country may not be much better than it was when Lamar was living in luxury by his jackal preying, but it had outgrown him.

A Two-Edged Weapon.

In reviewing the economic developments of the past year in Germany, the Frankfurter Zeitung discusses the effects of the anti-Jewish boycott upon the department stores in a detached spirit, worthy of the pre-Hitler standards of that famous German liberal newspaper. The department stores, it is said, have been doubly hit by the political upheaval; partly because of the large Jewish interest in their ownership and management, and partly because of the popular agitation against their competitive methods. As a result, a marked and continued decline in their sales turnover has occurred, although the volume of retail trade in general has risen.

The article enumerates various losses that would fall upon the community if the department stores should fail to recover some of their former business. The livelihood of 100,000 workers in these establishments depends upon their continued functioning. Innumerable concerns selling goods to department stores are unfavorably affected by a decline in their business. Banks and investment institutions have a very large stake in department stores. About 500,000,000 marks, it is estimated, is invested in, or loaned to, the large department store groups, and an equal amount has been placed in other smaller establishments or in concerns that do business with department stores.

Thus, the analysis concludes that 1,000,000,000 marks of credit once regarded as first class would be jeopardized by a failure of the department stores to regain some of their lost trade. In that case the banks would find themselves handicapped in their efforts to finance a business expansion.

Recognition of these facts, it is said, resulted in an official decision some time ago to desist from further attacks upon the department stores. The Frankfurt newspaper concludes, however, that more than negative action is required in the present emergency; customers must be persuaded to return in order to prevent a collapse which would have repercussions not suspected by the public.

This frank exposition of the effects of the boycott in endangering the livelihood of the aggressor as well as the victim is a hopeful sign that the first excesses of the Nazi revolution have been succeeded by saner counsels. The birth of a new spirit of tolerance may follow recognition of the fact that injury to one class or group in the community brings losses to many others who imagine that they are living and working in independence of their fellow men. It is not necessary for other nations to boycott Germany in order to bring the country to a realization of this fact.

Suggests a Sales Tax.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Well, we're on the dole. And we have enough cash to carry us over until February 15. That's great, as far as it goes. The President's next move is to get an appropriation of $350,000,000 from Congress to carry us over until May 1, at which time, it is hoped, industry will be ready to absorb the millions now on the rolls of the CCC, CWA, &c. But if industry can not absorb these millions, what then? Why, the dole right on, whether we like it or not, and we are going to like it because it is here to stay.

Statistics have shown that even in good times there were between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 idle. This depression is going to leave us at least a couple of millions more added to those 3,000,000 or 4,000,000. The continued invention of labor-saving devices will further and further curtail the use of humans in industry, thereby adding more to those millions as time goes on. What is the outcome? This: We are going to have to take care of those millions, which can be multipled by two, at least, because most of them will have dependents.

In an article written last September I advocated the dole, backed by a National sales tax, quoting articles and letters to newspapers which were convincing proof that something along this line should be carried out.

I further stated that, backed by a National sales tax, the dole could be put in operation in a jiffy and it would not be necesasry to pay the farmers to destroy any part of their crops. It would raise prices automatically in that it would put billions of dollars in circulation and give millions of people a chance to get the food and clothing so necessary to them at this time, thereby using up the surplus foods, goods and raw materials being produced here. Foods and goods moving off the shelves of the merchants and out of warehouses of the manufacturers will soon start the machinery going; employment will pick up and the "buy now" campaign will be on its way for keeps.

It would save the millions of dollars now being expended by the National and State governments that are being handed out by the CCC and in welfare work and which cover only a portion of the needy and will have to be stopped sooner or later, leaving many families just as badly off as they were before welfare work started. Under the dole the money will continue to flow into the hands of millions and will be spent for food, clothing and shelter. The surplus products will soon disappear; prices will rise; thousands of homes and rooms will be reoccupied; property values will pick up; owners will be able to pay their taxes; the city and State governments can take care of their needs and everybody will be happy.

And $50 a month will do it. A sales tax on the billions of dollars of business done in this country will cover it and nothing need be exempted except bread, milk, meat and foodstuffs direct from the farm. And it will put a premium on labor, thereby raising wages above the minimum specified by the NRA and keep them there. J. H. HARANG.

Asking For a Revival.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

During the Christmas and New Year's celebration the writer heard two of the leading ministers in the city of Washington say to their crowded congregations, "We need a revival of religion." No priest, minister or church member can deny the truth of such a statement. There never has been a time in the history of our country when we needed, more than we do today, a mighty outpouring of the Spirit of God.

Since the great war crime has been rampant, bold, outrageous and shocking, all over the United States. The daily press has brought these awful crimes to light in flaming headlines nearly every day for the past fourteen years. All kinds of remedies have been offered to halt this lawlessness. A powerful revival would be the quickest and most effectual. The Savior named the supreme remedy as "Power from on high."

How can we poor mortals obtain the power? At the throne of God, the seat of all power in heaven and on earth, we can come in contact with this Omnipotent power by the exercise of earnest, sincere and persevering prayer, by looking away from man to God, from earth to heaven, from things seen and temporal to things unseen and eternal.

The greatest revival that ever visited these shores was in the eighteenth century. There were 9,000 churches at that time in New York State, crowded day and night, for weeks, with men, women and dear children, asking the greatest of all questions, "What must we do to be saved?"

The merchants in the City of New York closed their shop doors between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock, so their assistants and helpers could attend the noonday services. Now! Ye ministers of the Gospel and church members, what about a revival like this? Do you want it? A tidal wave of revival power would halt the wave of crime, lift the depression and start us on our way to happier contentment and prosperity. "I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh."

He Wants the "Bonus" Paid.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It seems to me that many of our leading citizens could serve the World War veterans to a great degree in becoming the nucleus of a Nation-wide organization whose objective shall be to induce the Congress at an early date to enact a law, upon which the "bonus" would be paid.

This bonus payment might be contingent upon the action of the bankers, the objectionable feature of which could be easily eliminated, I believe. Let us hope this phase of relief will get the consideration it deserves as hastily as practicable. LEONARD L. BEAVER.

The Wilson Day Dinner.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Gilbert Chesterton has analyzed three methods of reporting. Faithful reporting, he wrote, should quote every word a speaker uttered, or it should give the high notes of an address, or portray atmosphere.

Journalists assigned to the Woodrow Wilson Foundation dinner in Washington on December 28 chose the first two formulas. Readers were supplied with the full text of President Roosevelt's address and paragraphed "high lights," but no description of the mood of the assembly. The omission was unfortunate. The occasion was not graphically pictured.

There was atmosphere there—intangible, exalted. The several hundred selected guests looked patrician, not in the sense of being merely socially exclusive, or opulent, but as if they were of the elite—spiritually. The papers of the Capital had been skeptical and cynical, insisting that the peace ideals and theories of a world humanity of Woodrow Wilson had been found not practical; that he was all but forgotten. Apparently those who attended the commemorative banquet had not forgotten, nor did they intend to do so. To the critical observer they gave an impression of a unique lay-apostolate being sure of the fundamental soundness of their credo.

As an aftermath, ponderous editorials, philosophically and intellectually unsound, appeared, depreciating the address of President Roosevelt as "the doctrine of negation." The address of Mr. Roosevelt was metaphysically positive. The receptive indorsing mood of the guests was positive. Confer with any learned scholastic as to what is a positive and what a negative presentation, manner or mood. Negation was with the dissenters.

Had there been at the dinner reporters susceptible to spiritual atmosphere or, at least, instincted to catch it, the world would have had some accurate reporting of a remarkable assembly.

"Happy Days Are Here Again."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

If Franklin D. Roosevelt could make a tour of inspection and see how many persons he is making happy through employment, I think he would be the happiest man in the United States.

When You Make a Pet of a Tiger Cub, You Invite Destruction by a Tiger

By Robert Quillen

Temper is nature's antidote for cowardice. Let a timid man "get mad" and he will dare things that nothing could persuade him to do in cold blood.

Ignorant men in backward communities, where fist and skull fighting is commonplace, make deliberate use of temper without knowing why it is useful.

One of them, boasting of his valor, will say to his cronies: "When I heard what he had said about me, I ran to his store. I didn't walk; I ran."

But it wasn't bravery that caused him to run. He ran because experience had taught him that violent action would preserve his wrath and therefore his courage.

A man of this type, facing battle, curses loudly and vocally abuses his enemy in deliberate effort to work up a rage. He has learned that rage will make him forget danger and hurt and double his strength.

The theory of scientists is that rage and fear increase the activity of the adrenal glands—and possibly of others—and the increased secretion multiplies muscular strength.

It also increases the flow of blood to the head, and this increased flow, distending the blood vessels in the eyes, causes the fighter to "see red."

Rage alone can increase the gland secretion, but violent action promoted by rage increases it more and more, so that rage increases with every blow struck.

Thus a man who has learned to use temper as a substitute for courage can quickly transform himself into a raving beast—literally as mad as any maniac in a padded cell. He loses all control of himself and is completely unaware of what he does.

Recently such a man kicked his infant son to death; another beat to death a 15-year-old boy he had kidnaped; and a girl of 15 stoned and strangled an 8-year-old chum to death and then slashed her face with a broken bottle.

Once it was useful; now it is a curse and a treacherous weakness.

The young can suppress and outgrow it as they outgrow other primitive characteristics. After maturity they can not.

To cultivate it is to invite a temporary insanity that leads often to the electric chair.

Carlisle Bargeron

BARGERON.

WELL, the revolution, moving along in all of its fury, has come to another clash between the Liberals and Conservatives, or as they have come to describe themselves, the left wingers and the right wingers. And who should bob up among the right wingers, though I am not surprised in the least, but Mr. Don Richberg, general counsel of the NRA.

The issue turns this time, too, on the very heart of the struggle, the dear old power trust. Long before the revolution began, or, rather, before it definitely appeared, a liberal was one who was against the power trust and a conservative one who was in favor of it. Like prohibition, there was no middle ground. You were either a wet or a dry.

* * * *

The question now is whether the NRA should codify the utilities just as it has done to every other industry in the country. It is apparent that Mr. Ickes, the Secretary of the Interior, under whose jurisdiction comes such vast power projects as Boulder Dam, and the Federal Power Commission is against it. Mr. Roosevelt, however, is for it. Indeed, it is under pressure from the White House that the untilities have submitted a code. Naturally the NRA wants the industry codified.

We have the unusual spectacle then of representatives of the commission and Mr. Ickes appearing before the NRA denouncing the proposed code, and of Mr. Richberg retorting that Mr. Ickes' representative, a Mr. Hunt, is making a stump speech. A fine way for Mr. Roosevelt's servants to be getting along in public!

* * * *

Chairman McNinch and Mr. Hunt make the point that the proposed code is a joke, in that aside from setting up a wage and hour schedule, little if any different from the present one, the code is meaningless, or rather does not affect the existing set-up. It promotes, they say, a monopoly. What it does unmistakably do, is to ratify the present organization, whatever that is.

Their contention is most embarrassing to the NRA. Mr. Richberg points out that State law and regulations limit the extent to which the NRA can go in governing the utilities, which admittedly is true. State agencies fix the rates and prescribe regulations. About all the NRA can do is to set up a skeleton code, but it is so anxious to collect codes that it must have one for the utilities.

And its code in this instance would be a ratification of the much advertised power trust.

* * * *

The controversy is bound to leave Mr. Richberg in a bad light with his former associates, the left-wingers. In rebuking Mr. Ickes' man Hunt, he contends that the NRA is not concerned with publishing industry for past misdeeds but with taking it over in the organization in which it presents itself. The work of the NRA has been, of course, to ratify existing trade associations, many of which were of doubtful legality. But when it comes to ratifying the Edison Electric Institute, the members of which employ 175,000 of the 242,000 employes in the industry, the liberals are crushed.

Particularly are they crushed when they had expected this Administration to "do something" to the power trust.

DOLLARS IN CELLOPHANE.

We were certain it would come—the dollar wrapped in cellophane, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

The commodity dollar, the "oddity" dollar, the rubber dollar and all the other new-fangled dollars must now yield the palm.

To Berkeley belongs the credit for the cellophane dollar. Charles Adams, managing director of the Chamber of Commerce, in fathering the plan, cautioned the residents of the university town not to look askance and shy away from dollar bills having an unfamiliar appearance. Then he distributed to merchants 10,000 cellophane wrappers, paper dollar size, bearing a printed legend in red ink urging buying now and keeping the money working. If the $10,000 are put to work and kept working they will help ourselves and our neighbors, the secretary said.

As the money circulates the wrapper is not supposed to be broken, and thus an endless chain of spending is suggested. There is sound economics back of the stunt, for while there is no expansion of the currency there is a stimulation to increased velocity, which has the same effect. According to financial experts a dollar in active circulation does the work of $10 in ordinary circumstances.

SOME FACTS ABOUT INDIA.

The Indian census of 1931, the sixth of the enumerations which began in 1881, covered an area of 1,808,679 square miles and a population of 353,000,000. This area, as large as Europe, excluding Russia, according to Nature, constitutes a subcontinent rather than a single country. It includes every variety of climate from tropical to temperate and from arid, where the rainfall averages five inches, to humid, with an annual rainfall of 500 inches. Its inhabitants are as varied in their racial character and their languages as in their environment. The census returns for 1931 show 225 languages, excluding dialects. Nearly three-fourths of the population, however, speak Aryan tongues. In culture the people show every phase from that of advanced Western civilization to the primitive hunter and food gatherer of the jungle.

Virginia CWA Chief Denies "Fat" Salaries

Rockingham Official Scoffs at Charges "Politics" Wins Relief Jobs.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Completing his investigation of charges late yesterday Rockingham County CWA Supervisor Hanson said: "There is absolutely nothing to the claim that politics or personal considerations have been a factor in putting unemployed to work on CWA jobs."

He explained that some "minor adjustments" were found advisable and said these had been made. Re-employment Manager J. H. C. Grasty corroborated Hanson's report.

CWA men at work passed the 1,000 mark in the county the past week.

The pay roll for the week was approximately $69,000, a gain of $9,000 over the preceding week. Three weeks ago the pay roll was $40,000.

In the past week's pay checks 4,674 persons had a share. This was a gain of 166 over the previous week's list.

4 Nurses to Get Jobs.

The new high record of employes was made up of these units: Augusta County, 972; Bath County, 225; Frederick County, 97; Highland County, 97; Rockbridge County, 532; Rockingham County, 1,059; Shenandoah County, 698; Buena Vista City, 125; Harrisonburg City, 204; Staunton City, 425; Winchester City, 240.

The pay roll last week for Staunton was $4,543, and in Augusta County, $10,986.

Four nurses given CWA places here will be put to work late this week making a house-to-house canvas to collect various kinds of data, such as physical condition of members of the family, vaccination statistics, sanitary conditions, milk supply, sewerage, &c.

Nurses appointed to this work must be in immediate need of employment and have no other means of support.

During the past week special classes in safety methods were conducted. Thirty-five safety supervisors from all sections of the district attended. Dr. J. Fairfax Fulton, Staunton health officer, and C. F. Guild, one of Staunton's two safety supervisors, were instructors.

"Fat Salaries" Denied.

Richmond, Jan. 14 (AP).—State Administrator William A. Smith of the CWA said reports of "fat salaries" being paid favored CWA workers in certain sections of the State were either utterly false or the salaries were being paid illegally without his knowledge.

In a few isolated instances, he said, especially qualified men, whose experience and ability were essential to the successful handling of some particular project, were paid as high as $50 per week.

These were experts in their lines, Mr. Smith said, who were accustomed to receiving $5,000 and more a year when regularly employed. Otherwise, the top salary in the entire CWA setup, excluding a few executives, was $40 per week, he said. Local administrators are paid from $25 to $40 a week, depending upon the population of the community.

Ickes Signs for Danville.

Danville, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Danville's agreement with the Government for a $3,000,000 loan and grant to build a city power house in Patrick County, 70 miles distant, has been received bearing the signature of Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior.

The mayor has already signed it, and the city council will meet Tuesday to set the date for a referendum.

Yesterday $7,935 was distributed among 722 CWA workers. Howard Hylton, local administrator, said 1,000 unemployed would be working here by Wednesday on CWA projects.

Second Art Exhibit Will Open Thursday

Woodstock, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Shenandoah County's second art exhibit, comprising English works of the Middle Ages and later Renaissance period, as well as more modern pieces, will be held here Thursday.

The exhibit, under the local Civic League, is made possible by the University of Virginia Extension Service. The Rev. John B. Frantz will lecture.

Front Royal Scouts Plan Banquet Jan. 24

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—A banquet will be held by Front Royal Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts, January 24, at which Assistant Scoutmaster Johnnie Marchi, who attended the Jamboree at Budapest, Hungary, will be the guest of honor.

A six months contest for points to be earned by members of the troop was inaugurated on January 1. Tom Hite and Bobby Smith won the highest points the first week.

Hagerstown Fire Heads Named.

Hilda B. Sims Dies.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Hilda Bruce Sims, 16, daughter of Mrs. Nannie Gess Sims, died here follwing a three-year illness. Surviving, in addition to her mother, are the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Eva Dick, Jones Springs; Mrs. Arlie Schramm, Toledo, Ohio; Pauline, Maxine, Mary Jane, Lillian, James, Paul, Norman and Fred Sims.

Loan Arbiter

JUDGE ALVIN T. EMBREY, of Fredericksburg, elected chairman of the recently organized Farmers Production Finance Association, established to grant loans to farmers of Spotsylvania, Stafford, Caroline and King George Counties as a phase of the National agricultural relief program.

Religious Play Well Received

New Market Churches Present "Follow Thou Me."

New Market, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). The first religious drama with a local cast presented here was given today under auspices of Lutheran and Methodist churches.

The play, "Follow Thou Me," under the direction of the Rev. Lewis Koons, was well received by the large audience.

Those in the cast were Mrs. C. W. Harner, Mrs. B. A. Guard, Mrs. A. S. Moore, Mrs. Ralph Lutz, Misses Margaret Moore, Grace Madden, Ruth Tussing, Ruth Riley Rice, Ralph Lutz, B. A. Guard, J. F. Burke and R. B. Wickes, jr.

Danville, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Economic recovery is beginning to be noticed in the church, according to Dr. J. M. Shelburne, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who has just returned from Nashville, Tenn., where he went to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Southern Baptist Convention. "Receipts within the territory," he said "are showing a general increase.

Lexington, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Dr. Edgar Gammon, pastor of Meyers Park Presbyterian Church, of Charlotte, N. C., will conduct services for Virginia Military Institute Cadets from February 4 to February 9.

Funeral Set Today For Mrs. Sherman

Winchester, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon from Winchester United Brethren Church for Mrs. Alberta F. Sherman, 67, widow of William J. Sherman, who died Friday of influenza.

The Rev. George W. Stover and the Rev. A. R. Van Cleave will officiate. Burial will be in Mount Hebron Cemtery here.

Surviving Mrs. Sherman are three daughters, Miss Katheleen Sherman, Mrs. Oscar Kremer, of Winchester, and Mrs. M. F. Newlin, of Hagerstown, Md., and one sister, Mrs. Mary Ellen Pitcock, of Winchester. Thirteen grandchildren also survive.

The first class review will be held at Scout headquarters at 3:30 p. m. and the second class review will be Tuesday afternoon. The Tenderfoot review is scheduled at 7:15 p. m. Tuesday.

Meat Canned for Needy.

Purcellville, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Forty-two quarts of meat, weighing 100 pounds, were canned for the hot-lunch project in the one-room schools under the direction of Miss Matilda Garner, home demonstration agent.

$735,000 CWA Pay Roll Called Virginia Peak

62,000 Worked Last Week, But Many Will Be Laid Off Gradually.

Richmond, Jan. 14 (AP).—Civil works employes throughout the State drew approximately $900,000 in weekly pay roll checks yesterday, it was estimated by the auditing division of the State Civil Works Administration. The number of men benefiting was set at 62,000, contrasted with a payroll last week of $735,000 distributed to 55,000 workers.

It was pointed out that a majority of the projects have reached the maximum of employment the last ten days and that men now will be laid off gradually as the projects approach completion. The short time remaining before the expiration of the time limit set for CWA jobs precludes the likelihood of many new projects being started to absorb those laid off.

Meanwhile, 19 new applications were favorably acted upon by the State administration, the largest of which was a grant to Richmond of $9,407 for land clearance and curb and gutter work in Byrd park. Six of the projects were for Halifax County for improvements in and near South Boston.

Safety Courses Finished.

The completion of the course of instruction in safety and first aid for CWA workers in 11 of the 39 communities where schools have been established was announced today.

Among the list in which safety institutes have been organized, together with the directors are:

District 3—Fredericksburg, Herbert Thompson; Warrenton, Dr. J. W. Sinclair; Berryville, Taylor Barr; Luray, Dr. George H. Long; Alexandria, George Pletcher and Capt. L. B. Strobel; Culpeper, W. W. Jefferson.

District 4—Charlottesville, L. T. Ludwig.

District 7—Danville, Louis Berman; Martinsville, Dr. B. C. Cullen; Boydton, Dr. G. N. Carter; Charlotte Courthouse, Dr. W. R. Martin.

School Plans Approved.

Woodstock, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). W. Irving Dixon, assistant architect of the Department of Public Buildings, Richmond, has accepted plans of the local school board for improvements to Shenandoah County schools and the work, financed by CWA and PWA funds, is expected to start immediately.

In Woodstock, excavations for the new Woodstock public school building has been started. On January 18, the Shenandoah County School Board will call for bids, to be opened February 7, for the erection of the Woodstock building. Plans call for the erection of a 12-room building, with a combined auditorium-gymnasium. The balcony will provide space for 140 seats, while the main floor will have 560 removable seats.

Luray Painters at Work.

Luray, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—The local CWA has put 14 men at work painting the Page County Courthouse, Luray, and about 140 men will go to work this week painting the 35 school houses in the county.

The county jail will also be painted. Charles E. Musselman, chairman of the board of supervisors, is superintending the courthouse job, while S. L. Batman, chairman of the Page County School Board, will have charge of school house work.

Work of improving all side streets in Luray will begin this week. About 40 men will be employed.

Matas Award Winner Graduate of Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Dr. Mont R. Reid, professor of surgery at the University of Cincinnati, who will receive the first Matas award in vascular surgery at New Orleans January 23, is a graduate of Roanoke College.

Before going to Cincinnati, Dr. Reid served as assistant to the late Dr. W. S. Halstead, professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins University. It was there that he learned and practiced the Matas principles.

Mayor Favors Power Project

Cost of Cumberland Plant Estimated at Over $1,500,000.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.). At a meeting at the City Hall, sponsored by the Public Ownership League, Mayor George Henderson announced that he would not be a candidate for reelection.

Dr. Thomas W. Koon, whom Mr. Henderson defeated for reelection two years ago, was in the audience. After the meeting, Dr. Koon indicated he probably would be a candidate for the office in March.

Dr. Koon said he favored a municipal electric light plant for Cumberland, but thought the citizens should have an opportunity to vote on the proposition. Robert B. Kimble, member of the last House of Delegates from this county, whose bill providing for a survey looking to the erection of a municipal plant here was killed in committee, opened the meeting and called Mayor Henderson to the chair.

Dr. Irvin M. Wertz, Mayor of Hagerstown, and Elmer B. Carl, manager of the Hagerstown municipal lighting plant, addressed the meeting, pointing out advantages of such a plant. H. J. Rosson, representative of a firm that builds municipal plants, said a plant to supply the needs would cost from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000. Mayor Henderson spoke in favor of a city-owned plant and it was indicated help could be obtained from the Civil Works Administration.

Mrs. Eliza Wilmer Dies in Lynchburg

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. W. G. Bowles, of Sandidge, and five sons, H. B. and E. R. Wilmer, of Lynchburg; R. B. Wilmer, of Raleigh, N. C., and J. S. and G. T. Wilmer, of Roanoke.

Staunton Man Heads Utility Rates Group

Staunton, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Willard F. Day, city manager of Staunton, has been appointed chairman of the committee on utility rates of the League of Virginia Municipalities.

Serving on the committee will be C. L. Scott, Danville; Mayor John Victor, Lynchburg; H. A. Yancey, Petersburg city manager, and Mayor J. V. Bickford, Hampton.

Horticulturists Elect.

Waynesboro, Pa., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Fred N. Miller has been elected president of the Franklin County Horticultural Society.

New Postoffice At Hagerstown Assured Action

Will Be Among First in Line if More PWA Funds Are Granted.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Representative David J. Lewis has informed the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce that Secretary Ickes, Public Works administrator, recently told him an appropriation for a new postoffice here would be among the first considered if additional public works funds are provided by Congress.

The Treasury Department has purchased the site for a new postoffice here, but all available funds under the PWA were allotted when the Hagerstown project was reached for final consideration.

Plans for the conversion of Antietam Battlefield, near here, into a park were announced recently by James R. McConaghie, superintendent of the Gettysburg National Military Park and field superintendent of the Antietam Battlefield.

Mr. McConaghie revealed the program at a meeting of the board of directors of the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce.

A total of $25,000 for development of the battlefield at Antietam tentatively has been alloted by the Public Works Administration. National Park Service officials are now making a study as to how these funds should be used.

Under the present civil works program historical and educational work, such as the development of a series of maps, and surveys of old buildings and bridges, is in progress.

A six-year master program will be launched shortly, to include construction of roads, establishing of a headquarters building and the placing of guides, together with elimination of fences and all appearance of a cemetery.

Dr. C. E. Harper Heads Antituberculosis Unit

Danville, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Dr. C. E. Harper has been reelected president of the Danville Antituberculosis League by the directors.

The directors plan to file an application for $10,000 with the Civil Works Administration in Richmond to construct sewer facilities at the institution.

Garrett County Reelects Harvey.

Smiling Cripple Child Wins 'Hopeless' Struggle for Health

Waynesboro, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Given up as a hopeless cripple in 1925 and preparing to graduate from high school with honors as a normal, healthy girl in 1934 are highlights of the life of 17-year-old Mary Hiden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Hiden, of Sherando, near here.

Nine years ago Mary was examined by a physician here. He shook his head and told her parents there was little chance of Mary ever walking as a normal child should. She was suffering from an advanced case of talipes and, though operations had been performed for such cases, the chances of complete recovery were slight. Then, too, the cost would be far more than the parents could possibly afford.

It seemed that the little girl would never have the chance to walk as other children. Through it all, Mary smiled.

And one day her smiles and courage attracted to her aid a friend here. Having studied medicine himself, he gave the case a complete investigation, the result being that Mary was bundled up and sent to the University Hospital at Charlottesville.

At first the doctors refused to operate, but again little Mary's smiles triumphed. She was taken into the operating room. When she awoke from the anesthetic, her legs were inclosed in heavy plaster casts. For six weeks she lay on the hospital cot, always cheerful. For 18 months she could only walk with the help of especially constructed steel braces.

And then, finally, came the joy of really walking and running and playing.

Mail Clerk Sued For Heart Balm

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Charging alienation of his wife's affections, William Dusing has filed a $10,000 damage suit in Jefferson County Circuit Court against D. Preston Knode.

Gun Club Is Organized.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Enthusiasts organized a gun club last night with L. M. Gano as president, and W. B. Grimes secretary-treasurer.

Liquor Fees to Net Maryland $1,500,000

Comptroller Office Visions Large Tax Income.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Maryland's coffers will be enriched by more than $1,500,000 from license fees and excise taxes on liquor by the close of the fiscal year, September 30, according to estimates prepared in the office of State Comptroller William S. Gordy here.

It is estimated that revenue from excise stamps alone will approximate $1,500,000.

To date, $28,000 has been received from wholesalers and manufacturing licenses, with the prospect of $60,000 additional by May 1, the regular licensing period. Besides the amount from license fees, the State has collected to date from excise tax stamps more than $240,000.

L. P. Fansler Funeral Held at New Market

New Market, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.). Funeral services for L. P. Fansler, 75, of Red Banks, were held here yesterday in Emmanuel Lutheran Church. Interment was in St. Matthew Cemetery.

Fansler died following a stroke of paralysis Sunday. One sister, Miss Mary Fansler, with whom he made his home, survives.

W. and L. Plans Fancy Dress Ball

Russian Coronation Theme of January 26 Fete.

Lexington, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—All the splendor of imperial Russia will be reflected in Doremus Gymnasium at Washington and Lee University here Friday, January 26, when the twenty-eighth annual fancy dress ball is held. The theme of the ball will be the coronation of Alexandria III of Russia in the Kremlin at Moscow in May, 1883.

The figure will be led by Harvard Smith, of Murfreeboro, Tenn., president of fancy dress this year, with Miss Dorothy Fly, of Shelbyville, Tenn., a student at Randolph-Macon Women's College. Other officers of the set are James D. McCully, of Logansport, Ind., vice president; Charles Smith, of Jacksonville, Fla., secretary-treasurer, and Jack Summers, Johnson City, Tenn., business manager.

Besides fancy dress ball, two other formal dances will be held. On Thursday evening the junior prom, led by John Dean, president of the junior class, and Miss Carol Dean, of Leeland, Miss., will take place. On Saturday a formal dance sponsored by the Alpha Circle of Omicorn Delta Kappa will close the set.

Roosevelt Birthday Ball Interest High

Event at White House Cancelled to Avoid Conflict With Shoreham Warm Springs Foundation Benefit.

So great is the interest of Mrs. Roosevelt in the forthcoming birthday ball in celebration of the President's natal anniversary, Tuesday night, January 30, at the Hotel Shoreham, that a dinner party and musicale planned for that evening at the White House has been entirely canceled, in order that no possible conflict may occur in the two events in the Capital City on that occasion.

Mrs. William H. King, wife of Senator King, of Utah, has accepted the chairmanship of a committee on tickets especially for the Senate and House of Representatives, and has organized a group of assistants on this committee, prominent on the secretarial lists of outstanding Senators and Members of the House, including Miss Anna Hurwitz, Mrs. Ashel Smith, Miss McManna, Miss Thomas, Miss Margaret Tow Moran and Mr. William Cheathan. This committee will act in close conjunction with the ticket committee headed by the Comptroller of the Currency, Mr. J. F. T. O'Connor, and the "table ticket" committee headed by Mrs. John R. Williams.

Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, chairman of the birthday ball, who went to New York on Saturday to consult with Mr. Henry Doherty and members of the National committee for the birthday party in honor of the President on his fifty-second birthday, has returned to the Capital and will take up the details of the Washington birthday ball today at the ball headquarters in the Transportation Building on H street.

The debutante committees for the birthday ball, comprising Miss Nella Veverka, Miss Elizabeth Dern, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt and Miss Marian Worthington, met last week to arrange details of the participation of the season's most popular debs in this most brilliant event of the winter in official, diplomatic and society circles in the Capital.

Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, U. S. A., retired, chairman of the floor committee for the ball, will call a meeting of his vice chairmen early this week, including Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, U. S. N., Brig. Gen. Hugh Matthews, U. S. M. C., Mr. Joseph E. Davies and Mr. J. Arthur Mullen.

Tables Will Feature In Place of Boxes.

A delightful feature of the arrangements now being completed for the birthday ball will be the use of tables instead of boxes, where hostesses may entertain their guests and friends throughout the program and the dancing.

Mrs. John R. Williams, Mrs. A. Mitchel Palmer, Mrs. Hugh Johnson, Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mrs. Fred Britten and Mrs. Kenneth Simpson are on the "table" committee, charged with the duty of selling tables to hostesses who desire a place to sit—a highly glorified "reserved seat" idea—while enjoying the entertainment and the dancing.

To quote Mrs. Dougherty herself, "instead of spending the money to build and decorate boxes as is the usual custom at big balls, we shall be able to save that money for the permanent endowment of Warm Springs Foundation."

Plans for the ball are going rapidly forward; and following the meeting of the ball committee on Thursday many delightful and unusual features are now under way which will make this Birthday Ball a more than brilliant and exciting event from many points of view.

The Ambassador of Spain, Senor Don Juan Francisco de Cardenas and Senora de Cardenas, have accepted the invitation of the committee, as patron and patroness for the event, as have a very large number of others.

Notables Will Serve On Patrons' List.

Elizabeth Gelman Weds Dr. Kossow

Marriage Is Performed at Hamilton Hotel.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Gelman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Gelman, to Dr. Maurice J. Kossow, son of Mrs. Rachel Kossow, took place yesterday at 7 p. m., at the Hamilton Hotel. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. Silverstone, assisted by Cantor L. Novick.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of heavy white crepe, fashioned along princess lines, with a high cowl neck, and a train. Her veil fell in five tiers from a cap of silver cloth, and at the neck she wore a tripie string of pearls, an heirloom of her mother's family. She carried a bouquet of orchids, bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Ellis Kossow, sister-in-law of Dr. Kossow, was matron of honor, while Miss Mary Kartofel attended the bridge as maid of honor. Master Stephen Robert Cohen was ring bearer.

Mr. Samuel Bugatch, of Baltimore, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Herman Gelman, Mr. Herman Haves, Mr. Benjamin Manchester, Mr. Edward Gruberman, Mr. Max Kossow, Mr. Isaac Kossow, Mr. Hyman Kossow, Mr. Bernard Freedman, Mr. Harry Felstein, Mr. MacM. Littman, Mr. Leon Levi and Mr. Roy Marks.

They will be at home after February 1, at the Alto Towers Apartments.

Miss Janet Richards at her lecture on "Public Questions" at 11 a. m. today in the Willard Hotel, will review the outstanding developments of the past week, both home and foreign, with special mention of signs of Democratic revolt in Congress concerning the drastic "gag" rule in the House, and the fight against ratification of the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty in the Senate. The perils of "rag" money inflation, and the President's alleged plan to circumvent it, will be touched on.

Mrs. J. B. Kite, of Lexington, Ky., and Mrs. Sam Conner, of Bardstown, Ky., are at the Carlton for a stay of a month or longer.

Gertrude Sligh Becomes Bride Of James Sellers

Miss Gertrude Sligh, daughter of Mrs. Charles Robert Sligh, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was married Saturday to Mr. James Townsend Sellers, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cadwalader Sellers, of Merion, Pa., in Grace Church, Grand Rapids, with the Rev. Dr. Floyd Van Keuren officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Charles Robert Sligh, jr., wore a long-sleeved gown of white crepe with pearl beading about the shoulders and bodice, and her voluminous tulle veil fell from a cap of tulle with a small face veil. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Lewis Hart, of New York, was matron of honor, and the bridegroom's sisters, Miss Marjorie Sellers and Miss Elizabeth Sellers, of Merion, Pa., were the bridesmaids.

Mr. Henry Lineaweaver, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Richard MacFarland, of Merion, and Mr. Marcel Peck, of Charleston, W. Va.

Following a wedding reception at the Hotel Lafayette, Mr. Sellers and his bride left for a wedding trip by motor. They will make their home in Philadelphia, where Mr. Sellers is associated with N. W. Ayer & Co.

The bride attended Miss Madeira's School in Washington, and was graduated from Vassar College in 1929. Mr. Sellers was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1929 and is a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Warner, of Baltimore, entertained a party at the Madrillon dinner dance Saturday evening. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Moffett, Mrs. Grace Bruns, Miss Lillie S. Turman, Mr. Harmon G. Swink, Mr. Forbes Simpson, Mr. Nelson Warner, Mr. Charles J. C. Moffett, Mr. Kenneth U. Poole, Mr. Roy Warner, Mr. Paul Petersilla and Mr. Charles E. Kelley.

Culbertson on Bridge

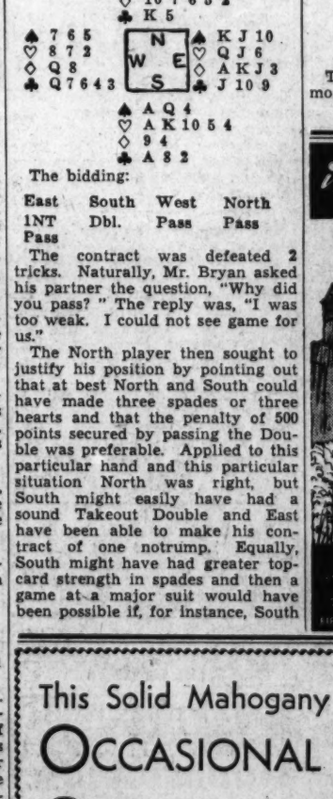
Responding to a Takeout Double.

It is an axiom accepted by all good bridge players that the weaker the hand the more imperative if is to respond when partner has made a Takeout Double of an opposing bid. Failure to do this is not only dangerous from the standpoint of points made or lost but strikes at the root of partnership morale as, if a player makes a Takeout Double and his partner fails to respond to it, and the opponents make overtricks or even barely fulfill their contract, the doubler will remember that weakness in his partner's bidding and in consequence make a bad matter worse. This question as I say, is one on which there is no disagreement between experts. It was submitted to me by Mr. R. Earl Bryan, of Lakewood, Ohio, who states that recently the hand below was dealt:

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1NT	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

The contract was defeated 2 tricks. Naturally, Mr. Bryan asked his partner the question, "Why did you pass?" The reply was, "I was too weak. I could not see game for us."

The North player then sought to justify his position by pointing out that at best North and South could have made three spades or three hearts and that the penalty of 500 points secured by passing the Double was preferable. Applied to this particular hand and this particular situation North was right, but South might easily have had a sound Takeout Double and East have been able to make his contract of one notrump. Equally, South might have had greater top-card strength in spades and then a game at a major suit would have been possible if, for instance, South had held the spade Ten. Had North's hand been only slightly stronger, his pass of the Takeout Double could be justified, as, of course, South's Double of an adverse notrump bid shows a hand very strong and well prepared for practically any response that North may make, even a penalty pass. But with only one King, a bid by North was imperative and this is just as true even though a good result was obtained on the board.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If North and South reach a contract of six spades, should East double with his holding?

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

A Charming Princess Gave Lelong Her Hand, After He Had Triumphed as a Designer

Speakeasy Era Of Styles Over, Says Designer

Brightly Lighted Cafes Demand Elegant Apparel.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Prohibition repeal is bringing back the grand manner and therefore grand clothes, in the opinion of Lenore Kroll, American designer.

"It didn't matter much what you wore to a speakeasy," said Miss Kroll. "Nobody saw you, anyhow. People were too busy drinking, and besides, the speakeasy shadows were too deep.

"But now we will have to know how to make an entrance into brightly lighted cafes and restaurants. And show me a woman who can manipulate an entrance unless she is perfectly dressed.

"Imagine, if you can, a woman dressed in the potato-sack atrocity of the post-war period, her calves revealed to the scrutiny of every critical eye, trying to look regal as she enters one of the fashionable Park avenue restaurants. Unimaginable, isn't it?"

As one accompaniment of the grand manner, Miss Kroll believes the ankle-length gown is here to stay for some time, "short of another war, of course."

"The styles from now on, after the first experimental mistakes will, I believe, be more nearly what they should be to enhance women's charm.

"Synthetic styles never last and are ugly. Period styles likewise—witness the ill-fated Eugenie hats."

Miss Kroll says the most successful styles are those which express both the age and the personality of the wearer, and which do not follow slavishly any styles of the past.

"Clothes," she said, "should be an integral part of one's personality and should express it. They should steer away from the bizarre. True designing should combine clothes and wearer in such a way that the wearer is never conscious of the clothes."

This, she asserted, is the only way for a woman to acquire poise, and poise is an essential quality in "the new era of quiet but public drinking."

Luncheon Committee Names D. C. Women

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, Mrs. Bertrand H. Snell and Mrs. John Callan are Washington's representatives on the honorary committee arranging for the thirteenth anniversary luncheon of the Women's Ntaional Republican Club, for Saturday, January 20, at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

Mrs. George A. Wyatt, club president, will preside. The luncheon will be attended by delegations of Republican women from all parts of the country.

Slit Skirts Again On Evening Gowns

And the Front Decolletage Is as Daringly Low as Possible.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Slit skirts appear on some of the new spring evening gowns, and the very low decolletage is back.

Several gowns seen today at Germaine Monteil's opening were slit several inches at the skirt hem; and low front evening necklines far outnumbered the high.

Sometimes the skirt division was subtly concealed by a train; but a sudden turn by the wearer revealed several inches of silken ankle.

But the biggest news about spring evening gowns is the return of the low front neckline, after a high front season.

Several of this designer's new gowns have a very low, pointed front decolletage, and in the back a low V to the waist.

One gown has in addition to a fairly low V a daring oblong cutout, front and back.

Interesting neck treatments are a distinguishing mark of this designer's collection. She likes pique revers on wool suits. On one cocktail suit she uses an immense ruffled collar of embroidered organdy standing up about the face. She also likes bows—one on each shoulder—for evening.

Some of her afternoon dresses have a fairly low square neck, slightly broader at the base, either front or back, and the revers cut high.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

Janet's Canary.

A little captive bird is he,
Who sings to Janet cheerily,
A silver-throated yellow thing
That never once has tried his wing
Or nested 'neath the leaves of spring.

Yet he has had a tender love
His wild companions know not of.
Janet to him has opened wide
Her heart and sheltered him inside.
No want of his has she denied.

This blithe wee minstrel of delight
Has never felt the wind of night,
Suffered from snow or driving rain,
Battled with larger birds in vain
A precious bit of food to gain.

Sweet singing bird, love shelters me
And holds me prisoner as thee.
To all my fetters reconciled,
I gladly barter freedom wild
To be so cherished by a child.

The Oxford Boy Won Honors In War and in Dressmaking

Romance Arrived Just in Time to Crown His Efforts and Make His Happiness Complete; His Pretty Lady He Discovered in His Own Salon de Couture.

If a lovely dress could talk, what a story it might tell of the role it had played as Cupid's friend, as a framework and a complement of the ravishing charms of some irresistably charming girl?

But only if it were a frock worthy of being the true frame of feminine loveliness.

Such are the artistic creations that come from the workshops of the great masters of haute couture. With dresses like these, a woman is sure of a success—in romance.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

Most of the great men and women dressmakers of Paris keep their early life and their romances very much in the background. Lucien Lelong is no exception insofar as his youth is concerned, but he is quite willing for the world to know that there is a Mrs. Lelong and that he relies greatly upon her advice and counsel in running his huge establishment at 16 Avenue Matignon.

The Lelong romance sounds as if it had come right out of a fairy tale book. There is the poor young man who suffered and endured hardships in his fight for recognition in his chosen profession. Then there is the lovely princess whose hand and heart were won by the nice young man. Lucien Lelong's princess, before her marriage five years ago, was Nathalie Paley, daughter of the Grand Duke Paul of Russia.

When the revolution broke out in Russia most of the aristocrats found that the country's usually frigid climate had become very, very warm. In fact, it was so uncomfortably hot that many members of the nobility went to Paris, London or New York, where the climate and the people seemed more kindly disposed toward them.

Title Was No Asset.

The Princess Nathalie chose Paris. She soon found that a Russian title didn't mean a thing to French grocerymen and bakers unless it had some money behind it. And the Princess Nathalie had no money. But she did have some good-looking clothes that she had bought at the House of Lelong in prosperous, pre-revolution days. One day she looked at her wardrobe and sighed with despair at the thought of all the money she had spent at the couturier's. It seemed a pity that there should be no return on that investment.

After thinking the situation over for a few minutes the lovely princess clapped her hat on her head and, with determined little steps, went marching over to the Avenue Matignon. She was going to call upon the House of Lelong. Her visit was brief. But when she came out she had a job.

After a few months behind the perfume counter she also had a husband. Tall, broad-shoulder young Lelong had lost his heart to the princess, right in the midst of preparing his spring collection. The collection didn't suffer as a result. In fact, a good many people claim that the couturier reached heights that season he had never attained before.

They Were Thrifty.

Lelong and his bride came to the United States on a combination honeymoon trip, but his wife has (These thrifty French.) The dignified young husband made valuable contacts with no less than a thousand commercial accounts. The princess bride made charming little speeches in which she urged women to use certain perfumes and make-up for the various seasons of the year and for various types of clothes.

Lelong has paid at least one visit to the United States since the honeymoon trip, but his wife has remained in Paris. She has a decided taste for dress designing and since her marriage has continued to take an active interest in the enormous establishment in the Avenue Matignon.

The Lelong salons and ateliers are housed in an attractive old mansion that has been renovated and redecorated in the Directoire style. Paneled walls have delicate carving in bas-relief and rich satin draperies hang at the long windows. There are many gleaming mirrors and much spindly-legged painted furniture.

The grand couturier's studio has two tall windows hung with old ivory satin, embroidered with gold stars. Through these windows he looks out upon an entrancing garden with bright flowers and glistening green shrubbery. From this quiet room Lucien Lelong directs his entire establishment, which is one of the largest and certainly the best organized in Paris.

Indeed, its organization is carried to the extreme, in the opinion of many who sit on the sides lines of the style parade. In addition to Lelong himself, there are many designers, and before their creations are admitted to the collections, they must be passed upon by a reviewing board. This system is not the best in the world for encouraging individuality.

Appeal to the Elite.

Nevertheless, Lelong clothes have a certain quality that appeals to well-bred people, who go in for leisure in a serious way. There is nothing theatrical or flamboyant about the typical Lelong model. It is usually distinguished by intricate cuts and subtle color harmonies. This couturier's things are intensely modern and his collections keep pace with the ever-changing mode of life of the smart woman. It was dignified young Lelong who invented the "kinetic silhouette," which considers the lines of a costume in motion as well as in repose. He is especially liked for his beautiful evening clothes and for his fine sports wear.

There are no hats at Maison Lelong, but there are rare and exotic perfumes in interesting bottles and odd little flasks.

The grand courtier entertains no illusions about himself or his work. Says he doesn't consider dressmaking an art and that he certainly does not think of himself as an artist. He calls himself a good craftsman and lets it go at that.

Lucien Lelong, after attending Oxford, began his career as designer in his father's small Parisian shop. The son became ambitious to have a place of his own and, in his spare time, made his first collection while still working for his father. He never showed this collection. While he was putting in the finishing stitches the Call to Arms resounded throughout France. Lucien marched off to war. When he came back he had the Croix de Guerre, the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor, and a firm determination to have a dressmaking establishment of his own. Today he has the establishment, a royal princess for wife, a beautiful English accent, and such distinguished customers as Beatrice Lillie, Grace Moore, and Claire Luce.

Many Products Are Harmful, Says Dr. Cramp.

Richmond, Jan. 14 (Spl.).—The careless use of hair and eyelash dyes, fat removers, and bust developers may have serious results, Dr. Arthur J. Cramp, director of the bureau of investigation of the American Medical Association, declared in a speech before students of the Medical College of Virginia.

"The most vicious are many so-called eyelash dyes," Dr. Cramp said. "They are not only dangerous to the lids, often producing a severe dermatitis, but may even effect the sight." In this connection he cited the case of a prominent Ohio clubwoman who lost the sight of one eye completely, and became partially blind in the other eye through using one of these eyelash dyes.

"The American public spends approximately $360,000,000 every year on patent medicines," he pointed out. "More than half of that sum is expended by the manufacturer in his effort to convince the consumer he is suffering from some ailment from which the 'quick relief' is said to be a cure."

A tiny green muff of coque feathers was carried by Mrs. W. Forbes Morgan at a White House reception to which she wore a black chiffon evening gown.

Mules Retain Favored Place In the Boudoir

Heels of Moderate Size and Supporting Bands Preferred.

Paris—Mules remain the favorite shoes for boudoir wear, those covering the heels being preferred over the real mule, as they support the foot much better and are more comfortable. This part over the heel sometimes consists of a single band of material, fabric or leather; sometimes it consists of two bands, one crossed over the other. Cuban heels of very moderate size are the most fashionable, although some designers sponsor flat heels.

As regards materials, velvet, and especially ribbed rayon velvet, is in favor. The vogue of ribbed materials in the haute couture has also influenced boudoir slippers and, besides ribbed rayon velvets, quite a lot of rayon ottoman and heavy faille are shown.

Trimmings in silver, and particularly in gold kid, are more fashionable than ever. In some cases, while the instep is in velvet or ottoman, the heel and heel straps are in silver or gold kid, with sometimes a narrow discreet incrustation of the same kid. Feather trimmings have entirely disappeared, as well as embroideries over satin backgrounds. Discreet motifs in pyralin or prystal in the shape of bows are considered very smart.

Mr. Sunshine Resident of Capital

But the Great Hatmaker Is Sad Over the Loss of His Famous Wife.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

The brightest lights on Broadway were rivaled for twenty-five years by the radiance which shone from a little hat shop in the theater district.

The sign outside the shop said simply "Mme. Sunshine," but the world celebrities who constantly entered those doors looked for both Mr. and Mrs. Sunshine, and they went just as much to see those charming people as to buy their hats.

Today the little shop is closed. Sunshine herself has gone to a sunnier world, and Mr. Sunshine, a lonely man has come to Washington to live, because as he told a reporter yesterday, "I just couldn't live in New York without her."

Through the influence of Mrs. Roosevelt, who formerly bought her hats from "The Twin Sunshines," he obtained a position in the National Park Commission. And in helping those destitute and homeless boys in the Civilian Conservation Corps, he has found a new sort of happiness and forgetfulness, he declared.

Met Hershfield.

Twenty-five years ago Harry Hershfield, the beloved cartoonist, went window shopping with his wife. They stopped to look in Mme. Sunshine's window.

"Nothing to them," grumbled a rival hatter who was looking on. "They won't stay open two months."

"Won't they?" asked Hershfield. Then turning to his wife, "Let's go in, Jane," he said. "We'll buy you a couple of hats just so they may stay open a little longer."

Within he found a young Austrian and his 16-year-old French bride. They had started in business with the idea of making hats only for people whose faces they liked, and of fitting their hats to those faces. Jane's face met with their approval, the Sunshines met with the approval of the Hershfields, and thus began a famous friendship.

"I like newspaper people and theater people," said Mr. Sunshine yesterday. "They are always so jolly and kind and friendly."

And indeed many of them have danced, sung, acted and written their way to fame adorned by a Sunshine hat, and cheered by the Sunshine smile. Mary Pickford, Tallulah Bankhead, Gloria Swanson and Beth Brown have appeared on famous occasions gilded by Sunshine, as have also Queen Marie of Rumania and our own First Lady.

"They all loved my wife," said Mr. Sunshine yesterday, and his eyes smiled to remember it. "Every year she was on the boat coming from Paris on her birthday, and always the captain of the boat gave a big dinner for her. All her customers used to write her when they went away, and when she became ill in Paris and I had to bring her home, the steamship company said we could have the best suite on the boat and they would pay the difference in price. She was the sweetest, dearest person in the world.

"She was a gifted designer, too! In all the years we were in business we never made two hats alike. She was called the 'Speed Queen of Hats,' and she could turn out 40 models daily. But no matter how hard she worked, she was never irritable."

The only hat which ever traveled on the Graf Zeppelin was sent as a gift to Countess Zeppelin, who was a personal friend of the Zeppelins. The Sunshine Hat Shop was the first in America to serve tea and cigarettes to the ladies who came to buy millinery.

Closed the Shop.

After his wife's death Mr. Sunshine closed his shop. "Everywhere I went people asked about her," he said. "Some tried to comfort me. Others did not know of her death and asked for her. I could not bear to go out in public.

To try to find some outlet for my grief, I began to write poetry. I love doing that, because I like beauty in all forms, and I know Sunshine would have liked it if she had lived. So, living here in the Capital, I've been writing and working hard and trying to forget."

There are others who find it hard to forget, too. The other day Mr. Sunshine had a letter from Beth Brown, well-known writer, who said:

"I can not tell you how I miss you both. And I have to hurry fast and turn my head when I pass the funny little dress shop, which has taken your place on the street, but never in our hearts."

Reading Still Most Popular Use of Leisure

But National Survey Shows Many Read Only Because It's Cheap.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Newspaper and magazine reading was found to be the most popular diversion in the leisure hours of 5,002 persons answering a questionnaire of the National Recreation Society.

Returns on the questionnaire, listing 94 activities, showed the 10 in which most persons participated in order were reading newspapers and magazines, listening to the radio, attending movies, visiting or entertaining others, reading fiction books, motoring, swimming, letter writing, reading nonfiction books and conversation. The survey covered 29 cities.

There were 3,977 listing newspaper and magazine reading and 2,735 listing conversation.

The same recreations were the ones engaged in most often. Order of popularity differed with the exception of reading.

Things people wanted to do principally, in order of preference, were tennis, swimming, boating, playing golf, camping, caring for flower gardens, playing musical instruments, motoring, theater going and ice skating.

With one or two exceptions, the most desired diversions are obtainable only at some cost to the individual, either for equipment, instruction or admission fees, the report shows.

More than half of them and the ones desired by the largest number involve facilities, organization, leadership or other special provision by public or private agencies of the community.

The effect of the depression has been to drive people in the direction of home-centered diversion and away from outside activities costing money and calling for physical exertion, the inquiry revealed, and financial limitations rather than choice dictated the change in recreations.

Clubwomen Ask Food and Drug Statute Change

They Advise Passage of Tugwell Bill as It Stands.

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP).—A motion "recognizing the necessity" of amending the present food and drug law was adopted by the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The board recommended that State federations study the revised Tugwell bill "with a view to its passage without substantial amendments."

The action followed a presentation of opposing viewpoints on the bill, which has been of special interest to women since it deals with harmful cosmetics.

Sea Serpents?—Poppycock! Dr. Andrews Says It Isn't So!

He Says Those Monsters Ocean Voyagers Have Been Seeing Were Just Pink Elephants Painted on the Northern Sky.

Don't anybody try to interest Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, famed scientist and explorer, in the purchase of sea serpents, dead or alive.

Particularly, he wants nothing to do with Amy or Bob, those alleged monsters which are disporting themselves—as effectively as any tourist trade association could wish—off the coast of British Columbia and in Luchness, Scotland, respectively.

Amy and Bob, Dr. Andrews declared yesterday, according to the Associated Press, are just pink elephants on the ceiling to the world of science.

"As a scientist," said Dr. Andrews, who has spent eight years probing the ocean depths, "I don't regard such a thing as the existence of Amy and Bob as utterly impossible.

"But it's a very remote possibility, based on the fond hope of man that somewhere in the world a parcel of prehistoric earth, with its complement of animal life, has continued through the ages. That couldn't have happened."

Amiable Amy of the North Pacific has been described as the conventional sea serpent of old salts' tales. Amy is distinctly unlovely, having a camel-face.

Belligerent Bob of the Scotland Lake, is suspected in some quarters of heinous deeds, including the slaughter of live stock and the deaths of two persons.

"Both of the creatures are the result of faulty observation," Dr. Andrews declared, "perhaps on the part of sincere persons who saw just what they had hoped to see.

"As for Amy, the ocean's depths have been pretty thoroughly explored—at least as far down as any large form of animal life could exist. Nothing like her has ever been found."

The case of Bob was especially interesting to Dr. Andrews. Bob has been depicted as an amphibian creature, aquatic by preference, but capable of getting out on highways and seriously inconveniencing motorists.

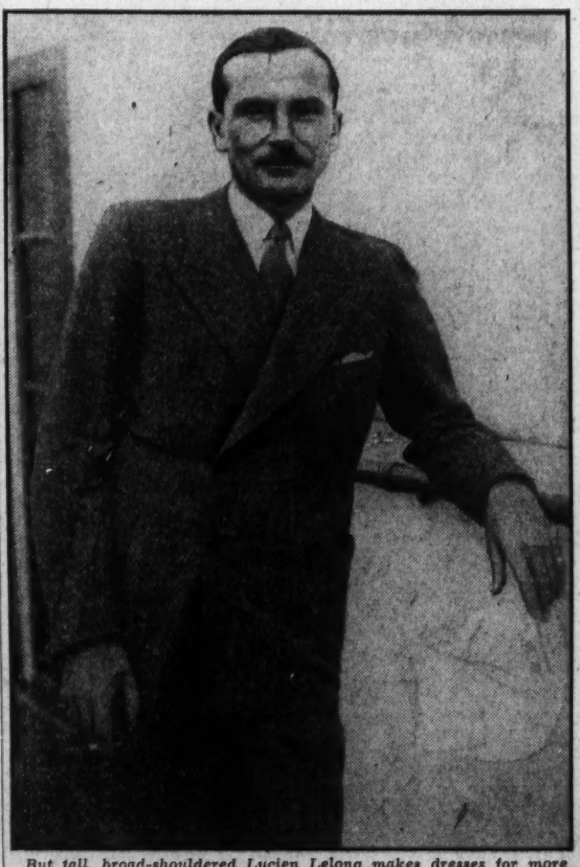
"Bob would appear to be a dinosaur," Dr. Andrews said, "resembling a plesiosaurus—a prehistoric marine reptile. All dinosaurs died when the world was young."

Washington and Lee Plan Annual Fancy Dress Ball

Lexington, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—The midwinter set of dances at Washington and Lee University here featuring the annual fancy dress ball will be held January 25, 26, and 27 immediately after the completion of first semester examinations.

Three dances will constitute the set. Thursday, January 25, John Dean, president of the junior class, will lead the junior prom. On Friday, January 26, the fancy dress ball will be held under the leadership of Harvard Smith. On Saturday, Alpha Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa, National honorary fraternity, will hold a formal dance in the evening. The last dance is a new feature of the midwinter set.

He Picked His Own Princess



But tall, broad-shouldered Lucien Lelong makes dresses for more princesses than one. His delightful clothes are designed for the varied activities of modern life but avoid the theatrical and bizarre. Lelong was educated at Oxford, fought in the World War, was awarded the Croix de Guerre and the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor, and married a Russian princess who was clerking behind his perfume counter.

Beaded Ribbon Makes Smart New Jewelry

Sequins Are Also Used to Fashion Wide Chokers.

By Ruth Ann Davis.

Jewelry does the strangest things. It goes ultra-modern on one table, and quaintly antique on another. Here it is chaste and subdued, there, rampantly brilliant.

Of the antique bracelets, there are plain wide gold ones, just like the ones that were handed down through the feminine members of the family, wide gold ones with delicate tracing of ancient designs on them. These are $1 each.

Some jeweler, despairing for new material, took a strip of heavy striped ribbon, pleated it loosely, and between the pleats, fastened rows of little silver beads. It makes a stunning necklace a little over an inch wide, priced at $3. There is a bracelet to match, at $1.95.

Sequins have been all aver the evening dresses, evening capes, tiaras, and handkerchiefs—now they are modeled into beads—big ones. The choker of these sequin beads costs $3.95.

Cocktails have been used to furnish names for everything—napkins, jackets, appetizers and trays—but now they have a cocktail pipe. It is a tiny thing about 8 inches long, with a slender white stem, and the little wooden bowl is about big enough to hold a thimbleful of tobacco. It is utterly swish—may it be called by that term?—subtly dashing, and altogether adorable. It is to be filled with cigarette tobacco. For $5 milady can add to her originality and charm, for what dark-eyed brunette, or statuesque blond would not be more alluring behind the smoke of such a clever thing?

What's this? A set of metal-bound books? No; it's a set of four ash trays lined up in a little book frame. They are metal finished in black enamel, with gold striping. You take the tiny book out of the case, flip back the cover and inside it a little glass container easily removed and cleaned. On the inside of the cover is a little gadget to hold a cigarette when it is laid down a moment. The set is a French importation, the price is $10.

Another charming and useful set of trays is designed especially to be used on the formal dinner table. The trays are crystal, etched with dragonflies on the bottom, and would be lovely on your best white cloth. The set comes in a little silver frame, and costs $5.

Old books have a peculiar fascination of their own. The quaint wording, the ancient type, lend a certain charm to a home. But would one believe that two old French dictionaries are appropriate to a boudoir? If you don't believe they are, drop into a downtown department store and take a look at them. Here's the trick. One of the books lifts up bodily to disclose a charming vanity set, equipped with a mirror in the lid and French glass bottles and boxes, delicately ornamented in gold. There are two square boxes for jewelry or pins, three bottles with stoppers for lotions and perfumes, and two round boxes for creams of one sort or another.

The head of the store brought the vanity back from Europe with his own hands, and he is particularly proud of his selection. The old leather books are beautifully embossed and carry the original markings on the back of the bindings.

"Where's my comb——" The debutante flips open her evening purse, searches in its interior a moment, and draws out, not an ordinary comb, but a lovely one of tortoise shell, in a pearl beaded case. How combs have changed! These evening combs are so elegant they make their simpler sisters look like country bumpkins. With the beaded case they are $3.50, combs in metal cases with enamel finish in bright colors are $3.

Flowers have an irritating way of flopping limply out of place when you try to arrange them. Fingers get wet, tempers are shortened and the flowers simply lie down and won't behave properly. A florist sells metal holders that will solve the problem perfectly. They are made of a very pliant metal that can be twisted this way and that. A series of twisted strips are fastened on a straight piece, that can be curved into a circle, or a square, or whatever shape you wish. The twisted strips that serve to hold the stems upright, can be made large or small according to the size of the flower stems. There are two dozen holders in all, for $1.

You may not believe it, but you can get hand-embroidered Madeira pillow slips for 89 cents each. We didn't believe it either, because the workmanship is so beautiful, but facts are facts. And in the same shop exquisite linen handkerchiefs with mosaic openwork borders a good two inches wide are only 79 cents. Furthermore, six hand-embroidered tea napkins, dainty and demure are 79 cents.

The linen is fine and beautiful, the embroidery excellently done. Cocktail napkins with a little red cock in the middle are 89 cents for six. If you dont believe that they are real bargains for the price drop in and see for yourself.

Wiser Than the Owl.

By Katherine Smith.

Wiser than the owl, more clever
Than the fox, you seem to be—
Words, like mirrored lights, forever
Flash your virtues, blinding me.

So I know you, in my blindness,
Still I hope to find my sight
When, with your too brutal kindness,
You'll do something wrongly right.

What Today Means

"Capricorn."

If January 15 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6:30 to 7:30 a. m., from 10:45 to 11:45 a. m. and from 2 to 4 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 5 to 7 p. m. and from 10 to 11 p. m.

If you were born on January 15, you possess a very great amount of independence. You do not nave to consult with anyone in making a decision, regardless of how important, or involved the matter might be. Your lack of indecision and good judgment will enable you to help others successfully when they come to you with their individual problems. This date will find you unusually alert, and you will be able to help a friend out of a very trying situation.

If a woman, and born on January 15, you are progressive as well as very liberal in your way of thinking. Your popularity with your friends and acquaintances is due to your sympathetic nature. Your fondness for reading will prevent your ever feeling lonely. You are essentially a home-body, and you belong in a home, with husband and children, rather than in the business world. You, however, would make a success if you had a business of your own, or one that you could manage for someone else. There is every indication that those born on this date have happy and contented lives assured them.

If a man, and born on January 15, your success will not come until you will be your own master. Men born on this date do much better when engaged in their own business, than when employed by others. You have a great deal of self-reliance and energy, and this combined with your good business sense will enable you to make a success in any line of endeavor you undertake. You already have, or shortly will, meet the one woman who will make you a splendid wife, and who will make your home like an ideal one. You will be happier and more successful if you take more of an interest in religion. At the present time you are inclined to let yourself become a little bit discouraged. Count the many blessings you have already had, and you will be surprised how much brighter the future will appear.

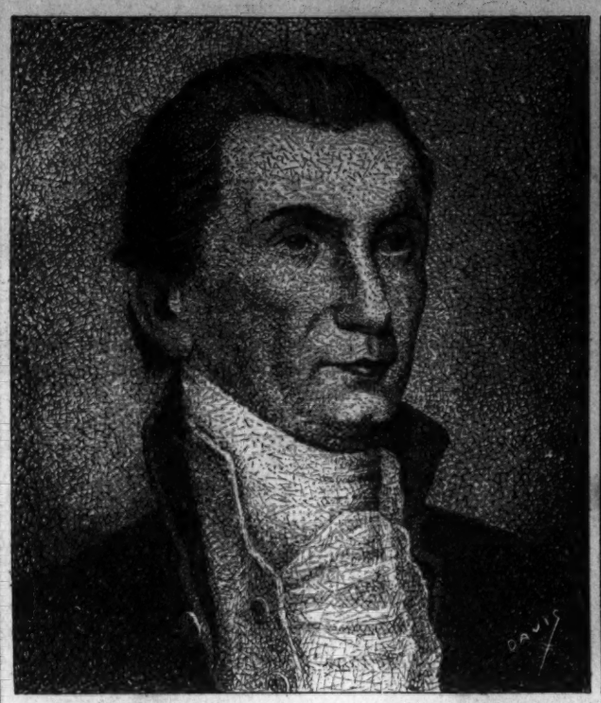
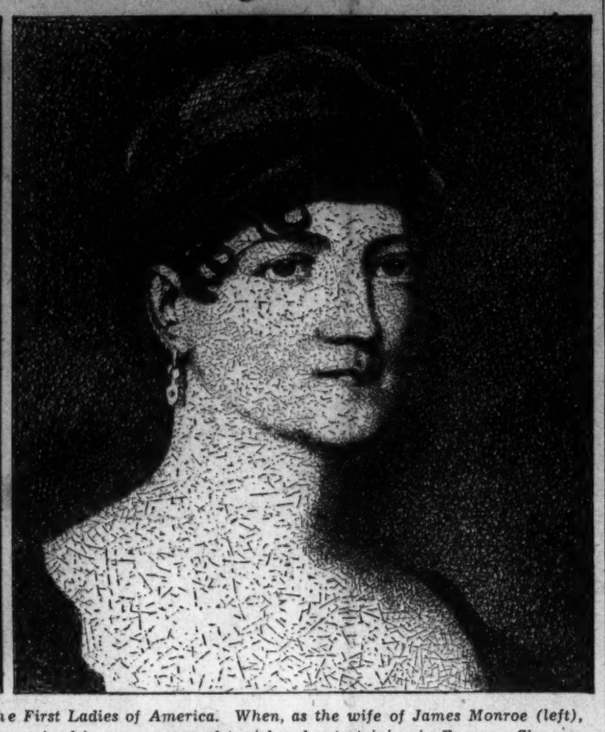
Half-Forgotten Romances of American History

James Monroe—Elizabeth Kortright





Elizabeth Kortright Monroe (right) was one of the most queenly of the First Ladies of America. When, as the wife of James Monroe (left), she presided over the White House, she had behind her the experience gained in many years of travel and entertaining in Europe. She was a gracious and lovely hostess at the "court of a great republic."

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

In the brilliant array of American women who have served as chatelaines of the White House since the days of Abigail Adams, the first lady of the land, who lived there, the figure of Elizabeth Kortright Monroe is one of the most distinguished, both for personal appearance and because of the right royal way in which she held sway over that Republican court.

Born a scant seven years before the American Revolution, this lady lived until 1830, or within a hundred years of the present times. Her horizon was wider than her native land, however, for she passed years abroad as the wife of the American Minister to France and the courts of the Old World were known to her. Back of her were the best traditions of the Empire state, in its Colonial days, and through her marriage to James Monroe, she had come under the influence of life in the Old Dominion, a social experience, also of value, when it came to White House days.

Born in Low Country.

James Monroe had been born in the triangle of tidal low country in Virginia, often called by historians "the cradle of the Republic." It earned this title justly. Speaking on this topic Mr. Paul Wilstach, the eminent historian, declared in his "Tidewater Virginia:"

"This triangle is beyond compare more interesting to an American than any other equal area between the two oceans. In it the English made their first permanent settlement on the American continent.

"Here from the crudest pioneer condition flowered a civilization, and here grew a race of philosophical and practical and patriotic statesmen through whom it contributed incomparably more than any equal area to the development of the idea of independence and to the passion for it; it was a leader in the activities of the Revolution and it was the nursery of the great contributors to the constructive organization and practical operation of the new Nation."

Among the first 10 Presidents of the United States, six of them, Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Harrison and Tyler, were native and all of these, except Jefferson, were born in tidewater.

It is pleasant to remember that a near-by town to the National Capital, the quaint little city of Fredericksburg Va., gave James Monroe his first start toward fame. He represented that district in the Virginia Assembly and came under the eyes of destiny forthwith. Nor did kindly fortune desert this son of tidewater until he had become progressively United States Senator, Minister to France, Governor of Virginia, Secretary of State, Secretary of War and twice President of the United States.

Relics Still Stand.

In the Fredericksburg of today are treasured many landmarks that connect the city with its renowned erstwhile citizen, James Monroe. Through the kindness of his great-great-grandsons, Lawrence and Gouverneur Hoes, his law offices there, a rambling, one-story, brick building, have been preserved as a memorial for posterity.

The Monroes were old settlers when the most distinguished member of their family, James Monroe, son of Spence Monroe and Elizabeth Jones Monroe, was born on Moproes Creek, in Westmoreland County, Va., on April 28, 1758.

Little James grew up with the mutters of revolt against the tyrant king across the great waters rumbling in his ears. Echoes came from the Continental Congress where some of his own kin took part in the plans to throw off the yoke of oppression.

All the love of liberty, a heritage from his Irish ancestry, seethed in his blood. After tutoring at home he was ready for William and Mary College at 16. There talk of revolt rose even higher, because of the daring of youth. And, when the news came from Philadelphia of the Declaration of Independence, James Monroe was among the students in that grandest procession of democracy when the students, the faculty and all concerned with the college marched out together from classroom and professorial bench on the common mission to fight for freedom.

Monroe made his name known in those irregular ranks at White Plains, Trenton, Brandywine and on other famous fields.

Jefferson's Friend.

The war over, James Monroe, the close friend now and confidante of Thomas Jefferson, took up the task of reconstruction. His was an independent soul. In the United States Senate he did not hesitate to oppose the great Washington in matters of which he could not approve. Washington appreciated intellectual honesty above all else and sent him as Minister to France, despite his opposition.

But before all this happened James Monroe had found romance blossoming in his life.

As a member of the Congress he went to New York in 1783, the Capital of what was at that time the United States. The festivities which followed peace were attended by all the members of Congress, who, as strangers of distinction, received a lion's share of attention from the gay belles of the city.

Among these young ladies was a Miss Elizabeth Kortright, daughter of Lawrence Kortright, one of the founders of the New York Chamber of Commerce. Hospitality was the keynote of the Kortright home, and beaux swarmed there to court the beautiful, tall, dark-eyed Elizabeth. She was 18 when James Monroe, of Virginia, with a Revolutionary War record and the glamour of the Old Dominion about him, was introduced to the dashing New York girl.

He was 24 when they met and his experiences had given him a certain, earnest, confident manner that charmed Elizabeth. The attraction appears to have been mutual and Monroe was an ardent suitor. Such time as he could spare from his Congressional duties he passed by Elizabeth's side escorting her to dances, the picnics or the Battery, the sleigh rides up the river country and the other social events of the New York of that post-colonial period.

She Accepted.

One day she said "Yes" to one of his repeated proposals, and they were married in New York in 1786. Then followed retirement from Congress for a time and the first years of their marriage were passed in Fredericksburg, where Monroe practiced law and served the State in several capacities, notably as a member of the Virginia House of Delegates in 1787, and in 1788 as a member of the State convention that ratified the Federal Constitution for Virginia.

Then came the years in the United States Senate until James Monroe was appointed Minister to France. Mrs. Monroe did not flinch at this new obligation. Perhaps she foresaw that even greater things were ahead for her husband. At any rate, she was a charming hostess in the American legation in Paris. Her name is gratefully remembered there because of the part she played in securing the freedom from prison of Mme. La Fayette, wife of the man who gave his personal services and fortune so nobly to the Colonies in the dark days of their struggle for freedom.

In 1817, when Monroe became the fifth President of the United States, the havoc caused by the burning of the White House by the British in the War of 1812 was still apparent. As the new President and his wife examined the scantily furnished rooms and the flame-blackened walls they realized that it would be their task to furnish it anew. In order to make it habitable, they put in their own furniture, silverware and china—afterward purchased by the Government for permanent use in the White House—and ordered more from France.

New Year's Day.

At the New Year's reception in 1818 as Elizabeth Kortright Monroe, "regal in glowing satin, pearls and a plumed turban," received their guests the hundreds of visitors were open-eyed with amazement at the evidences of her good taste and judgment in new furniture and ornamentation of the Executive Mansion. It was ideally suited now for entertainment, and Mrs. Monroe fulfilled the rigorous social duties of the post as White House chatelaine with exactitude and discretion, so far as her health would permit.

White House days over, the Monroes returned to their home, Oak Hill, in Virginia, happy in their two daughters, Eliza, who became a Mrs. Hay, and Maria, who was married in the White House on March 9, 1820, to her cousin, Samuel Lawrence Gouverneur, of New York, who was the private secretary to her father, the President.

Elizabeth Monroe was glad that Washington days were behind them. She was tired with entertaining. Her husband wrote to Jefferson in 1824, "I shall be heartily glad when the term of my service expires, and I may return home in peace with my family, on whom, and especially on Mrs. Monroe, the burdens and cares of my long public service have borne too heavily."

Their romance had not dimmed with the cares of State, however. Their devotion to each other was noted among their friends. The only shadow upon their path in this regard was the increasing ill health of Mrs. Monroe, who had begun to fail in strength in those last White House days.

Suddenly the end came in 1830, when Mrs. Monroe died at Oak Hill. The bereaved husband could not bear to live there without her. So he went to New York to live with his daughter, Mrs. Gouverneur, where he became a familiar figure and where he died on the Fourth of July in 1831, less than a year after the death of his beloved wife.

So in "death as in life they were not divided."

Fashionable Folk Who Sail the Seas in Winter Are Well Provided With Boucle Knit Costumes

New York, Jan. 15.—Looks as if we're turning into a Nation of sailors, the way carnival-decked ships are plowing Southward through New York's Narrows, and from San Francisco's Golden Gate. And this good habit of winter cruising has had at least one effect on fashion. It's created an entirely new clothes classification . . . cruise clothes.

If we were making up such a wardrobe, we'd include several boucle knit costumes. Certainly a three-piece suit and a one or two piece dress (a two-piece is sketched), or both. They're warm enough for the windy side and not too warm for the sunny side of the ship. Nor do they muss easily in sea air. A good costume to live in all day.

Then we'd have extra sweaters to wear with the three-piece suit and a skirt or two to use with the sweaters.

Shorts and Shirts.

If we planned for lots of deck tennis and shuffleboard plus extensive tanning, a couple of those new shorts costumes would be put in the trunk. We'd have the shorts of flannel and peasant linens in medium shades or white. And neutral or bright shirts to top them off. (Left figure for the type.)

But if we wanted less tanning with our exercise, or if nature hadn't been so kind to our figures, we'd list slacks instead of shorts.

Evening clothes would be the next important consideration, what with nightly deck dancing under those Southern stars. Pebbly crepes, heavy sheers, chiffons . . . they could all go. But for beauty plus practicality in ocean dampness, include lace.

Informal Types.

A long-sleeved dinner dress, especially lovely in lace, would fit in smartly. So would dresses with jackets (the tailored type with fitted mannish jacket is a cruise favorite) and dresses with ruffly covered shoulders.

This, plus a light coat, would be our wardrobe if the entire cruise were to be spent aboard ship. But if we planned shore visits or stopovers, we'd also include some land costumes.

Shirtwaist Dress.

The shirtwaist dress would be the first one of these, in sheer wool or silk. And then a dress with a low-cut sunning back.

Jacket dresses of linen or cotton would be a smart inclusion. So would a tailored print dress, particularly if you are visiting the cities, such as Havana.

And of course bathing equipment, which you'll also want if your cruise ship has a swimming pool.

All-white or brown-and-white shoes, a suntan shade of stockings, a white or string-colored bag . . . these are the all-important cruising accessories.

And if you go in for the new off-the-face hats, don't forget sun glasses. And frankly dark ones are the thing this year, rather than the paler tints.

The Family Marketer

When one thinks of a pickle one usually has a mental picture of the big green dill one, or the tiny green gherkins, all them cucumbers of one size or another. But the Marketer has found a pickle that never was a cucumber, for it is a walnut instead. Pickled walnuts all prepared in a brown sauce are 70 cents a bottle.

But the gherkins are not to be scorned even when the walnuts are present. A bottle of bur gherkins that are fat and luscious is 31 cents. But mangoes, stuffed with celery and pickled are 35 cents for a 10-ounce bottle. Tiny cocktail onions are 73 cents. They are a little larger than a large pea, and are perfect to serve with caviar canapes. Caviar needs a pickle or two.

Pickle Slices.

Chipped pickle, as it is called, amounts to nothing moth than thin pickle slices. They are convenient to eat, and are delicious in flavor. Chipped pickles are 25 cents a bottle.

Sauces are somtimes a little out of the ordinary, too. You can get mushroom sauce for 25 cents a bottle, and walnut sauce for 37 cents. Mint sauce is put up in a slender green bottle, that would be lovely for holding flowers when emptied of its delicious contents. The Marketer believes that when you can get something for nothing, like a flower vase in a grocery that it's a real bargain.

Tartar sauce for filets of fish, fried scallops and oysters, is only 25 cents a bottle. This is an excellent purchase because it saves you the time and trouble of making your own tartar sauce, and certain kinds of sea food almost demand it.

Wedding Cakes.

There is a store in town that makes wonderful special cakes. Wedding cakes that are almost too beautiful to eat, and birthday cakes with names on them are among the varieties. They are decorated with candy flowers, and fancy flutings. When a special date rolls around drop in and give your order, and the Marketer assures you that it will be carried out to your utmost satisfaction.

There's a particularly nice kind of preserve that lends itself deliciously to the making of dainty sundaes. Mint pineapple preserve glowingly green, piled on the top of a dish of ice cream, will tempt the most jaded appetite. A jar of the preserve costs 31 cents.

Need something to keep on hand for a quick dinner? A big jar of chicken and noodle dinner is 35 cents, and it is all ready to be popped into a pan and heated. It will make a nourishing and appetizing meal with no trouble.

Another quick meal is Italian Ravioli. The little square noodles are stuffed with all kinds of good things, the jar is large enough to satisfy four ravenous appetites, and for 25 cents.

Clam chowder is always delicious, and particularly simple to make when you can get the clams all minced for you, in a can for 28 cents. Foods are so efficiently prepared nowadays that it's all but digested for you.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Paget's Bone Disease.

A correspondent wants an article on Paget's disease, but without specifying which of the several disorders bearing the name of that distinguished physician is the basis of his interest. We select Paget's disease of the bones. This is a chronic and incurable disease of certain areas in the bones, causing bony deformities. It is a disease of adult life, generally affecting those who are beyond the meridian. It may lead to spontaneous fracture or easy breaking of the bones, but that is not the rule. If a person who hitherto had straight legs notices that he is getting bowlegged, he may suspect Paget's.

The man or woman we are considering here is well beyond the rickets period and is not entitled to bowlegs for any other reason; or the gradually developing bony deformity may be in regions other than the legs.

The other symptoms are pain in the affected region, perhaps some swelling or other soreness. Progressive weakness is another symptom. By this time suspicion is directed to the bones. X-ray pictures are taken. These show disease of the bones with bending and bowing.

In health, enough is absorbed by the blood to just equal the amount that is used up daily in the work of the body and then thrown away as waste by the kidneys. There are small glands, called parathyroids, that preside over the blood calcium.

Laurel Seeks Vote On Sunday Movies

Petitions Signed, Churches Oppose Move.

Several churches, it is said, have combined to oppose a move to have the local theater open seven days a week.

The theater, meanwhile, is providing slips to be signed at the box office, asking the council to permit a vote on the question. One of the chief arguments is that Laurel is the only town of any size in Prince Georges County which has not indorsed the seven-day program.

Feiker New Secretary Of Engineering Council

Appointment of Frederick M. Feiker as executive secretary of the American Engineering Council, to succeed Lawrence W. Wallace, was announced yesterday.

Mr. Wallace, who has been secretary for the last 13 years, has resigned to become vice president of the W. S. Lee Engineering Corporation. Mr. Feiker has had 30 years of experience in both private and public business, including the editorship with two large publishing houses. His headquarters will be at 744 Jackson place northwest.

Man Hurt in Stairs Fall.

James Edward Hall, 50, giving his address as the Gospel Mission, was injured seriously yesterday when he fell down a flight of cement steps at 327 Linworth place southwest. He was given first-aid treatment at Providence Hospital and transferred to Gallinger Hospital.

Bishop Freeman Assails Lack Of Faith. Rampant Pessimism

Death of Herod, and the Life of Christ Child, Held Example.

Implying that the death of Herod and the survival of the Christ child was an event that has repeated itself many times in history and will continue to do so, Bishop James E. Freeman spoke yesterday at Evensong services in the Great Choir of the Washington Cathedral.

The Bishop flayed attacks on faith, pointing to one made by an eminent educator as typical of a pessimism that is rampant today. The educator charged that all our old faiths are either dead or dying and urged that we start building again on the ruins, said Bishop Freeman.

"I refuse to believe that there is no good left in any of our faiths. Our economic system and social order must retain some good feature worthy of our faith," said the Bishop.

"Today people are coming to see more and more the value of faith. Men in public places, our own President, are preachers of faith.

"All the great leaders in history have been preachers of faith. William Jennings Bryan and Woodrow Wilson were two of the greatest preachers the world has ever known.

Juniors Hear Noted Chemist At Georgetown

"God and the Sciences," Theme of Papers at College.

"God and the Sciences," taken from the motto of Georgetown University, furnished the theme of papers read at an academic session yesterday afternoon when college juniors expounded relationship between science and religion.

Dr. Hugh S. Taylor, professor of chemistry at Princeton University, was guest of honor at the exercises, conducted under auspices of the Science Academy of the College of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Taylor stressed the need for a clearer understanding, especially on the part of pastors, of the relations between science and religion.

He expressed the opinion that Catholics generally are not doing their full share in science and urged more activity on their part. He also pleaded for a more sympathetic understanding of scientists and their work.

Survey Reports NRA Benefits

(Associated Press.)

A definite rise in work standards for women in cotton mills was credited to NRA yesterday by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor.

A study in 1932, a statement said, showed that prior to NRA, long hours, low wages and irregular employment were the lot of women in the milling industry.

The bureau said the survey showed a median wage in 1932 of $11.10 in Maine and $7.50 and $7.60 in South Carolina and Texas, received by all women regardless of time worked.

Median earnings of women who worked full time were given at $13 in Maine, $11.10 in Texas and $9.65 in South Carolina, with a 54 to 55 hour work week.

"These figures emphasize the fact the minimum wage under NRA's cotton textile code—$13 in the North, and $12 in the South—represents a real gain to many women cotton mill workers," the statement said, adding that the long weeks have been reduced to 40 hours.

Requirements Added for Adult Class Teachers

Deluge of Applications Results in Closer Examination.

In an effort to stem the flow of applicants for jobs in adult education and vocational classes, Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, announced yesterday that all persons seeking the positions will have to meet certain qualifications.

The applicants for teaching positions in the classes for illiterate adults will be required to have had training and considerable experience in elementary teaching below the fifth grade, and have patience, skill and sympathy with persons of very limited education, Dr. Kramer said.

"They must be able to gain the confidence of these people in giving instruction, slowly and carefully and without offense to those who may be sensitive about their lack of education," the assistant superintendent said.

Posting of these qualifications at the Franklin School yesterday did not appear to discourage the number of applicants. The classes, Dr. Kramer said, will not be organized before February 1.

Woman Commits Suicide With Gas

Places Tube in Her Mouth; Reason Unknown.

With a tube from an open gas jet in her mouth, Mrs. Rose L. Bennett, 60, was found dead yesterday in a bathtub in her home, 33 Rhode Island avenue northwest. A certificate of suicide was issued by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Mrs. Bennett was found by her sister, Mrs. Fannie Miller, of 933 L street northwest. Mrs. Miller discovered the tragedy when she went to pay a Sunday afternoon call, and summoned Dr. W. A. Nichols, a neighbor.

The Fire Rescue Squad worked in a futile attempt to revive Mrs. Bennett. Relatives were unable to explain her act.

3 Events Planned By Baden Groups

Minstrel Show and Two Card Parties Planned.

Three events have been planned in Baden, Md. The Future Farmers of America of Baden Agricultural High School will give a minstrel show February 9, in Connick Hall, directed by Mrs. W. B. Early.

January 26 the Baden High School senior class will give a card party.

Another card party, to be held February 2, will be sponsored by ladies of St. Paul's Church.

Gravem, Ibsen's Friend, Dead in San Francisco

Gunnar Gravem, 75, friend of and authority on Henrik Ibsen, celebrated Scandinavian playwright, died Saturday in San Francisco.

He was the father of Attorney Axel B. Gravem, of Chevy Chase, Md. He brought 10 of his children with him to the United States when he left Norway, his native country, in 1903. A former merchant and shipping man of that country, he came to the States when his fleet was lost in a storm. His wife died in 1922.

Surviving, in addition to his son here, are four sons and four daughters. All but one are residents of the United States.

Burial Services Today For Mrs. L. M. Jenkins

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today for Mrs. Lida M. Jenkins, 2003 Kearney street northwest, who died Thursday. Services will be held at the home of her niece, Mrs. J. S. Boyer, of Capitol Heights, Md., with burial in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Jenkins is survived by her husband, William L. Jenkins; a sister, Mrs. John C. Haley, and two nieces, Mrs. Earl S. Landolt and Mrs. J. S. Boyer. She was a past officer of the Maccabees and past noble grand of Rebecca Lodge, of Mount Rainier, Md.

Junior Guild Plans Show.

The Junior Guild of St. Philip's Episcopal Church, Laurel, Md., will present a vaudeville show tomorow night at the parish hall under the direction of Mrs. Grace H. Millette. The guild, of which Mrs. Townley McKee is president, is assisted by pupils of Miss Millette's Dancing School and other Laurel talent.

Post-Graduate High School Students Face Ban

Plea Broadcast That U.S. Loans Save Schools

The six-point program asked of the United States Government to save 20,000 schools from being closed after April 1 was discussed in a radio address last night by James H. Richmond, superintendent of public instruction in Kentucky, and chairman of the National Committee for Federal Emergency Aid to Education.

Allocation of $50,000,000 from the Federal relief budget is asked to keep schools open during the present year. An appropriation of $100,000,000 is asked to prevent the closing of schools during the school year, 1934-35. Distribution of a substantial sum from the Federal Treasury to States is requested.

Federal Loans Asked.

The fourth recommendation provides for loans from the Federal Government to school districts on the security of deliquent taxes, frozen assets in closed banks and other acceptable securities, such loans to be repaid after normal economic conditions have become established.

Ten per cent is asked from any new public works appropriations for schools and college buildings and housing for other educational enterprises. The committee asks for an outright grant on a 100 per cent basis for this purpose, and recommends that major attention be given to the needs of rural schools.

"Only through some such measure can decent housing be provided for the thousands of children now going to school in portable shacks or in unsanitary and unsafe school buildings," Mr. Richmond said.

Student Loans Also Sought.

The last of the six recommendations is that an appropriation of $30,000,000 be provided to assist students to attend institutions of higher education, presumably on a student loan or workshop basis.

"Because of the inability of students to pay tuition, many of them have had to give up their ambitions for a college education," Mr. Richmond said. "The Nation must look to its college trained men and women for the leadership of tomorrow, just as it turns to the secondary and elementary schools for the development of sound citizenship which must not be swept from the firm rock of American ideals into the shallows of untried social and governmental schemes."

Mt. Vernon Plans Week's Activities

8 p. m.—Groveton Parent-Teacher Association meets in school auditorium.

Friday, 1:30 p. m.—Franconia Junior 4-H Club meets in school auditorium, whole wheat demonstration to be given.

2:30 p. m.—Potters Hill 4-H Club meets in school, with demonstration on whole wheat cookery.

8 p. m.—Mount Vernon Grange meets in Sherwood Hall. Lecturer's hour program in charge of Miss Mary Gillingham.

Laurel G. O. P.. Club Names G. P. McCeney

A committee, appointed to draw up the by-laws, includes James P. Curley, William A. Miles, jr., and E. C. Parks. The organization meeting last Friday night was addressed by Wendell Allen, of Baltimore.

That's That

Policeman Requires Just One Wallop.

Brief and to the point was the report of Policeman D. H. Mayo, of the Fourth Precinct, yesterday. It speaks for itself:

"I was guarding Norman Edward Bragg, 21, in a second-floor room of 438 Eleventh street southwest. Bragg tried to escape and hit me with his fist. I struck Bragg. He was conveyed to Providence Hospital."

Rallies Called On Tobacco Cut

Prince Georges Meetings Arranged to Explain Reduction Plan.

As a part of the Southern Maryland tobacco reduction program, four meetings will be held in Prince Georges County this week. The schedule follows:

Baden High School, Thursday, 1:30 p. m.; Mitchellville Consolidated School, Thursday, 7:30 p. m.; Marlboro Courthouse, Friday, 1:30 p. m., and Clinton High School, Friday, 7:30 p. m.

Signing of the tobacco-reduction contracts will be explained at the meetings. All growers who have averaged less than 15 cents per pound for their 1932 crop are urged to be present.

The plan is designed to reduce production of low grade tobacco by compensating those who make a 25 per cent reduction in acreage and poundage.

Days for signing the contracts will be Monday, January 22; Tuesday, January 23, and Wednesday, January 24. Contract men will be at each meeting.

153 Put to Work In Prince Georges

Committee Issues Call to Housekeepers.

One hundred and fifty-three persons were given jobs in Prince Georges County last week by the National reemployment committee, representing little more than half of the registrations.

Of the total, 141 were men and 12 women.

Calls are being sent out by the office for white women to act as housekeepers. There has been a far greater demand for this type than the office has been able to supply.

Birth-Control Session Opens This Afternoon

Delegates From 28 States Will Meet With Mrs. Sanger.

Mrs. Margaret Sanger, America's foremost birth control advocate, will open the American Conference on Birth Control and National Recovery this afternoon at the Hotel Mayflower, before representatives from eight States, Hawaii, England and Scotland.

Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser to the Secretary of Agriculture, will speak on "Economic Repercussions of Population Changes."

Other speakers will be Prof. Warren S. Thompson, director of the Scripps Foundation for Reesarch in Population Problems, of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio; Prof. William Fielding Ogburn, of the University of Chicago, who recently resigned from the Consumers Advisory Council of the NRA, and Prof. Joseph J. Spengler, of the University of Arizona. Mrs. Sanger will make the opening address and Mrs. John F. Dryden, chairman of the reception committee, will welcome the delegates.

Tonight, there will be a session devoted to "The Religious, Ethical and Moral Aspects of Birth Control," which will be addressed by three prominent churchmen; Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of New York City; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of the New York City Free Synagogue, and the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church in Washington. Dr. Arthur C. Christie, president of the Board of American University, will preside.

High School Seniors Face New Worries

Ballou Says Economy Threatens Aid for Postgraduates.

The high school graduate who wonders what he is going to do after he gets his diploma is going to find the question harder than ever to answer.

Throughout the depression, Washington high schools have served as a haven to many graduates who could not afford to enter college and were unable to get employment, but Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou has warned that reduced appropriations may make this accommodation impossible soon.

At present there are 211 boys and girls in high schools here taking postgraduate work and many more will apply for readmission after commencement exercises at the end of this month. The number of applicants at midyear will be increased because they can not enter college at this time—even if they have the means to do so.

Teachers' Pay Is Snag.

Dr. Ballou points out there always have been a limited number of boys and girls who have continued their high school work after graduation, partciularly after February. Prior to 1932, they could be accommodated without increasing the cost of public instruction, because establishment of additional classes and employment of additional teachers was not necessary, the superintendent said. Since 1932, however, the number has increased to such an extent that establishment of additional classes and hiring of new teachers has been necessary, the superintendent reported.

"The school authorities believe these pupils should be encouraged to continue their education," Dr. Ballou told the District Commissioners in his annual report. "In view, however, of substantially reduced appropriations for teachers and officers and for school buildings, the school authorities may find it impossible in the near future to enroll high school graduates for further instruction in our high school.s"

Western Restricts Classes.

Western High School has taken the first step in restricting the admission of postgraduates, according to Dr. Elmer S. Newton, principal. Graduates who wish to return will be required to take a cull-time course, he said. Other high schools, however, will endeavor to accommodate postgraduates with one or two courses. Nineteen are taking full-time courses at Western now.

Roosevelt also has placed limitations on postgraduates. Allen Davis, the principal, said the school can not afford to accommodate them. However, if any vacancies are found after new classes are organized, postgraduates are accepted. Only 12 are enrolled at Roosevelt now.

Restrictions at Roosevelt have resulted in its graduates cutting into other high school territory, particularly Central, where approximately 50 postgraduates are in class. Dr. H. A. Smith, the principal, said there were 75 at the beginning of the year, but some dropped out. He added that every effort will be made to take care of applicants after February.

McKinley Admits 180.

The largest number of postgraduates, 180, is at McKinley. F. C. Daniel, the principal, said they have been accommodated without considerable trouble and that he hopes to be able to continue unless prohibited by the Boar dof Education.

Charles Hart, principal of Eastern, said he has 50 boys and girls enrolled, most of them students trying to strengthen themselves in certain subjects to increase their chances of entering college next fall.

One bright spot for high school seniors is the scholarship contest to be conducted by The Washington Post, details of which will appear daily in this paper.

At least five pupils who may be asking themselves, "what now?" may find the answer through this offering of a free four-year course in one of the four universities of the Capital.

Good morning! If it were not for our unusual relationship with Schloss Bros., Baltimore, our present sale could not have even been started, let alone continued. However, there is an end to even the most extensive resources. We seriously urge you to buy clothing before this sale ends.

Mack Says He Wouldn't Be Surprised If Detroit Won '34 Pennant

Closer Race Seen by A's Pilot

Red Sox and Western Teams to Offer Real Fight, He Says.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14 (AP).—Connie Mack, preparing to leave for the South, said today he wouldn't be a bit surprised to see his former ace catcher, Mickey Cochrane, pilot the Detroit Tigers to the American League pennant this coming season.

"Detroit has a good chance to win the pennant," he conceded. "In fact, I wouldn't be a bit surprised if they won it.

"The club has a wonderful pitching staff and has added to its hitting strength with Cochrane and Goslin. Even without their addition, Detroit ought to be better next season."

Sees Close Race.

However, the veteran pilot of the Athletics, who will leave for Florida tomorrow, looks to his own club to have something to say in the campaign, which he believes will be closer this year than for many seasons past.

"The many trades since the close of last season are bound to tighten the race," he said. "Since 1920, the A's, New York and Washington have dominated the league, but its going to be different next season, with real opposition coming from the West and the Boston Red Sox."

Ruth to Sign Today.

New York, Jan. 14 (U.P.).—Babe Ruth will sign his 1934 contract with the New York Yankees tomorrow at Col. Jack Ruppert's brewery offices, accompanied by appropriate ceremony.

The cameramen and news reel boys have been invited to record Babe autographing the document that calls for $35,000, probably his last contract as an active player. This salary represents a cut of $17,000 from his 1933 stipend.

When the Babe and Col. Ruppert came to a salary agreement Friday, it permitted the slugger to sign in New York instead of at the Florida training camp, for the first time in years.

Hurler Jack Quinn Is Hurt in Collision

Spitballer and Wife's Auto Hits Milk Truck.

Lima, Ohio, Jan. 14 (AP).—John P (Jack) Quinn, former big league spitball pitcher, Mrs. Quinn and her two sisters, all of Chicago, were treated at a hospital here today for injuries received in an automobile collision near Ada, a few miles east of here.

Quinn, who was cut about the head and face, was released from the hospital after receiving first aid, but Mrs. Quinn, Mrs. Mary Garretson and Mrs. Zenobia Parks remained there for treatment of painful hurts received when their automobile, driven by Ross Lambert, Quinn's brother-in-law, collided with a milk truck at a road intersection. Lambert was not hurt.

Lambert said the party was en route to Pottsville, Pa., from Chicago. The Quinns and Mrs. Parks gave their address as 7520 Kinbark avenue, Chicago, and Lambert in Riverdale, a Chicago suburb.

They said they did not know when they would continue their journey East.

Alabama and Kentucky Quintets Tie for Lead

Atlanta, Jan. 14 (AP).—The highly advertised Louisiana State quintet tumbled into a couple of backward somersaults and Alabama and Kentucky hotfooted it out front in the Southeastern Conference basket ball parade last week.

The veteran Louisiana Club, looked upon as a leading challenger for the cage title, managed to salvage only one game of the four it played. L. S. U. lost to Mississippi State by a single point and returned to form the next evening to wallop the Maroons, 48 to 23.

However, Alabama had too much on the ball for the Baton Rouge crew and set Louisiana back twice, 36 to 33, and 37 to 29.

These triumphs, together with an earlier pair over Tulane, placed Alabama and Kentucky in a tie for the lead with four victories each.

Circuit Heads Meet.

Goshen, N. Y., Jan. 14 (AP).—E. Roland Harriman, president of the Grand Circuit, today issued a call for the annual meeting of the stewards to be held at Cleveland on Tuesday. Dates for 1934 will be assigned and several new cities may be granted memberships in the circuit.

Maryland Five Shares Top Honors

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 14 (AP).—While North Carolina was carrying its victory string to four games, Maryland's veteran Old Liners, with a sophomore supplying the spark, whipped Duke's Blue Devils to furnish the only upset in an interesting week of Southern Conference basket ball play.

The Maryland victory gave promise of another potential threat to the basket ball supremacy of South Carolina's 6-footers who open their conference season against Clemson's Tigers at Clemson Friday night.

Virginia Teams Beaten.

It was a tough week for Virginia teams, which lost four games to invading quintets. The Tarheels swept across the border to ring up decisive victories over Virginia Tech, V. M. I. and Washington and Lee on successive evenings and Maryland completed the rout by subduing V. P. I., 29 to 24, last night.

The narrowest victory margin of the week was the 26-to-25 victory of Washington and Lee's Generals over Virginia's Cavaliers. The Generals made better use of their foul shots.

Old Dominion teams will take to the road this week in quest of the same sort of hospitality they showed Maryland and North Carolina quintets. North Carolina will entertain Virginia at Chapel Hill Friday night and the following evening the Cavaliers will be the guests of Duke's Devils at Durham.

Two Important Games.

In two games of importance in State championship races, Virginia and Virginia Military will clash at Lexington Tuesday, and North Carolina State will meet Duke the following night.

The standings:

Summers Wins Squash Crown From Skillman

Philadelphia, Jan. 14 (AP).—Jack Summers, of Boston, Massachusetts Institute of Technology coach, defeated Johnny Skillman, of the Apawamis Club, Rye, N. Y., the defending titleholder, today in the final struggle for the 1934 National professional squash rackets championship. The scores were 11—15, 4—15, 18—14, 15—2 and default.

Skillman defaulted the fifth game because of an injury to his right foot yesterday. Summers is 40 years old. He held the title in 1931 and 1932.

Just a Few Ideas

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (Spl.).—The prophecy made to me by Mr. Vincent Richards anent the Tilden-Vines hook-up is fulfilled, but a trifle early. Vinnie figured it would be about Denver before Ellsworth caught up with the old gentleman of the tennis courts. He cotched him in Washington last night when Bill was in one of his petulant artistic moods as well as off form. That makes Prof. Richards a very good prophet and Master Vines an a No. 1 tennis player.

The Yales are in a dreadful stew over the problem hiring a new football coach. They are afraid to pick up a high-powered Western coach because, coming after a losing season, it would "smack of commercialism." Poor Yales. What did they fire Mal Stevens for? Why do they bang you three and four bucks a football ticket?

Oh, those poor muddled, confused Yales! Stick the kids into a rough, tough, full-season football schedule beginning with Columbia and including Army, Dartmouth, Princeton and Harvard, and then refuse to hire a good coach who knows how to teach them how to play and protect themselves because it smacks of commercialism. What does the schedule smack of? And the Yale Bowl? Jerushy!

To my unconcealed amazement, the greatest sports corporation in the country, the Madison Square Garden outfit, suddenly began to promote again, dickered with Dempsey, and will in all probability run the Carnera-Baer fight in New York next June, which, of course, is the fight that everyone wants to see. There will be enough money in it for everybody so that the Garden can afford to take Dempsey in on the promotion. If the Garden had done something that was suggested to them years ago when Rickard died, which was to put Dempsey into the show window and let him run the fights, boxing wouldn't be where it is today and the company would be showing some profit. Dempsey out of the Garden has cost them plenty.

I am, as usual, wide-eyed with surprise when I read in the papers that the Baer-Carnera negotiations may be held up and are being held up by handsome Will Duffy, the Beau Brummel of Broadway.

The thing that surprises me is that it was brought out recently that Da Preem had severed connections with Leon See and Duffy and Walter (Good Time) Charley Friedman and was hereafter to be promoted and shared by one Signor Luigi Soresi, an Italian banker. In fact, shortly after the announcement was made, the signor and Da Preem got out of the country in one hell of a hurry, for which I do not blame them. I would under similar circumstances.

Went to the State amateur championships Saturday night and saw one of the funniest knockouts I have ever seen. A big German was fighting a long and stringy and very nervous Senegambian in one of the heavyweight bouts. The Senegambian held both hands straight out in front of him and quivered all over like a serving of chocolate jello without the whipped cream. Every so often he would shut both eyes and lash out with a right hand that he brought clear from the rear of the building all decorated with verbena, forget-me-not and flowering nightshade.

The Dutchman was giving him what-for enthusiastically, while the Senegambian quivered and fled. Then Hitler waxed careless, the Senegambian let one go from so far back it was still dated 1933 and caught the white boy flush on the point of the chin. Mister German stopped stock still and bent over double. He seemed to be thinking about something. A most reflective look came over his face, as though he were trying to remember a date or somebody's name.

Then, very gradually, like a slow-motion picture, his legs began to fold under him, exactly like one of those extension hatracks, and he sat down very slowly and very carefully like an old lady about to sit down on a bench that she knows is damp. He was a game guy and arose without the formality of a count. His legs immediately folded up again in the same stately tempo and he sat down again. The Senegambian watched him, fascinated by the result of his handiwork. After the German had taken his third squat the referee had to step in and do something about it or we would have been there all night.

Baer to Fight All Comers On Tour

Due to Agree This Week to Meet Champion or Loughran in June.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (Spl.).—In direct contradiction to the expressed wishes of Jack Dempsey that Max Baer take one or two "warm-up" fights before meeting Primo Carnera for the heavyweight title, Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, said tonight he hid not believe his charge would have any "official" fights before the championship battle.

"I figure on taking Maxie on an extended tour during which he will meet all—comers," Hoffman said. "This will not be an exhibition tour; rather a fighting tour. We found out last year that was the best way to get Maxie in shape."

Will Travel to Coast.

Baer, who is now playing in vaudeville, goes from Jersey City this week to Baltimore. After the Baltimore engagement, he will go to Sacramento, Calif., to clean up some litigation. Then, if negotiations for the fight with Carnera are completed, he will retire to Hoffman's ranch at Fair Oaks, Calif., and rough it there for about a month, starting his fighting tour in mid-March.

It was learned tonight that Baer is virtually certain to agree this week to meet Carnera or Tommy Loughran in a title bout in June. This title bout, in Madison Square Garden's outdoor bowl at New York, will be under the garden's sole promotion, with Jack Dempsey entering the picture only as one of Baer's directors.

Early Arrangements.

Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the garden, is expected to complete negotiations with Ancil Hoffman before Thursday when Baer leaves for Baltimore.

Champion Carnera is slated to arrive from Italy on Tuesday, but his arrival will have no bearing on the negotiations with Hoffman. Carnera is already under contract to fight for the garden until September 30, however, Carnera's managers, Louis Soresi and Bill Duffy, must approve the garden's selection of an opponent later.

Montgomery Fives In Eight Contests

Bethesda Is in Spotlight With Four Battles.

Eight games are on the schedule for the Montgomery County quintets this week, with the climax on Friday when five games will be played, including the weekly series encounters.

Bethesda C. C. holds the spotlight for the second successive week, scheduling four games. It opens tomorrow entertaining Kendall School for the Deaf. It travels to Landon on Wednesday and has a double-header attraction on Friday, with Poolesville at Leland in the afternoon, and with Herndon at night.

Other games include Silver Spring vs. Damascus, and Sherwood vs. Gaithersburg, Friday. Rockville idles in the league, but has carded a tilt at home with the St. Johns, of Frederick, five.

Saturday has a single contest, Silver Spring traveling to Charlotte Hall for a night encounter.

Purdue Cagemen Lead Western Conference

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP).—This is beginning to look like the year in which the Western Conference basket ball championship goes back home to Purdue.

The Boilermakers have played only three games, but tonight stood alone at the top of the league, victorious in all three starts. They really let loose last night against Indiana, hitherto undefeated, and demonstrated just how good they are by crushing the Hoosiers, 47 to 13, on Indiana's own floor.

Purdue's rise to undisputed possession of the leadership was made easier by an unexpected bit of cooperation by Minnesota. The Gophers, ranked as one of the weak teams in the Big Ten, following defeats by Purdue and Northwestern, suddenly turned savage and scored the biggest upset of the season in beating Iowa's favored aggregation, 39 to 38, at Minneapolis.

Thomson Downs Cox, Creavy Beats Rogers; Gain Golf Final

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 14 (AP).—Golf's "Sultan of Swat" among the American professionals, Jim Thomson, of Long Beach, Calif., and Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y., rated as the steadiest of match play competitors, will battle it out here tomorrow in the 36-hole final of the San Francisco National match play open championship.

Cheavy, methodical young shot maker who won the P. G. A. championship in 1932, eliminated John Rogers, of Denver, Colo., tournament medalist and one of the favorites, 3 and 2.

Shoots One Under Par.

One up as they came out for the afternoon found, Thomson shot a fine 34, one under par, for the third nine to take a four up lead at the twenty-seventh. Cox had a 37 for the nine. The Brooklyn pro twice cut Thomson's lead to 3 up on the last nine. He won the twenty-eighth byb sinking a 60-foot ship shot for an eagle three. Thomson increased his lead to four up again on the next hole, but Cox's birdie four on the thirtieth reduced the margin once more.

The thirty-first was halved in par 5s. Thomson went 4 up again at the thirty-second, as Cox conceded a 3-foot putt for a birdie 2, meanwhile taking four strokes on the hole because of a trip to the rough.

The match ended on the thirty-third when Cox missed a 7-foot putt for a win and halved the hole in par four. Thomson was three under par for the afternoon play, and even par for the day. Cox toured the Lake Merced course one over standard figures on the second round, and was four over in the morning.

Creavy Squares Count.

Rogers held a 1-up lead on Creavy at the end of the eighteenth. The former P. G. A. titleholder squared the count by winning the first hole of the afternoon round. He never was headed thereafter, going into the lead on the twenty-first with a birdie 3.

At the twenty-seventh, Creavy was two up. He shot the third nine in 34, to shade par by a stroke. Rogers, meanwhile, had a 37.

Rogers won the twenty-eighth by a birdie 4 to Creavy's 6 when the latter was stymied. The next hole was halved and Creavy made it two up by winning the thirtieth with a birdie 4. Rogers mussed up the hole to take a 6.

The next three were halved and Creavy ended the match with a par 4 on the thirty-fourth after Rogers had dubbed his third shot.

Led by Grange, Bears Down All-Stars

"Galloping Ghost" Scores 2 Touchdowns in 26-7 Victory on Coast.

Los Angeles, Jan. 14 (AP).—Harold (Red) Grange may be getting old and his legs stiff, but he galloped like a ghost out of the past today, scoring two of the touchdowns which gave Chicago's Bears a 26 to7 victory over a Southern California All-Star football team before a near capacity crowd of 20,000 at Wrigley Field.

Many of the spectators, a lot of them nonbelievers in the prowess of the professionals, had not yet gained their seats when Grange flashed through tackle over the weak side of the line, cut back, and untouched 67 yards for the first touchdown.

Is Caught Flat-footed.

Homer Griffith, quite a quarter back for Southern California last fall, was caught flat-footed in the safety position, but he gave chase as Red breezed by, too late to catch the former Illinois star.

Then, adding insult to injury, Red took one of John (Bull) Doehring's passes off his left shoulder for a 44 yard gain and a touchdown before the game was 15 minutes old.

The All Stars, a good share of them pro players in season, fought back as the second quarter opened and scored when Racehorse Russ Saunders circled left end from the 5-yard line for a touchdown. That was their only real chance.

Live up to Title.

Len Kenney Leads Cue Tournament

De Oro Is in Second Place; Two Matches Today.

Philadelphia, Jan. 14 (AP).—With the eight entrants in the National three-cushion billiard tournament enjoying a rest today, the tourney enters its second quarter paced by Len Kenney, brilliant cue star from Chicago.

With seven of the scheduled 28 games already played in the first three days of the competition, Kenney led the field by virtue of two victories out of two starts.

In second place, at least temporarily, was the 70-year-old Cuban veteran from New York, Alfredo De Oro, sr., with one victory and no losses. He will jump into a tie with Kenney if he turns back the Pacific Coast threat, Marc Catton, of Oakland, Calif., his opponent in one of tomorrow's afternoon matches.

The match between Robert Harper, of Denver, champion of the Southern section, and Arthur Woods, seeded entrant from New York, is the companion tilt to the De Oro-Catton contest on tomorrow's afternoon program. Harper, twice defeated and still without a win, is at the bottom of the list in the standings.

The standings:

Warren High Takes Pair.

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Warren County High School basket ball teams won both games in a double-header program with Boyce High School in the R.-M. A. gymnasium here. The girls' game was won by 23 to 10. The Warren County boys won, 33 to 16.

Heurich Reds Take Third Straight

FOR the third time in as many starts, the Heurich Reds, local professional basket ball team, defeated another Sunday visitor, this time, the Gettysburg Fleetwings, trimming them, 34-28. The game was played at the G. W. gym.

A zigzag, seesaw battle it was throughout the first half, with the lead changing hands no less than nine times. But the second half proved a different story, and with Fenlon, Croson and Zahn leading the attack, the invading Maroon club was swept off its feet.

Spectacular shots and close guarding by both teams featured the first part of the imbroglio. It was four minutes before either team punctured the scoring column. Bozey Berger, star guard of the local quintet, slipped through the inner works of the Fleetwings and whipped in a beautiful field goal. Lew Rielly, former Penn State star and center for the Pennsy outfit, tied up the count. And that is the way the ball game went throughout the first part.

Holds Lead at Half.

With but 10 seconds to go and the locals leading 14-12, the long-legged Reilly crashed through the Reds' defense and flipped through a nice two-pointer to tie the score. A moment later the gun fired to finish the half, but Art Zahn's flip was scooting through the air at the time, then snuggled into the basket to give the Heurichs a 16-14 lead.

Sparring around the center of the floor with an occasional toss that rolled off the hoop, or never touched it at all, the home outfit started the barrage that sewed up the game. Zahn and Croson came through, bringing the score to 20-14. A one-man rally by Chick Chanoski helped the invaders cut down the lead of the Reds, 22-20, and then Fenlon and Croson found the hoop in easy fashion to carry the lead to 30-22. Three minutes later the game ended.

Tailors Win, 22-14.

In a preliminary game, the Katzman Tailors defeated the Columbia Firemen in a well-played match, 22-14. Hartnett of the Tailors and Zimmerman of the Firemen starred for their respective teams.

Lake Placid Bobsled Racing Is Under Way

Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 14 (AP).—Ivan Brown drove the Keene Valley Scandals to first place in the novice four-man bobsled races on Mount Vanhovenberg Olympic run today. These were the first races of the current season.

Brown's time was 2:09:90 for the three heats. On his team were John Otis, Vincent Beede and Elmer Elsworth, brakeman.

A heavy snowfall last night made the straightaways slow, although the 22-foot-high curves were in excellent condition.

Lake Placid A. C. was second and the Elks third. Seven teams participated.

Harrisburg Wins.

Covington, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Covington High School went down to defeat here last night before a determined band of basket ball players from Harrisonburg, 28 to 19. The visitors scored 24 points during the last two periods.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

MR. THEODORE HAYES, the name being quite unrecognizable unless you know it is Teddy Hayes, loaned his presence to Washington during the past 24 hours before catching a plane for Hollywood and home. Mr. Hayes, it seems was something of a figure in the sports topics of the day back in 1919, when a young hobo by the name of William Harrison Dempsey left the battered hulk of Jess Willard on the canvas at Toledo and usurped the heavyweight championship of the world.

Those were the days when young Jack Dempsey was plagarizing the late Abraham Lincoln with such statements as "All that I a mor hope to be, I owe to my trainer, Teddy Hayes. On occasion, Dempsey would revise the eulogy in favor of his manager, Jack Kearns, but it seemed fairly patent that the young Manassa Mauler of those days, if he owed anybody anything, was in debt to Hayes and Kearns exclusively.

Joins Up With Kearns.

It seems that Dempsey squared his accounts with both Kearns and Hayes several years ago. Anyway, Kearns and Dempsey came to the parting of the ways back in 1925 and when it came time for Hayes to cast his lot with one or the other, Teddy joined up with Kearns, making Dempsey a minority of one.

The mutual regard with which Dempsey on one side and Hayes and Kearns on the other feel for each other is now something less than infinitum. Suffice it to say that the trinity collapsed in an avalanche of law suits, and counter law suits, that arose to haunt Dempsey in his every title fight following the rift.

The succeeding years saw Dempsey dissipate his heavyweight title and rise to power as a promoter, while Kearns and Hayes continued in the prize ring industry with Mickey Walker as their most valuable human chattel. Walker was never able to earn a tithe of the purses that Dempsey commanded and at present the firm of Kearns, Hayes and Walker is spinning rapidly to the bottom of the sock exchange.

Likes Primo Carnera.

Primarily here to interest the RFC in the reconstruction of his California acreage ruined by the New Year's Day flood, and bringing tidings that Mrs. Hayes, the Lina Basquette of stage and rhumba fame, is anticipating a blessed event, Teddy Hayes was not loath to talk about the prize fight situation.

"I like this Carnera," he said. "He's a good, big man and those kind of fellows are rare. The big heavies are not very long on footwork and the Sphinx could duck their slow jabs, but this Primo's different. He's fast with his feet and his mitts.

"Loughran doesn't figure to stay more than two rounds with Primo at Miami. The Garden didn't want to take any chances of spoiling a Carnera-Baer fight when it matched Loughran with the Italian. That weight Tommy's carrying around these days is slowing him up and when you slow Loughran up, you don't have the old Loughran. He gets cut easily, for another thing."

Cochrane Vs. Shires.

Back in 1930, Hayes was ready to take Mickey Cochrane, newly-appointed manager of the Detroit Tigers, under his pugilistic wing. Art Shires was cutting a swath in both baseball and fight circles with his challenge to meet any ball player with the gloves, and Hayes was prepared to stage a Cochrane-Shires bout in Chicago.

"Mickey came to me with the idea, and said he'd give Shires 15 pounds over any distance. I knew Mickey could fight, having seen him in the gymnasuim. He was a cinch to beat Shires. The Cubs' park would have been filled. Mickey told me we had to get Connie Mack's permission first.

"I called Mack on the telephone. When the old fellow began to realize what I was talking about, he started to talk himself. It pains me to remember all that he said, but the gist of it was 'you leave my ball players alone.' Well, it was a great idea, anyway."

Seventh Straight Win For Penn Avenue High

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Penn Avenue High cage team won from Thomas High of Thomas, W. Va., on the Penn court, 31-16. In scoring its seventh consecutive victory on the home floor and its eighth victory in nine starts, Penn ran up an 18-6 score at the half and was out in the front at the close of the third stanza when Coach Cavanaugh sent in his second and third string teams.

Melvin Henry, lanky guard, scored 12 points.

Martinsville Bows.

Martinsville, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Martinsville High School boys' court team lost its second game of the season on the local floor to the Virginia Presbyterian School of Danville, 44 to 9.

Cordon Bleu Pays $76.60 in 7th Race, Climaxing Long-Shot Day at Jefferson

Feature Dash Is Taken by Rubio

Lightnin Bill Captures First Event; Returns $55.40 Mutuel.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 14 (AP).—The long shots came home with almost monotonous regularity in the racing at Jefferson Park today.

Starting when Lightnin Bill took the first race, paying $55.40 in the $2 mutuels, the favorites were left behind all the way. The day's longest shot was Cordon Bleu, which repaid his backers at the rate of $76.60 to $2 in the seventh event.

Feature to Rubio.

The feature race, a $600 handicap, went to a field horse, Rubio, entered by T. C. Worden. Ridden by B. Haas, Rubio led Zekiel to the finish in the six furlong dash with Blue Day third. The time was 1:12 1-5 and the winner paid $13.80 in the mutuels.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Theodore Allen's trick shot by which he makes three ringers with one shoe is the most difficult of his many strange shots. It is too difficult to do every time, but when it works it happens like this: With the first two shoes he throws ringers, then with a third shoe he knocks the first two ringers off the peg. With the fourth shoe he knocks the first two back on and at the same time gets a ringer with the fourth shoe—making three ringers in one shot.

Allen, many times a State champion, won the world's title last year at the Chicago fair tournament. He can light a match at 40 feet with one shoe, then put it out with the next. He can flick ashes off a cigar, or knock a paper sack off a man's head—and get a ringer at the same time.

When lightning strikes in loose sand, the terrific heat of the flash melts the sand at the point of contact. This cools, leaving a mass of fused sand in the form of a tube which is generally forked, and may measure two feet in length. The tube is hollow and on the inside where the heat was greatest the molten sand turns to smooth glass. The outside is rough with partly melted sand.

The tubes of sand, which are sometimes called petrified lightning, are known among scientists as fulgurites. They were long a mystery until a German scientist, Dr. Hentzen, explained their nature early in the nineteenth century.

Allegany High Winner Over Hagerstown Five

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Allegany High School basketers defeated Hagerstown High on the Campobello floor here, 30 to 13. The Blue and White piled up a 16-3 edge at half time, but its attack was halted in the second period when it failed to score a single point and the Washington countians trailed at half time, 16-9.

An outstanding feature was the shooting of "Peg" Morin, diminutive forward of the Hagerstown outfit who crashed into the scoring column for five of his team's six field goals and 10 of the 13 points.

Tropical Park Race Track, Jan. 14.

Dear Al:

Horsemen hereabouts were not surprised to hear that the added money for the 1934 Kentucky Derby had been clised $20,000. The move had been expected, and they believe that the derby will still be the derby, even if it is run for $5,000. Several annual races top the derby in the money outlay but none is as eagerly sought as the Kentucky fixture. After all, courses throughout the country have not hesitated to slash claiming purses which represent perhaps 85 per cent of present racing.

Yesterday was a banner one for the track and the youthful Bennings. The crowd was the largest of the meeting, the betting was the heaviest and I gathered three winners, including Don Guzman, the rascal, at a $25.10 mutuel.

BILL.

First race—No Saint waster no time jumping out of the maiden ranks. Led to the post early in the meeting, he stepped home in track record time. Skippy McGee was behind himthat day. The latter came back to score but can hardly beat the top fellow. Synod is highly regarded and is recommended by a good workout.

Second race—Knights Hope has been a busy colt at this course but so far the winning end of a purse has escaped him. Seems well suited by conditions tomorrow and if he can handle the speed of Eurydice, he will get home for us. The latter has been prominent in two races herebouts. The sleeper of the party may be Chrysmute. Won eight races and better than $4,000 last year.

Third race—Don't Blush has shown real racing ability after landing at this track without ballyhoo. Gets in tomorrow with only 100 pounds and will be hard to be despite the appearance of Quorum in the field. The latter was an easy winner last out. Eyota to take care of the others.

Fourth race—Polisher had poor racing luck in his previous effort, stumbling soon after the start. A smooth journey tomorrow should find this colt graduating. Twidgets deserves second call, with Heiress in the show position.

Fifth race—Easy Come picks up another feather impost of 99 pounds and gets the Benning backing to take the day's feature. That last was a beaut, and the filly scored despite early interference. Evergold picks up 3 pounds off his victory in the Inaugural Handicap and is the one to beat. Springsteel hasn't been out for so long he's sure to be a price. Dangerous, according to the workouts.

Sixth race—Blessed Event gave a good account of himself here the last time out, but found the company a bit too classy. Tomorrow he will have Stroll Along to take care of, and I believe he can do the job. Volta Maid to complete the money picture.

Seventh race—Moralist was a conrace here with the-ataetaoinshrd sistent horse at Houston. Has had a race here with the better claimers and rops down tomorrow. Dornoch may be the one to beat. Has the early speed and may go on. Sky Haven for the rest.

Olmsted Five Beats Baltimore Champions

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Olmsted Grill basket ball team of Washington, defeated the Lyons A. C., 145-pound champs, of Baltimore, here tonight, 29 to 18. Wills, visiting right guard, led the attack with 10 points. At half time Olmsted led, 17-8.

It was Olmsted's eighteenth straight victory.

Houghton to Lecture To Cosmopolitan Club

Al Houghton, Kenwood golf professional, will lecture before the Cosmopolitan Club Thursday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock at the Carlton Hotel, with slow motion pictures analyzing the swings of Bobby Jones, Harry Vardon and Joyce Wethered accompanying the lecture.

On Thursday, January 25, Houghton will lecture at a dinner of railroad men at the Ambassador Hotel.

V. P. I. Quintet Will Invade District

Meets C. U. on Thursday and G. W. on Friday; Also Plays Terps.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—A three-day trip of the varsity quintet into the District of Columbia and Maryland and a determined stand by the boxing and wrestling teams at home marks the second week of Virginia Tech's indoor sports season.

The annual tour of the varsity basketers to the banks of the Potomac will pit a green Gobbler five against Catholic University Thursday, and against George Washington University quintet Friday. The invaders will then move into Maryland to battle the Old Liners of the university at College Park Saturday in the second contest of the season between the two teams.

Wrestlers To Be Busy.

Blacksburg sports fans are promised a big Saturday in the mat and ring sports. The freshmen wrestlers of University of North Carolina are to meet Tech's yearling grapplers in the War Memorial arena at 3 p. m. A double-header evening program will send the varsity grapplers against the Carolina varsity at 7 and the varsity boxers against mittmen of Catholic University at 8:30.

Tech is battling old rivals this year on the court with almost a wholly new team. Five lettermen, including four members of the veteran team that copped the Virginia Big Four crown last winter, ended their competitive careers in '33. A trio of sophomores—Rob Stump, Al Stevens and Ike Sessna—have stepped up to fill the gaps alongside Capt. Benny Palmer, crack guard, and Dave Thomas, veteran forward.

Seen As Dangerous Foe.

These courtmen are expected to play faster, better basket ball as they gain experience. Coach Monk Younger believes that the eagle-shooting eye of Sophomore Ike Cessna and finer teamwork may make the Gobblers a dangerous opponent for ancient State rivals in February.

Ill fortune that took three veteran stars and two crack sophomore prospects from the varsity boxing ranks has ruined prospects of a brilliant season in the roped arena. Capt. Granville Bussey, scrappy middleweight; Freddy Hall, undefeated recruit up from freshman ranks, and Red Negri, finalist in the Southern Conference tourney last year, are strongest bidders for laurels.

Veteran matmen are scarce but Earl Tilson, new coach, plans to send strong, well-drilled combinations against Carolina in the opening meet of a five-event schedule.

Session Set Tomorow On New Baseball Loop

Martinsville, Va., Jan. 14 (Spl.).—Baseball fans from the surrounding towns of this section will meet here Tuesday night to discuss further plans for organizing a professional baseball league for the 1934 season. Considerable interest has been shown among baseball leaders in a number of the communities represented in the Bi-State Baseball League during the past two years. Joseph F. Carr, of Columbus, Ohio, promotional director for the National Association of Minor Leagues, will attend.

Representatives from the following communities are expected to be present: Martinsville, Fieldale, Bassett, Stuart and Galax, Danville, Leaksville-Spray, Reidsville, Mayodan and Mount Airy.

Cardozo Five to Meet Douglas High Today

Playing their first game in the South Atlantic Conference this afternoon, the basketers of Cardozo Business School will engage Douglass High, of Baltimore, on the Cardozo court. Six other engagements during the week will be participated in by colored scholastic tossers.

The Dunbar Poets will engage the Ambassadors this afternoon in a nonconference tilt, Willow Tree on Wednesday, and Baltimore Vocational Friday.

Armstrong will clash with Lincoln High, of Frederick, this afternoon, meet the National Training School quint Wednesday on their own court, and will tackle the Bison junior varsity of Howard University in the Howard gymnasium Thursday. The Orange quintet has copped two conference games. Its engagements this week are outside of the conference series.

Emory-Henry, Richmond Virginia's Unbeaten Fives

Generals' March Ended by Tarheels; Three Teams Are Tied in Race for State Honors and in Conference Play.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 14 (AP).—Another week of heavy firing left only two undefeated basket ball teams in the Old Dominion today, with Emory and Henry's fast-stepping Wasps showing the way.

The Wasps, led by Glen Roberts, one of the South's classiest centers, stopped Roanoke's Maroons, 56 to 15, in their only game of the week, while Richmond's Spiders made an impressive showing by whipping the same Roanoke team, 47 to 31.

Perhaps the standout battle of the week, however, was Washington and Lee's 26 to 25 victory over a University of Virginia team, which previously had overwhelmed both Randolph-Macon and William and Mary.

Generals March Halted.

The Generals' victory march came to an abrupt end last night when the University of North Carolina Tarheels concluded their tour of the State with a 34-to-24 triumph. It was the third win in a row for the Carolinians, who also whipped V. M. I. and Virginia Tech handily.

Meanwhile Maryland's powerful Old Liners, conqueror of the Duke team that had whipped Army, swept to a 29-to-24 victory over a courageous Virginia Tech team that put on a hair-raising rally in the final minutes last night after the vistiors apparently had the situation well in hand.

William and Mary's Indians, one of the State's classiest combinations a season ago, fulfilled Coach John Kellison's doleful prediction of a weak team. Outclassed 42 to 27 by Virginia in the opener, the Indians dropped a decision to Georgetown the following evening. They won last night, however, from an unimpressive Roanoke quintet that has dropped four of its five games.

Three in Conference Tie.

Emory and Henry, Richmond and William and Mary were deadlocked for the Virginia conference leadership with Roanoke—whipped once by each of the trio—firmly entrenched in the cellar.

Randolph-Macon and Lynchburg set the pace in the Chesapeake Conference with a couple of victories each against no defeats.

Twelve games are carded for Old Dominion teams this week but only three of them have any bearing on the State championship. Virginia's Cavaliers, trying to gain back some of the ground lost as a result of the Washington and Lee setback, will take on the Virginia Military Institute Cadets at Lexington Tuesday. Richmond and V. M. I. will clash at Lexington Saturday while the same evening Lynchburg and Hampden-Sydney will fight it out in a Chesapeake Conference tilt.

Tuesday—Virginia Military vs. Virginia, at Lexington; Lynchburg vs. High Point, at Lynchburg.
Friday—Emory and Henry vs. Carson-Newman, at Carson-Newman; Virginia Tech vs. George Washington, at Washington; Virginia vs. North Carolina, at Chapel Hill.
Saturday—Virginia Military vs. Richmond, at Lexington; Emory and Henry vs. Tennessee, at Tennessee; Lynchburg vs. Hampden-Sydney, at Hampden-Sydney.

HIGH scoring by the winners was noticeable in The Post Soccer Cup ties played yesterday, but the big surprise of the day was the poor showing made by Senators against the German Sport Club, followed possibly by the great exhibition of Miller Furniture in holding British United even during 90 minutes play, this being the only contest which required extra time to decide. New York Avenue performed creditably against the Capital City league leaders, and the Dux players fully held their own against German-Americans until the last few minutes of play.

At Benning, the Senators were disappointing and, save for five minutes near the end of the game, showed none of the form which overcame Marlboro one week before. The Sport Club started scoring

Bond Market Recovers as Week Closes

Federal Loans Advance After Slump; Dollar Outlook Aids.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—A slump and later recovery of U. S. Government securities, together with a substantial rally of corporation issues, were the features of an unusually active bond market during the past week.

The prospective borrowing of some $10,000,000,000 by the Government during the next six months, coupled with a probability that the national debt will approximate $35,000,000,000 by 1936, were unsettling factors in the Federal section and there was a hurried switching of long for short term issues in addition to some nervous selling.

Rally Starts Thursday.

The rally started on Thursday, when bids appeared from numerous "bargain hunters." At the same time Treasury purchases for the sinking fund and other accounts were rumored along with institutional investment.

The upturn in the Federals, as well as in the corporation groups, was attributed partly to reports that the Administration was considering imminent revaluation of the dollar in terms of gold.

Along with these reports advices from Washington stated that Attorney General Cummings had submitted an opinion to the President regarding the ways and means of impounding some $3,600,000,000 of gold now held by the Federal Reserve system.

View of Bond Circles.

Bond circles generally were inclined to accept these happenings as indications that the administration was preparing to make some new move regarding its monetary policy.

There was a renewal of buying from abroad in the corporation groups on the theory, dealers said, that dollar stabilization was near.

Foreign observers, it was added, believed the American monetary unit might be revalued at its present theoretical gold price of around 60 cents with the President retaining his power to further reduce the value to 50 cents if he found it desirable.

Steamer Frees Self.

Bourne, Mass., Jan. 14 (AP).—The steamship City of St. Louis of the Savannah Line freed herself today after being aground throughout the night in Cape Cod Canal near here. She proceeded to New York.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Business Record for First Two Weeks of New Year Rather Impressive; Government Spending at Rate of $15,000,000,000 a Year.

By Ralph West Robey.

Virtually all of the better known commercial organizations that specialize in interpreting business news for the general public through newspaper releases, are genetic optimists. Once in a long while one of them breaks down and admits the outlook is not entirely rosy, but such pessimism is rare, and indicates that this organization thinks it is time to take to the lifeboats.

Neither are such prognostications especially worthy of consideration. What is interesting and important are the facts upon which the current optimism rests, for everyone, so far as I know, anticipates both better business and higher prices for the next few months. The significant thing is to determine the progress we are making in this direction.

Outstanding in this particular is retail trade. All of the reports that I have seen indicate it has remained at a high level since the turn of the year. Necessarily, the total volume has dropped heavily from December, because of Christmas trade, but the decline is reported to have been much less than was expected.

Automobile Sale Data Are Especially Good.

Further evidence that consumer demand is being sustained at a high level is found in the automobile trade. Sales so far this year, it is said, have been surprisingly large and substantially above what even the manufacturers anticipated.

Preliminary reports on wholesale trade also are favorable, although these are less definite than in the case of retail trade.

In the textile industry there has been a renewed outburst of activity, which is reported to have resulted in a larger volume of business than at any time since the extraordinary spurt of last summer. According to one dispatch, last week "in most cases, sales exceeded production, stocks started to diminish and prices continued their upward movement."

Taking industrial production as a whole, the record also is good when measured in absolute terms. If the figures are corrected for seasonal variation the showing is somewhat less favorable in many instances, but it still remains rather impressive.

In the field of finance the basis of optimism is the stability that has been shown. Bonds dropped somewhat after the President's budget message, especially Government issues, but more recently the market has strengthened and much progress has been made in offsetting these earlier losses.

Stock Market Has Shown Slight Upward Trend

The stock market has remained reasonably quiet, but with a slight upward trend. Speculators still are afraid the market will be subjected to Governmental regulation, and are inclined to take it easy. The best advance the market has enjoyed since the turn of the year came one afternoon as a result of a rumor that there would be no regulation at this time.

Commodity markets have done somewhat better, with quite appreciable increases in the price of some products.

In the foreign exchange market the dollar has been steady, gaining a little on balance since the first of the year. This has been due primarily to reports that devaluation and stabilization of our currency is imminent.

Such are some of the high spots in the business and financial history of the first two weeks of 1934. Taken in the aggregate it is an encouraging record. In appraising it, however, it is well to remember that during the first eleven days of the period the Government pumped into circulation $452,000,000. This is at a rate of $15,000,000,000 a year. If this rate of expenditure is maintained, business should hum—until the Government credit runs out.

Britain's Oats Duty To Benefit Colonies

London, Jan. 14 (AP).—Experts in the grain trade here declared today that the benefit to Canada of the new English duties on foreign oats and oat products will be largely determined by the extent to which the home supply will satisfy the demand. The new duties were imposed primarily to help home producers under the new agricultural marketing acts.

Whatever amount is necessary from abroad will virtually have to come from Canada, as the duties are practically prohibitive on foreign oats. They are 3 shillings, or about 75 cents, per hundredweight of 112 pounds on oats and 7½ shillings, or about $1.87 per 112 pounds on foreign oat products.

The duties are so stiff that dealers on the corn exchange in Liverpool, predict they will be removed or reduced. Canada shipped something like $2,000,000 worth of oats and oat products to the United Kingdom last year.

Walt Mason Himself

Yuletide Smokes.

I am smoking those cheroots given me by kind galoots when the Christmas bells were rung, and all hearts were feeling young and it was the proper chore to give presents, six or four, to the friends we cherished most, and we sent our gifts by post, sent our presents by express, to recipients' distress. People sent me choice cigars packed in boxes and in jars; I received about a ton, and I smoke them, one by one. I sit down upon my porch, and light up a Christmas torch, and I hear the neighbors say, "Someone's burning moldy hay, someone's burning musty straw, and there ought to be a law. Let us call a moral cop who will make this nuisance stop, for inhaling fumes like these surely will promote disease." To my kitchen I repair; I can smoke in quiet there and my neighbors can not see if I smoke two ropes or three, and they can not criticize what is hidden from their eyes. But my wife and aunt and niece say that I disturb the peace, smoking stogies that suggest something like a crowner's quest. And they ask, with futile ire, "Are your overshoes on fire?" There is no place, near or far, for the man with a cigar that he drew on Christmas Day, when the world was glad and gay.

Walt Mason Himself

Yuletide Smokes.

I am smoking those cheroots given me by kind galoots when the Christmas bells were rung, and all hearts were feeling young and it was the proper chore to give presents, six or four, to the friends we cherished most, and we sent our gifts by post, sent our presents by express, to recipients' distress. People sent me choice cigars packed in boxes and in jars; I received about a ton, and I smoke them, one by one. I sit down upon my porch, and light up a Christmas torch, and I hear the neighbors say, "Someone's burning moldy hay, someone's burning musty straw, and there ought to be a law. Let us call a moral cop who will make this nuisance stop, for inhaling fumes like these surely will promote disease." To my kitchen I repair; I can smoke in quiet there and my neighbors can not see if I smoke two ropes or three, and they can not criticize what is hidden from their eyes. But my wife and aunt and niece say that I disturb the peace, smoking stogies that suggest something like a crowner's quest. And they ask, with futile ire, "Are your overshoes on fire?" There is no place, near or far, for the man with a cigar that he drew on Christmas Day, when the world was glad and gay.
